Brandt Sweeps To Easy Victory

By DAVID HUMPHREYS
Times Correspondent

BONN — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt won a decisive mandate from the German electorate Sunday for another four years of coalition government.

Despite snow, cold and fog in much of the country 91 per cent of voters went to the polls — a record in the republic's 23-year history and maybe in the Western World — to give the coalition an over-all majority of more than 40 seats in parliament.

Brandt's Social Democratic Party will have the largest block of seats for the first time in history when the new Bundestag meets Dec. 14. Their coalition partners also contributed solidly to the victory. The Free Democrats, a small free-enterprise party acting as a brake on Mr. Brandt's socialists, increased their share of the vote from 5.8 per cent in the 1969 election to about eight per cent Sunday.

Brandt and Foreign Minister Walter Scheel, Free Democrat leader, shook hands at a press conference when the extent of the victory became certain. Brandt announced he would go to East Berlin before Christmas — first West German chancellor to do so — to sign the treaty initialled 10 days ago aimed at improving relations between the two Germanys.

Brandt pledged to continue his policy of good neighborliness at home and abroad. Scheel said there was a wide-enough area of agreement between the Social Democrats and the Free Democrats to keep the parties busy in government for a full four years.

Brandt made the treaty, latest of a series of moves to improve relations with West Germany's Communist neighbors, the basic election issue. Opposition Leader Rainer Barzel of the Christian Democratic Union chose inflation, running at a rate of 6.4 per cent now, as his main theme.

The voters cast their ballots about 3 to 2 in favor of the coalition with its Ostpolitik theme. The Brandt foreign policy will now fit neatly into the timetable for full-scale talks between East and West intended to improve East-West relations as Brandt has sought to do between the Germanys.

Scheel even announced the opening in January of talks for mutual and balanced force reductions in Europe a few days before the election. Canada will take part by virtue of NATO forces stationed in

Studies Before Dams B.C. Gov't Pledges

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Future major hydro power projects in British Columbia will need environmental impact studies before the provincial government will consider them, Resources Minister Bob Williams pledged here Sunday.

He said in an interview that this will also apply to other forms of power-generating systems. He said that a number of existing projects are "an environmental mess" and accused the former Social Credit government of irresponsibility in not conducting such studies previously.

"Studies will be mandatory for future projects," he said. "At the moment, while there are no major power developments waiting approval, the government will determine the cost, staging and timetabling of the impact surveys."

He said eventually power rates may have to be raised to finance the studies, but this would not happen for a long time.

A masssive clean-up project at the Mica and Bennett dam sites on the Columbia and Peace rivers, respectively, may have to be expanded to clear snags, trees and floating debris from other locations, including the Duncan dam north of Kootenay Lake, he said.

TOO LATE

He said it is too late to do anything about the $140 million Kootenay Canal project on the Kootenay River between Nelson and Castlegar, "because power development has been going on so long there we don't even know what the river is like in its natural state.

"There are many instances when we don't know what a project does to the fish and wildlife in an area, nor do we know the site's recreation potential.

"Rather than looking at only one thing—producing power—we are attempting to look at the numerous benefits which can result from hydro developments."

B.C. Hydro chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum, who retires at the end of the year, said Sunday action has been taken in the last few years to minimize environmental damage from power projects.

PLAN CHANGED

"The excavation disposal site at the Kootenay Canal project was changed to avoid a small pool which contained steelhead fish, and a salmon spawning channel was constructed at the Duncan dam," he said.

He said extensive clearing was not done on the Duncan River because it would have been too expensive.

Williams also said Sunday the B.C. government is prepared to refund Seattle City Light the $207,398 the utility spent on land rentals while the flooding of B.C.'s Skagit Valley as part of the Ross dam power project was being considered.

But, the minister added, the government is prepared to take the issue to court if Seattle Light does not accept his decision to cancel the flooding.

"We are hoping for amicable discussions with our American friends, since this decision should come as no surprise. We are a new government with new attitudes and this is not a surprise," Williams said in an interview.

"We are prepared to refund the money Seattle has given the province in land rentals—there is no question about

GOLDA WILL ACCEPT HENRY'S HELP

WASHINGTON (WP) — Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said in an interview broadcast Sunday she would welcome assistance from Henry Kissinger in getting peace talks started in the Middle East, but made it clear Israel would resist any attempt by the U.S. to "press or provide" a settlement from outside.

"If he (Kissinger) thinks he can help in negotiations between the parties, all of that kind of help is more than welcome, providing it is helping to get the parties to negotiate, and not somebody from the outside providing a solution or suggesting a solution or pressing a solution," Mrs. Meir said.

Servants Can Strike

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

In every session of the provincial legislature, there seems to be one or two bits and pieces of legislation which escape public attention until sometime after the MLAs have gone home.

In some cases, the effects are great, in others small.

In the case of a piece of legislation passed at the special session of the legislature in October, the effects are significant, at least for the 25,000 civil servants in the province.

OVERLOOK

The overlooked move is contained in the amendments to the old Mediation Commission Act and its effect is to remove the illegality from civil servants taking part in a strike.

Civil servants have not been given a legal right to strike but the legal prohibition on striking has been removed. This was the situation prior to 1968 when the Social Credit government introduced the Mediation Commission Act.

Labor minister Bill King today described the overlooked section of the legislation as "a housekeeping measure" and said the five-man committee which is presently conducting hearings into the issue of collective bargaining rights for civil servants will be dealing with the problem of strike rights when it brings in its recommendations.

AN OFFENCE

The former section 50 of the mediation commission act had a subsection (2), which read: "Every person employed by the Crown in right

Ottawa, Cities Push For Tri-Level Talks

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government offered Sunday, at the start of the first tri-level conference of federal, provincial and municipal officials, to enter into a continuing consultation process involving all three groups.

Municipalities, constitutionally, are wards of the provinces and beyond the jurisdiction of the federal government but "no one level of government" can any longer respond to the challenges posed by modern-day cities, Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford said in a news release from the closed-door conference.

"We will establish new ways of attacking the urban challenge together, or our problems will drift from being manageable, as they are now, to being unmanageable almost overnight."

Basford said it is urgent that the three levels of government set up "some means of continuing consultation" to come to grips with the problems facing cities in the country.

The main problems from the federal viewpoint, were listed as housing, poverty, transportation, environment public finance, social instability and urban form, or the appearance of cities.

The news releases said Ottawa recognizes "the primary role of the provinces in municipal institutions and in shaping urban form" but noted that federal legislative and budgetary powers are used in the pursuit of national objectives and could also be used to further comprehensive planning "in which provinces have the lead role."

As well as establishing a continuing consultation process, Basford said, the three levels of government should attempt to consolidate their respective policies and "take coherent action together."

The release said federal activities already have a heavy impact on cities which it estimated will become the homes of 94.4 per cent of all Canadians by 2001.

The importance of participation by municipalities in the federal and provincial decision-making process was stressed in a position paper presented by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

"The roles and responsibilities of all levels of governments are interdependent," the federation said in a position paper outlining its views at the start of the two-day conference. "All levels are governed by the same over-all goals."

However, the paper said, structural forms as well as financial arrangements are instruments of more effective government and not ends in themselves.

"The proper solutions to

PAKISTAN'S EX-GOVERNOR GIVEN LIFE

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — A Dacca court today convicted Dr. A. M. Malik, the last governor of East Pakistan, of waging war against Bangladesh and sentenced him to prison for life. He could have been sentenced to death.

Malik had pleaded not guilty to charges, which included causing contempt and hatred against the Bangladesh government and collaborating with the Pakistani army during the civil war last year. Malik was governor of East Pakistan from September until Dacca fell to Indian troops Dec. 16, 1971.

Peron Seizes Initiative

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Juan D. Peron, in Argentina only four days after 17 years of exile, has seized the political initiative from the ruling military junta in determining the course of the elections scheduled for March 11.

Bolstered by thousands of cheering, chanting supporters, the 77-year-old former dictator met Sunday night with leaders of the other major political parties. They accepted insults and catcalls from the crowd to attend a meeting called by Peron at the three-storey suburban home purchased for him by his supporters.

Peron was to continue his meetings with political leaders today to strengthen his position in any future negotiations with the military government.

There has been no major reaction so far from the government except for a warning that it would take any measures necessary to maintain order around Peron's house.

About 1,000 militant Peronists camped overnight around bonfires in a vacant lot across from the villa and on neighborhood lawns. More than 10,000 had gathered there after Sunday afternoon soccer games, but this was far less than the 50,000 who packed the narrow, tree-lined street the night before.

Also at the meeting were other represenatives of the Hour of the People, a loose organization of political parties formed in 1970 to put pressure on the military government to call elections and hand power over to a civilian government.

Peron had carefully avoided any public criticism of the ruling junta headed by President Alejandro Lanusse.

It is believed that if Peron does not succeed in forming a sufficiently strong political alliance, he might try to negotiate with Lanusse to choose a presidential candidate acceptable to both the Peronists and the armed forces.

Kissinger Back in Paris, Hopes for Quick Peace

PARIS (CP) — Henry Kissinger resumed his secret peace negotiations with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho in Paris today amid indications that their governments are determined to seek a quick settlement. (See also Page 34).

The U.S. presidential envoy who flew here Sunday night said on arrival that if the North Vietnamese negotiators showed the same spirit of understanding and flexibility which resulted in last month's nine-point draft agreement, "a rapid settlement of the war is probable."

U.S. officials hope that North Vietnam will agree to modify Vietnam peace terms to make them more acceptable to the Saigon government.

Tho's negotiating team, however, is expected to insist that there be no major modification of the nine-point agreement announced by Hanoi on Oct. 26.

Meanwhile, waves of U.S. B-52 bombers dropped 1,200 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese positions just below the demilitarized zone, military spokesmen reported today.

Forty of the Stratofortresses struck in support of South Vietnamese marines in Quang Tri province who were hit by 3,500-round artillery and mortar barrage over the weekend.

Hughes: Now Undersea Mines?

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — Howard Hughes is reported to be planning a giant assault on the mineral wealth of the ocean floor.

The mystery billionaire's project, shrouded in secrecy and centred in a compound on the shore of San Francisco Bay, rivals a science fiction tale in its imaginary approach.

A source, who did not want to be identified, said the project calls for sinking a barge to the ocean bottom. An undersea tractor, presumably automated, will ply the ocean bottom from the barge and bring back copper, nickel, manganese and cobalt from the ocean floor.

Once the mineral wealth is brought aboard, plans call for the barge to be refloated by air pumped from a surface ship.

So far, both the huge barge and a 618-foot-long ship, the "Hughes Glomar Explorer," have been built for the multi-million dollar venture. The barge sits in a secret guarded compound in Redwood City where it is being outfitted.

A spokesman for Hughes Tool Co. in Houston, confirmed the company is embarking on an undersea mining venture, but declined to discuss details.

Global Marine, Inc., of Los Angeles acknowledged building the ship in Chester, Pa., and Lockheed Corp. confirmed it is doing work on the project for Hughes. But neither firm would discuss any details.

Security at the bayside work site here is tight and even city inspectors must phone first for permission to enter.

One newsman was met at the gate recently by guards and a tight-lipped Lockheed executive who turned him away.

Government scientists have queried Hughes' officials regarding the mystery barge but have never received an answer.

"Hughes must be going after something very big," said Oleg Terichow, a mining engineer at the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration's experimental marine mining facility at nearby Tiburon.

"We've written several letters but never even got them acknowledged," he said.

Two sheds have been built next to the almost 400-foot-long barge, located near the busy San Francisco Bayshore Freeway.

A redwood City building inspector said the sheds are "conventional, steel-framed structures. Something was being fabricated inside and taken into the barge."

He said his men were not allowed inside the barge, which was built in San Diego under strict security.

A spokesman for Global Marine described the 51,000-ton Glomar Explorer as a "deep ocean mining ship."

Globa Marine will run the ship for Hughes, the spokesman said, but he would not reveal the nature of the operation.

Global Marine is a leader in undersea exploration. It currently operates the Global Challenger, a vessel taking undersea core samples for the Scripps Institute of Oceanography. The company also runs at least 10 oil-drilling ships.

DUBLIN ARRESTS IRA 'MASTERMIND'

DUBLIN (CP) — The provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army is calling for "a wave of protest" in the United States, Britain and Ireland against the arrest by the Irish government of the Provos' chief of staff, Sean MacStiofain.

The Provisionals' political arm, Sinn Fein, said MacStiofain's arrest in Dublin Sunday was an "act of collaboration" with the British Army, "calculated to give aid and comfort to the forces of British imperialism in Ireland."

MacStiofain is believed to be the mastermind of the IRA's campaign of violence in Northern Ireland, which is aimed at uniting the province with the Irish Republic.

The Dublin government has been reluctant to crack down on IRA leaders because of their grass-roots support in the republic. But in recent months the government pushed a Special Powers Act through Parliament to bring IRA men to trial without jury and several other terrorist leaders have been arrested.

Aussies Argue Anthem Merits

SYDNEY (AP) — An election controversy loomed in Australia today over the opposition Labor party move to replace God Save the Queen with a new national anthem.

Labor Leader Gough Whitlam sparked the row at a campaign meeting for the Dec. 2 general election in which polls have Labor as slight favorites to become the government after 23 years in opposition.

"It's time we had our own symbols of our own nationhood," Whitlam told the meeting in the New South Wales country town of Griffith. "Its time we had our own national anthem."

He said the choice of Australians "not the musical tastes of Britain's George II should determine Australia's national anthem."

Editorial comment in Sydney newspapers was mixed. The Sun said it was a cocky politician who could sneer off an anthem that represented 200 years of Australian spirit, history, and sacrifice.

The Daily Mirror editorialized that government after government had failed to take any action on the matter. "As a result, God Save the Queen is beginning to be held in contempt," said the newspaper.

A recent national poll revealed 70 per cent of Australians want a new anthem. Favorites were God Bless Australia to the tune of Waltzing Matilda and Advance Australia Fair.

Bourassa Rejects Vote On Compulsory French

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Liberal party called for French-language education in Quebec for all immigrant children from non-English-speaking countries at its 17th annual convention here during the weekend.

But Premier Robert Bourassa, in his closing speech, said a new fiscal-sharing arrangement to increase provincial tax revenues is the priority issue facing his government.

He also promised his government will lead the other provinces in increasing provincial authority over communications.

The controversial language resolution, to send future non-English-speaking immigrants to the French school system, was passed at a stormy workshop session Saturday.

POLICY NOT BINDING

Mr. Bourassa told reporters that his government is not bound by the party's resolution which will be treated as only one element taken into consideration in an over-all language policy.

He pledged in his closing speech that his government will respect minority rights.

The Liberal resolution includes proposals that religion cease to have any bearing on the school system in which a student is enrolled and that prospective immigrants be informed they must achieve a perfect working knowledge of French.

Mr. Bourassa told the meeting a new tax-sharing deal is needed because provincial costs are rising more rapidly than federal costs, while provincial revenues are growing at a slower rate.

Fast-growing municipal costs also add to the pinch the provincial governments are experiencing, he said.

Germany. Preparations for a security conference begin this week in Helsinki. The conference will determine whether it is possible to improve travel, exchanges of information and access arrangements between Eastern and Western Europe.

Sunday's victory sets the stage for a new German role on the world stage. When Brandt signs the inner-German treaty, his government and the communist regime in East Berlin will prepare to take seats as separate states of the United Nations.

The next four years will put the controversial Ostpolitik to the test at home. This will be ample time to see whether the opposition's doubts were founded about the East Berlin regime's good faith in keeping its word about easier visiting arrangements between the two states and in and around Berlin.

During the period of detente starting now, West Germany will be under control of the Social Democrats who spent most of the country's first two decades in the political wilderness. In strength of personality, Brandt, Nobel Peace Prize winner, is the successor to the late great Konrad Adenauer, former chancellor and leader through the trying cold-war '50s.

West Germany commentators were saying Sunday night that Brandt's personality was the most likely decisive factor in the elections. He electrified the crowds at every rally, as Barzel, a man best known for party managerial talents, couldn't hope to do.

Gerhard Schroeder, former CDU foreign affairs minister, designated for the post if the CDU had won, was himself defeated in a Dusseldorf constituency.

Vacancy Remains On School Board

One Saanich Peninsula school board position was won by acclamation and another left vacant today as last-minute nomination papers were filed for local school boards.

No candidates will run for Saanich trustee on the board.

Elections will be held Dec. 9 Donald Grafton, 4923 Townsend, had filed nomination papers for the position which were ruled invalid by Saanich municipal clerk

Election will be held Dec. 9 in Saanich school board's other two wards.

Running for Sidney trustee are Norma Sealey, 9366 Lochside, and Bernard Ethier, 2245 James White Blvd.

Nine candidates have filed papers for the five vacant seats on Victoria school board.

Incumbents Philip Ney, 1900 Richmond; Lavinia Greenwood, 689 Mount Joy, and Walter Donald, 2238 Windsor, will be on the ballot again.

Newcomers vying for positions on the board are Joe Richards, 801 Esquimalt; John Duffus, 139 Atkins; Ted Robbins, 4482 Tyndall; John Sullivan, 886 Dunsmuir; Mimi Robertson, 1149 Wychbury, and R. R. Zietz, 684 Cunningham, and W. T. Ross, 2809 Craigowan.

Four candidates are running for school trustee in Sooke school district's Belmont zone.

Incumbent Alice Reader, 3608 Happy Valley Road; Alan Littler, 3564 Happy Valley Road; Darvis Cook, 1076 Jenkins, and Shirley Wilde, 3758 Duke, are competing for two positions in the Belmont zone.

The one position in Milne's Landing zone is being contested by Ernest Knott, 4810 Sooke Road, and Horst Doniecki, 6455 College.

Sooke is also holding a $3,280,300 referendum for building sites, construction and new equipment.

fundamental organizational and fiscal problems at the local level will be better recognized if, for a start, an intergovernmental consultative mechanism is initiated."

The municipal paper zeroed in on finances as a key area of concern.

"The municipalities are finding themselves in a position where revenues from all sources are insufficient to respond to . . . demands," it said.

In 1961, it added, municipal revenues from sources such as property and business taxes totalled $1.5 billion and accounted for 61 per cent of municipal expenditures. While the figure rose to $3.9 by 1971, the percentage fell to 47 per cent.

"As a result municipalities are forced to depend more and more on transfers payments from provincial and federal governments."

The provincial delegation is reported to be divided and facing united federal and municipal groups.

Sources said the provincial position, prepared by an Ontario government team, has not obtained unanimous support from all provincial governments.

Manitoba is not endorsing the provincial stand, these sources said. It is also understood that the Atlantic provinces are considering a separate brief on some aspects of the provincial position.

While details of the disagreement were not revealed, it was hinted that the brief prepared by Ontario takes a negative stand on continuing consultation among the three levels of government.

Main purpose of the conference is to establish machinery for permanent consultation on urban matters between federal, provincial and municipal governments.

of the province who takes part in a strike, and every person who declares or purports to authorize a strike by persons so employed, is guilty of an offence against this act."

The new Section 50 brought in by the legislature during the special session does not contain this subsection, presumably making it technically legal for eligible trade unions of civil servants to conduct a strike against the government.

But King says that the civil servants in the province are not yet a recognized trade union within the meaning of the new act and therefore says there is nothing to make him worry about an immediate strike.

King said there was no intention on the part of the government to keep this section of the new act a secret.

Spokesmen for the B.C. Government Employees Union, the largest group of civil servants in the province, were unavailable fo rcomment today.

that. But we feel we have a valid legal judgment that the agreement, signed by the Social Credit governemnt to go along with the flooding, is not valid, and we are prepared to test this in court."

An agreement was signed between B.C. and Seattle City Light in 1967 under which the utility is to pay $34,566 annually for 99 years for the right to flood 5,200 acres of the Skagit Valley by the raising of the Ross dam, just south of the U.S. border about 90 miles east of Vancouver.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Sunday his decision that the province is not bound to the flooding was based on what he called "legal defects in procedures taken place over a long period of time."

Macdonald refused to elaborate, saying "it is not good policy to let the other side know what our arguments are in case of a court battle. But I can say the argument is not that we feel we cannot be committed to the decision of another government."

However, a spokesman for Seattle Light said that regardless of the B.C. government announcements, he assumed there still is a valid agreement with B.C.

"Without being informed of this matter officially, all we can say is that we still feel we have a valid agreement with B.C.," said Julian Whaley, assistant superintendent of the utility.

Williams said no modifications to the flooding plan would be accepted.

Environment Minister Jack Davis said he will do everything possible to support the B.C. government decision.

"The people of B.C. own that valley and if the people of B.C., through their government, say it isn't going to be flooded, then it isn't going to be flooded." Davis said Seattle Light now has lost the right to flood the land and it would be "very foolish" of it to spend any more money on the project."

"We have taken the position for more than a year that the dam should not be raised," Biggs said.

Dave Brousson, Liberal MLA for North Vancouver-Capilano who was one of the first to publicly oppose the Skagit Valley flooding, said he was "delighted" with the firm stand taken by the New Democratic Party government.

"I am sure that Seattle will back off now that Victoria has taken this strong position," he said.

Meanwhile, former premier W.A.C. Bennett Saturday called Williams's flood ban "stupid." He said the agreement was made between Ottawa and Seattle and was merely inherited by B.C. He questioned whether Victoria can do anything about it now.

Business Zoning Top Issue

Opposition to a proposed commercial zone in the heart of Gordon Head residential suburb is expected to be a main issue at a Saanich all-candidates meeting Nov. 29.

Up to 10 candidates vying for four council vacancies are expected to attend the meeting organized jointly by Cadboro Bay and Gordon Head ratepayer associations.

Gordon Head ratepayers' president Barrie Goult said that although the current council's proposed declaration of Gordon Head district as a community plan under terms of the Municipal Act is a good concept, the provision for commercial development at its core is disturbing to homeowners. A petition opposing the idea is being circulating.

Council's purpose in bringing the proposal forward at this time is to make provision for future orderly development in the district, primarily to safeguard the amenities now enjoyed and to ensure that whatever commercial, service and multiple density construction evolves is confined to a specified location.

This would forestall any trend toward spot zoning for commercial areas in Gordon Head, council has been told by its planners.

Focus of the commercial zone would be at San Juan and Tyndall, at present consisting of mixed single family residential and agricultural land. It is the geographic centre of Gordon Head district.

The meeting will be held in the lower hall of St. Dunstan's Church at San Juan and Tyndall, at 8 p.m. Chairmen will be Goult and John Cox, president of Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? Seven vowels and a lot of agile tongue work when you try to pronounce the name of the 41-foot ketch owned by Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Cobb, tied up at the Oak Bay Marina. The boat is named after the couple's tiny daughter, seen here with her mother. Ooglebagoogers is the Cobbs' nickname for the midget 'salt', whose official title is Sunshine. She will be along when the family heads south for cruising in warmer climes.

Boys Age 10 to 12 Rape, Kill Girl, 7

NEW YORK (AP) — Three boys aged 10, 11 and 12 were arrested Sunday and charged with raping a seven-year-old girl and hurling her from the roof of a south Bronx tenement six stories to her death.

The victim's nine-year-old sister also was lured or forced to the roof but managed to escape, police said. A hospital examination determined she had not been sexually molested.

The girls had gone out to buy some pizza Saturday afternoon when they were accosted by the boys, two of whom were brothers, police said.

As the younger girl was being tossed from the roof, her sister fled down the stairway. The boys escaped over adjoining roofs to another building, but were picked up eight hours later by police.

They were charged with juvenile delinquency — specifically murder, rape and robbery. Police said they had taken 60 cents from the girl who died.

TORIES PAY LEAST

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Progressive Conservative government caucus has been presented with a petition signed by 20 of its 50 secretaries claiming their salaries "have been sadly neglected."

The secretaries demanded in their petition and an accompanying letter to the Conservative backbenchers to know by Wednesday, the day after the legislature reopens, "whether this is a dead-end job so that we can come to some conclusions as to our futures."

Secretaries for the New Democratic Party, the Liberal party and the civil service all earn more than their counterparts in the Conservative ranks.

The Conservative caucus secretaries start at $110 a week and make the maximum of $122 a week within a year. They get three weeks paid vacation plus 1¼ days a month accumulative sick leave credits. There are no other fringe benefits.

DRUG FACTORY RAIDED

SQUAMISH (CP) — RCMP said Sunday they have broken up an illegal drug ring which operated a "speed" factory in a small log cabin in the bush near here, 40 miles north of Vancouver.

Three persons were arrested and 20 pounds of chemicals used to produce methamphetamine — "speed" — were seized in a raid during the weekend.

Gary Alexander Madryga, 30, of Burnaby, Andre Bechard, 34, and Barbara O'Grady, 24, are to appear in provincial court charged with conspiring to traffic in the drug. Two others were sought.

A member of the police team, which investigated the drug ring for nine months before making arrests, said the chemicals taken would have produced about $60,000 worth of methamphetamine.

Secret Inquiry Begins Into University Deaths

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The state attorney-general's office begins a full-scale inquiry today into last Thursday's clash at Southern University in which two students were shot to death.

Attorney-General William Guste assigned two assistants, one black, one white to conduct the inquiry requested by Gov. Edwin Edwards.

Guste said the investigation would be conducted in secret.

University administrators, meanwhile, fired two faculty members they said had encouraged student protests, and Edwards termed "totally inaccurate" a newspaper story that he had blamed a deputy sheriff for the deaths.

The students, Denver Smith of New Roads, La., and Leonard Douglas Brown of Gilbert, La., both 20, were struck in the head and shoulders by buckshot as state police and sheriff's deputies scattered a crowd in front of the university's administration building.

The violence climaxed three weeks of student protests at the largest predominantly black college in the United States, and led to the closing of the school.

Authorities have said their men used nothing but tear gas to disperse students. But Edwars, talking with reporters, acknowledged a deputy sheriff might have mistakenly fired live ammunition at the crowd.

University president Dr. G. Leon Netterville, 65, sent notices of dismissal Friday to two faculty members, including the head of the school's physics department, Dr. Joseph Johnson.

Reliable sources said the president also had fired three or four other instructors.

Netterville declined comment.

The other instructor known to have been fired was George Baker, an assistant professor of engineering.

Symphony Concerts Mix Old, New Compositions

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

The current pair of Victoria Symphony concerts provides an easily accessible bridge between old and contemporary modes of musical writing.

The program's foot in the past, takes the form of the Vivaldi D major guitar concerto, which presents Spanish guitarist, Narciso Yepes for the first time in Victoria.

The other three works on the program belong to the 20th century. For those who have ever thought otherwise, all three prove that bewitching melodic invention did not end with the romantic school. Moreover, texturally and in terms of color, this is music that is fresh and constantly offers the enchantment of the unexpected.

Lazlo Gati gives us Shostakovich's Ninth Symphony to crown a program in which we hear Yepes' superb solo guitar poised with miraculous resonance against the full orchestration of Rodrigo's Fantasia. This, together with an opener of distinct melodic and rhythmic charm — Eugene Zador's Aria and Allegro — written for brass and strings, clearly reveals the competence of the orchestra's brass choir.

In the Vivaldi and Rodrigo numbers, Yepes looms as an artist of rare stature. The 10-string guitar, his own creation, speaks under his hands in a limpid, bravura style, singing its lyric passages with a rare sweet resonance. Yepes commands a remarkable legato on his non-sustaining instrument, and this lends an exquisite purity and flow to the largo movement of the Vivaldi and to some of the more reflective moods of the Rodrigo.

The strings accompanied the Vivaldi with vitality, fine definition and a pleasing lightness and smoothness of tone, Gati setting and maintaining an excellent tempo throughout.

In melodic line, in mood and in the beauty of its instrumentation the Rodrigo Fantasia Para un Gentilhombre is a gem from both solo and accompaniment point of view and on Sunday it was performed with artistry and skill.

With the Shostakovish Ninth the orchestra was lead by Gati to provide its finest and most exciting performance so far this season.

Mr. Brandt Sees It Through

Attempts were made during the West German general election campaign to prevent the basic treaty of co-operation between East and West Germany from becoming an issue. It was said in some quarters that the new recognition of East Germany's status and the consequent approach to a better working relationship between the two parts of the former German Reich were too important in themselves to be embroiled in partisan political controversy.

However, that very importance ensured that the matter would be prominent in the contest. Chancellor Willy Brandt made support of the treaty his chief plank. The result is that Mr. Brandt's outstanding victory in the elections ensures that the treaty, which he sponsored and ten days ago brought to the initialling stage, will now go forward to ratification — probably before Christmas. The benefits should be widespread, involving as they do stability and peace in Europe and hence the whole world.

Public polls on the eve of the election indicated a close race between the two major political entities in West Germany. Mr. Brandt's coalition government of Social Democrats and Free Democrats has lived on a knife-edge, particularly since its small majority was reduced by the recent defection of six deputies. Sunday's election was called to resolve the stalemate in the Bundestag. It has resulted in a clear triumph for Mr. Brandt, whose SPD party becomes the largest bloo in the Bundestag for the first time, and whose SPD-FDP coalition won three-fifths of the popular vote.

The victory can have no other interpretation than a wide public approval of Mr. Brandt's policy of approach to the East — while still upholding NATO and Western associations — and his move to normalize relations with East Germany even though this involves recognition of the separation of the two states for the foreseeable future.

Mr. Brandt's moderate socialism has apparently provided a workable contact between East and West which meets the requirements of West Germany's current position. There are many problems for the state yet to solve — including the continued existence of the four-power authority — of Britain, France, the United States and Russia — which has functioned since the end of the war, and the question of the future position of West Berlin — an island in a sea of communism and still not permitted status as a full member of the West German republic. But an encouraging trend toward intra-European co-operation is now discernible, and West Germany has shown its approval in a record-sized turnout of voters.

"... I'm going to do some early Christmas shopping ... is there anything you can think of you don't need ...?"

Looking at the Rope Again

Prime Minister Trudeau has announced plans for early action on the death penalty in Canada, following expiration at the end of this year of the test period during which capital punishment for murder was suspended. This appears to rebut an earlier suggestion of a year's extension before a decision would be reached, though the prediction of an early solution may be overly optimistic.

Certainly the issue is of immediate concern to Canadians, some of whom no doubt have been impressed by the vote in California, November 7, restoring capital punishment for some offences. But urgent as an answer to the question may seem, it would be unfortunate if a precipitate decision were reached.

What the public needs — and apparently some members of parliament as well — is a dispassionate analysis of the situation which developed during the five-year test period, and a study of the statistics which seem, on the surface, to run against abolitionist arguments.

In what is primarily a matter of conscience, Canadians generally may feel repugnance to return to a system which requires the state to take the life of a human being. But the statistics and their interpretation should be widely publicized as part of a national debate by abolitionists and anti-abolitionists. There should be a clear expression of public opinion, based on a clear demonstration of the facts.

Now, a New Outlook?

There seems to be a consensus that the victorious President Nixon will now turn even more of his attention to world affairs. One wire service reports that Mr. Nixon and his Mercury-like foreign policy adviser, Dr. Henry Kissinger, see a safe and peaceful world as "one with a number of powers keeping each other in check."

Although perhaps less dangerous than a bipolar world a multipolar globe would have its own dangers and there is, after all, no assurance that some of the great powers would not concert themselves against others or even attempt to isolate one of their number. Better to look to the United Nations as the guarantor of the peace than to construct an imperium in the interests of the high and the mighty.

Metternich of Austria is said to be the intellectual ideal of Dr. Kissinger. Rather than recall Metternich's reactionary policies, it might be in keeping with the optimism of the post-election period to think that a remark of the Austrian prince to the Duke of Wellington is pertinent today. He said: "For a long time Europe has taken on for me the value of a native land." Substituting "world" for "Europe", Dr. Kissinger and Mr. Nixon may now have the opportunity to help usher in a new patriotism.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Politics in Beaded Buckskin

Sacred name of a dog (said the famous Belgian detective, M. Hercule Poirot) the stupidity of your Canadian newspapers amazes me, even me, after all my experience in abnormal psychology. It is to laugh. Naturally, on hearing of the political crisis, I fly to Ottawa representing certain powerful European interests not to be identified. And what do I find? I find, as usual, that you journalists have misunderstood everything.

Oui, you actually suppose that M. Trudeau is clinging desperately to office and M. Stanfield fighting to seize it. Well, of course, the situation is the precise opposite of your idiotic conventional wisdom.

Alors, one glance at a news picture tells me the truth in a flash. Immediately after the election the prime minister is photographed on the steps of Rideau Hall before the governor-general himself, and he is wearing an Indian coat of beaded buckskin with a rose in his hand. Then I know at once that this man has decided to resign. Ah non, a prime minister of buckskin and roses in cold November is not clinging to office. He is escaping to private life, to the wilderness and freedom, as his nature always intended.

Clear Strategy

But that does not surprise me when he had done everything possible in the election campaign to ensure his defeat and only failed by a few votes. To a neutral observer his strategy was perfectly clear from the beginning.

When I call on him secretly he confirms my surmise. And the relief, the sheer exultation, written on that sensitive face, the flowing tears of joy, touch even the cynical heart of Hercule Poirot. Zut, I find myself weeping with him.

But then everything goes wrong. I fly to Halifax, I seek out M. Stanfield and inform him that he must take the government. Again I am witness to a harrowing scene. M. Stanfield breaks down and weeps, too, at the terrible prospect facing him. He gazes out on the misty Atlantic and utters the piercing, hoarse cry of a wild sea bird, and he pleads with me to save him from a fate far worse than opposition.

Unable to resist his pitiable entreaty, I fly back to Ottawa and appeal to M. Trudeau's better instincts. At first he is adamant. Nothing can prevent his escape. As he says, the time has come for him to enjoy a morsel of his Just Society.

But gradually I wear him down. The plight of M. Stanfield moves him as it moved me. He simply cannot do this thing to so nice a guy. At last, with a shrug of despair and a brave little smile, he agrees to stay. Greater love hath no man than this, that he endure his public life for a friend.

He removes the buckskin, he discards the rose. He puts on a dark business suit with the traditional, bourgeois poppy in his lapel and confronts the television cameras with a penitence and humility that I can only call heroic.

The crisis has passed. And when I convey the news to M. Stanfield in Halifax his shout of rapture almost shatters the telephone wire. M. Lewis also can hardly find words to express his gratitude to M. Trudeau who has rescued the NDP from the ghastly threat of another election.

The necessary housekeeping arrrangements are quickly completed. The government will reverse itself on all important policies, like economic controls. M. Stanfield will continue to denounce inflation and advocate inflationary measures of every sort. M. Lewis will voice the proper protests but make sure that the government is safe when the division bells ring, and his price for support will be reasonable.

Fortunately, M. Trudeau already has learned, in London, the art of retreat, the upside-down posture, from M. Heath, who has recently swallowed all the swords in Whitehall without damage to his health. M. Turner has been taught the science of the financial somersault on the lawn of the White House by the master, M. Nixon. The entire Canadian cabinet has conditioned itself to eating crow in the best restaurants of Hull.

So I leave Ottawa with a light heart, knowing that Canada has returned to normal. And by the way, while waiting in M. Trudeau's anteroom I scribbled on an envelope a few vagrant lines of poetry, a crude plagiarism of your Alice and Wonderland, which might possibly interest your readers.

Poetic Licence

"You are young, Father Trudeau," the old man said,
"And your eyes are still shining bright.
But soon you must learn, sir, to stand on your head,
A gruesome and comical sight."
"In my youth," replied Trudeau,
"I took life as a joke,
And politics mere fuddle-duddle.
But now that the party is battered and broke
It seems that I've ended in muddle."
"You are grieved, Brother Stanfield," the old man said,
"And your Maritime nose is quite blue,
Yet your prospects of office aren't entirely dead,
Hang on and your dream may come true."
"A nightmare!" cried Stanfield, "a cabinet of horrors,
With Dief, Hellyer and Wagner to taunt me.
No thanks, I can't face all those shadowy terrors,
The burdens of power just haunt me."
"You're middle-aged, Lewis," the old man said,
"And your corporate bums have defied you.
Your campaign chest is empty and deep in the red,
And the chances of victory deride you."
Said Lewis, "The balance of power is mine,
Why should I feel any dejection?
While boldly pursuing the socialist line,
I fear nothing, except an election."
'Tis a sad, dismal picture," the old man concluded,
"With statesmen all reeling and raving.
The public is punch-drunk, dizzy, deluded,
Is democracy, then, just past saving?"

(Hercule Poirot has returned to Europe with everyone's thanks and certain interesting gifts. When I saw him off at the airport he was wearing a familiar buckskin jacket and carrying a pale November rose.)

WILLIAM R. FRYE

A Firmer Stand on Hijackers

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Cuba no longer is an assured haven for airplane hijackers. It has become a risky undertaking to seek asylum there.

This interesting change in Cuban policy has come about gradually over a period of time. It was brought clearly — and apparently deliberately — to world attention last week when the three gunmen who had forced a Southern Airways plane to Havana the previous weekend were tossed into jail — and the passengers on the plane were given courteous and considerate treatment.

It was underlined shortly thereafter when Cuba indicated an interest in negotiating an anti-hijacking agreement with Washington, provided the agreement also covered refugee traffic from Cuba and other matters. These conditions were acceptable to Washington as a basis for negotiation.

International Pressure

There are two possible explanations. One is a wish to encourage general detente with the United States. The other is that Havana is responding to international pressure.

Both these explanations could be true, although the first seems unlikely and is not consistent with other evidence. In the UN, for example, Cuban delegates are still giving the United States the shaft on Vietnam and "colonialism" in Puerto Rico.

It remains, therefore, to explore the impact of international pressure.

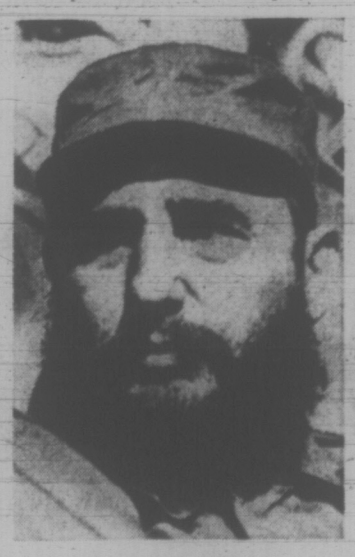
The day before the Southern Airways hijacking began, a debate was opened in the UN General Assembly on measures to combat international terrorism. The atmosphere behind the scenes was one of cynicism and discouragement; the United States, which had sought vigorous remedial action, was on the defensive, and little seemed likely to be done.

The probable outcome of this debate — in the formal sense — was little more than the establishment of a study committee, with perhaps an ambiguous and carefully ambivalent condemnation of irrational violence. Those who had contended that, in some cases, a good end could justify violent means had a balance of voting power.

Indeed, the prospects of success were so dim that chief United States delegate George Bush did not commit his prestige to the fight. He left the task to a deputy.

But apparently the judgment of total futility was premature. The very fact that a world spotlight — however flickering and faint — was being focussed on the issue had begun to influence governments.

Cuba took care to protect its flanks. When a hijacking occurred which plainly had no political overtones — the perpetrators being obvious fugitives from justice — it was dealt with severely.



FIDEL CASTRO
... new friend?

First a bid by the hijackers for asylum was received so coldly that the gunmen ordered the plane to leave Havana. They floundered about in the air, frantically groping for refuge. When they finally returned to Cuba, they were jailed.

This is, of course, precisely what the United States Government and others aroused against hijacking have hoped would happen. Denial of refuge is a formidable deterrent.

It could not have been unrelated to the fact that Cuban representatives in the UN would shortly have to defend their government's policy in that international forum. When they did speak, the tone was defiant but the substance was defensive.

It is not yet clear what Cuba will do to hijackers it considers political refugees, nor that its definition of eligibility for political asylum will parallel that of the United States.

Indeed, it is not clear that a Cuban refugee, fleeing in the other direction from Castro's island via a hijacked aircraft, would be jailed or extradited by all the other American states. The tradition of asylum is still compelling.

But at least a first step is being taken. And it must be directly traceable to the fact that, not merely in the UN but in the International Civil Aviation Organization (IACAO) and in the Airline Pilots Association, sentiment is growing for boycotts and other reprisals against countries which harbor hijackers.

Joint Boycott

Not all countries would join in such reprisals. But if, for example, Spain and Mexico joined in a boycott of Cuba, transportation by air to and from that island would be very significantly affected.

The next meaningful targets of international pressure will have to be Algeria and Libya. Without French co-operation, it may be difficult or impossible to get a head-lock on these countries; Air France carries a large share of their traffic. But it once seemed futile to try to influence Cuba.

The pace at which international action is being mobilized is frustratingly slow. It is as if a giant ocean liner had to be brought about in stormy seas. World opinion is being inched gradually around, with constant buffeting from contrary winds.

But it is reason for satisfaction that even modest gains can be recorded.

'Pagan Gods'

City Fathers and others who are concerned at this season to get maximum advantage from our harvest of foliage, will have welcomed Bruce Hutchison's article in the November 10 issue of the Times, a paragraph of which bears repeating:

"Unfortunately, all gardeners in our region of Canada, and elsewhere, are not patriotic. Incredible as it may seem, many of them burn the leaves, the perfect fertilizer, the food of vegetable life and, after necessary processing, the food of men as well, the nation's nutriment.

"Already the aged conservationist ..., could see the fires ... and sniff the sweet ... incense offered to the pagan gods of destruction."

But the Leaf Burners are pikers (and a diminishing number) beside the thousands of tons of retlaimable sewage drained to sea by the current program of water disposal in this and other communities, which, as the city fathers push aside their far-visioned wisdom, offer their fertilizer resources to the same "pagan gods of destruction."

The questionable results in the monitoring report just published, seem, in the light of a wasteful program, strangely irrelevant. And we spend our money ... to get what the weekly tabloid, "Canadian Magazine" called some time ago, "The Odour of the British Empire." — Harold T. Allen, 2140 Kings Road.

The Old Brigade

Anyone who attended the Remembrance Day Service must have been touched by the parade of Veterans.

Perhaps the sight of these brave men may have made the young people who have not known war, realize that their, and our, safety and freedom were won by men of this calibre, thousands of whom never returned home, whose memory we commemmorated.

Today there is a move to change the Veterans's Hospital into a general one.

The veterans are worthy of the very best, and all should be concerned to keep the Veterans' Hospital as it is, a home of their own, and well deserved. — Dorothy Abraham, 1125 Faithful St.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of November 20, 1912:

The visit of Sir Richard McBride, Attorney General Bowser and party, to Ottawa, must have been regarded by Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden as a blessing direct from Providence, because it provided him with the opportunity of appointing two royal commissions, one to inquire into better terms and the other to investigate the question of Indian reserves in the province. More commissions will come as soon as he and Sir Richard have time to work them out.

'A Return to Basic Values'

Nixon Charts a Conservative Course

By GARNETT D. HORNER
Washington Star-News

President Richard Nixon, promising the U.S. people the rigors of self-reliance instead of the soft life, said he hopes to use the second term to lead the nation out of a crisis of the spirit.

In an interview he vowed to work to end "the whole era of permissiveness" and to nurture "a new feeling of responsibility, a new feeling of self-discipline.

"... We have passed through a very great spiritual crisis." He added that the Vietnam war was "blamed for it totally" by many but said the war was really "only part of the problem and in many cases was only an excuse rather than a reason."

Puritan Fervor

With a puritan fervor he has seldom shown in public, Mr. Nixon seemed to be closing the door on a time in which he felt the country had been pampered and indulged, leaving its character weakened. "The average American," he said, "is just like the child in the family. You give him some responsibility and he is going to amount to something. He is going to do something.

"If, on the other hand, you make him completely dependent and pamper him and cater to him too much, you are going to make him soft, spoiled and eventually a very weak individual."

He had just come through a campaign, the President recalled, in which he "didn't go out with a whole bag full of goodies."

Fat and Bloated

And he made it clear that there will be few social goodies in his second administration.

He singled out the federal payroll as a prime target for his attention. He said some departments are "too fat, too bloated," and that civilian defence department employees "are getting in the way of each other." His remedy: a thinning out all through the government, including the White House.

He noted suggestions that, no longer facing the problem of re-election, he might be more free to advocate massive new social programs aimed at curing domestic ills. "Nothing," he said, "could be further from the mark." He predicted, however, that the next four years would be an exciting period — on the international front because "we are going to continue to play a great role in the world" and domestically because of his determination to build a new national spirit.

He said his general approach to the presidency "is probably that of a Disraeli Conservative — a strong foreign policy, strong adherence to basic values that the nation believes in and people believe in ..."

Repeatedly, during the interview at his San Clemente office, he indicated the conservative course — he called it basically centrist — he was charting for the next four years:

Throwing Dollars

● "This country has enough on its plate in the way of huge new spending programs, social programs, throwing dollars at problems ... reform using money more effectively will be the mark of this Administration.

● "I honestly believe that government in Washington is too big and is too expensive ... we can do the job better with fewer people.

● "I am convinced that the total tax burden of the American people, federal, state and local, has reached the breaking point. It can go no higher.

● "It is our responsibility to find a way to reform our government institutions so that this new spirit of independence, self-reliance, pride that I sense in the American people can be nurtured."

In addition to setting the overall tone for his next four years, the President dealt with a wide range of specific subjects. Some highlights:

Vietnam: He is "completely confident we are going to have a settlement" there. "You can bank on it."

Foreign policy: The second round of arms limitations talks with the Soviet Union starting this month will be more important than the first. The Middle East "will have a very high priority." U.S. policy toward Cuba will not change unless Premier Fidel Castro changes his attitude.

Domestic policy: He will "shuck off" and "trim down" social programs set up in the sixties that he considers massive failures largely because they just "threw money at the problems."

Taxes: "There will be no solution of problems that require a tax increase." He is convinced the tax burden has reached "the breaking point."

Military Exempt

Mr. Nixon was perhaps most emphatic in asserting "I honestly believe that government in Washington is too big and it is too expensive." He conceded it is difficult to reduce the number of federal workers, but said "you can be sure that we are going to make an effort." He said there are areas — drug abuse prevention, law enforcement and social security, for example — where employees need to grow as the population grows. He also exempted "military personnel" and weapons from anything but "minimal" cuts.

"But in terms of the masses of civilian employees who are getting in the way of each other over in the Pentagon and around the country, they are going to have to take a thinning down." Noting that "there is a huge turnover in government to begin with," He indicated hope that attrition through retirements and resignations will make it unnecessary to fire many government workers.

The president advanced no special solutions to domestic problems in such areas as the cities, housing, education and health care, which some Americans believe defy conservation solutions. But he said that if he gets "proper support" in Congress his Administration will accomplish "more significant reform" than any since Franklin D. Roosevelt's 1932 reforms — but "in a different direction."

Diffuse Power

"Roosevelt's reforms led to bigger and bigger power in Washington," he said. "It was perhaps needed then. The country's problems were so massive they couldn't be handled otherwise. The reforms that we are instituting are ones which will diffuse the power throughout the country and which will make (federal) government leaner, but in a sense will make it stronger. After all, fat government is weak, weak in handling the problems."

He emphasized, too, that "I feel very strongly — you can't take an extreme right position that if you ignore them the problems will go away."

Basic to his approach to future problem-solving the President made clear, is that "there will be no solutions of problems that require a tax increase." Even if he felt that spending more money was the best way to solve a problem, he couldn't go down that line "because more important than more money to solve a problem is to avoid a tax increase."

He strongly indicated he does not go along with the fear of some people that there is a dangerous swing to the right in the United States.

Taking a poke at what he called the "limousine liberal set" of the northeast, he said the "liberal establishment" had thought he was "out of touch with the country" for the past four years. But "that is not true."

He said his position was not "over on the far right" but "basically ... simply in the centre" in standing for a strong national defence, for peace, for racial balance, against permissiveness, against amnesty for draft-dodgers and deserters, against legalizing marijuana.

The president spoke with deep feeling about his desire to "exert that kind of leadership" required to make all Americans proud of their country. "I think that the tragedy of the Sixties is that so many Americans, and particularly so many young Americans, lost faith in their country, in the American system, in their country's foreign policy. Many were influenced to believe that they should be ashamed of our country's foreign policy, and what we were doing in the world ...

"Many Americans got the impression that this was an ugly country, racist, not compassionate, and part of the reason for this was the tendency of some to take every mole that we had and to make it look like a cancer."

Conceding that "there is much that is wrong that needs to be corrected," he referred to his world travels and said he knew no young person abroad who wouldn't rather be in the United States if he had the chance.

He said he thought his trips to Peking and Moscow led people to see that "the United States was leading the world in peace," and so built pride in the U.S. role in foreign policy.

Spiritual Crisis

In discussing the U.S. "spiritual crisis" he put the blame largely on a breakdown "in frankly what I would call the leadership class." He said, for example, that "the enormous movement toward permissiveness which led to the escalation in crime ... came as a result of those of us who have basically a responsibility of leadership not recognizing that above everything else you must not weaken a people's character."

Here he volunteered a reiteration of his intention to continue to "appoint conservative judges to the courts ... not reactionary judges but men who are constitutional conservatives, because the trend had gone too far in the other direction."

Then came a vigorous affirmation of what seem to be a central core of Nixon philosophy. He stressed a strong belief that the election would demonstrate that "the American people will thrive upon a new feeling of responsibility, a new feeling of self-discipline, rather than go back to the thoughts of the Sixities that it was government's job every time there was a problem, to make people more and more dependent upon it, to give way to their whims.

Quebec Vote Pattern Denies 'Rebuff'

By DOUGLAS FISHER

Since the election some odd interpretations have flourished on what its results mean for English-French relations in Canada.

Did English-Canada rebuff French Canada? Did the strength of the vote against Trudeau in Ontario and the West come from a rejection of him as a French-Canadian who was determinedly installing and enhancing French power in Ottawa? Were those who voted for other than Trudeau candidates mainly rejecting the conception of federalism which he has advocated and installed?

Here is a bare-bones sketch of the matter during and since the election. The only preface to it I want to emphasize is that Mr. Trudeau himself has been chary about the line that his present awkward position came about through anti-French forces.

Two provincial by-elections were held in Quebec during the federal campaign. Liberal candidates supporting Premier Bourassa won handily. The Separatists of Rene Levesque did poorly. Premier Bourassa and some federal Liberals hailed these results as a victory for federalism and an indication that separatism was waning. To most people the results reflected a stable and fairly popular provincial government.

Mr. Trudeau noted the by-election results with satisfaction. It fitted his theme that federalism was ascendant if not victorious in French Canada.

In the campaign Mr. Trudeau did not appeal strongly to English-Canada—as he did in 1968—that he and his party were the best and only means to sustain federalism. At the campaign's close, he reviewed it, candidly. He noted that he might have made more of the "national unity" issue and had not. At no time did he charge his chief rivals, Messrs. Stanfield and Lewis, with dishonesty in their Quebec policies.

Mr. Stanfield put his hopes in Quebec on the shoulders of Claude Wagner. As his campaign closed, Mr. Stanfield repudiated a few of his followers who seemed to be exploiting anti-French grievances.

No one in politics or in the media before election night really made or sustained the anti-French charge in any major way. Even in Ottawa where bilingualism in the civil service was openly debated there was really not a wide disparity in the attitudes on the matter as expressed by Liberal and Conservative candidates.

Premier Bourassa dissociated himself from the federal campaign. Some of his ministers did, others did not. At the least, Mr. Bourassa had a benevolent neutrality. Most other premiers of Tory and NDP persuasion were openly for their federal leaders but none appeared as anti-French or anti-Quebec.

Election night came. The government did well in Quebec, holding its strength from 1968. It did somewhat better in the Maritimes. The Tories did even worse than their poor showing in Quebec.

The NDP were nowhere in Quebec. Social Credit held well. Its leader, of course, had continued his strong advocacy of federalism. The PQ failed to get the level of ballot-spoiling it had sought to elicit.

The loss of some 40 Liberal seats in the election took place largely in Ontario and B.C.

The final results were oscillating late on election night when the likes of Jean Marchand began to see the result as a rebuff of the French fact in Ottawa as developed by Mr. Trudeau. He was soon supported by the brilliant Senator Lamontagne and others.

This general thesis that English-Canada had disliked the power and prestige given French ministers and French officials is such a touchy one that many politicians and most editorialists have backed away from it. This includes many Liberals.

Mr. Trudeau did not encourage the interpretation. Those few Liberals in English Canada who took it up seemed to be the hot-heads. One thinks of Rosedale's anti-redneck, Donald Macdonald. None of the leading, elected persons in the other parties has seen the result as a rejection of French presence and power in Ottawa.

Two weeks after the election the group most disturbed about its consequences seems to be the English community of Quebec. Its voters went overboard for Trudeau candidates. If English Canada rebuffed Trudeau, why didn't these people (or those in Newfoundland) join the swing?

Perhaps Quebec Anglophones have never been in touch or in tune with the ideas and aspirations of the people in Ontario and the West. Certainly, they are much more skittery about separatism. Certainly, it's common sense that they should have much more trust in Mr. Trudeau as the arm of federalism than in Mr. Bourassa or in any other federal leaders.

Mr. Trudeau, himself, was re-elected overwhelmingly in an English-speaking riding. In contrast, Mr. Pepin, a most able minister, was knocked out in a French-speaking riding. Indeed, if the English vote in Quebec that went Liberal is separated from the French vote that went Liberal, the difference accents the reality that Mr. Trudeau and the Liberals are hardly the absolute favorites with French-Canadians that those who talk of "rebuff" seem to suggest.

And if, the gods forbid, there is merit in the Liberal view that only that party is equipped, mentally and organizationally, to deserve the support of Quebec voters, the cause of party politics in Canada is hopeless.

Islands on the Brink

By SAM UBA

"An agricultural economy, created by empire in an empty island and always meant to be part of something larger, now given a thing called independence and set adrift, an abandoned barracoon, incapable of economic or cultural autonomy."

That is the rather angry description of Mauritius, the group of tiny islands in the south-west Indian Ocean which became an independent member of the Commonwealth in 1968, in a new book by V. S. Naipaul, The Overcrowded Barracoon and Other Articles.

It is an apt description. Mauritius is not the only overcrowded barracoon on the brink of social and economic disaster. Even Trinidad, Naipaul's own country, is something of a barracoon. So are most of the other islands in the West Indies and West Africa. All are artificial creations, with no sense of community and solidarity or common beliefs and traditions.

These mini-states dotted round the globe are perhaps the most ignominious bequest of Western imperialism. People who wonder why so many Third World countries succumb so easily to dictatorship often forget that these are artificial creations with built-in ingredients of self-destruction. The colonial powers uprooted conquered peoples to establish markets or spheres of commercial, political and military influence, not political communities. The task of transforming those markets into nations began after their departure.

The problem has been to build a nation with an economy and institutions designed to build and maintain markets. The task has proved daunting and many nations are cracking. That may not be the whole explanation for the instability and poverty of the small nations of the Third World, but it is sufficient justification for expecting more liberal aid and better understanding from the West.

But if the ills of the new nations can be justifiably blamed on Western imperialism, what about the big homogeneous nations whose civilisations predate Western civilisation? Why, for instance, are India, Ethiopa and China still backward, underdeveloped and apparently unable to come to grips with their problems? To seek the answer is to seek an assault on the senses, for the answer is neither edifying nor flattering. No wonder we never try. But Naipaul makes a brave attempt and his essay, A Second Visit, written after a sentimental journey to India in 1967, provides the answer in as pitiless a manner as only a true patriot can do.

"The gap between India and the West is not only the increasing gap in wealth, technology and knowledge," he writes, "it is, more alarmingly, the increasing gap in sensibility and wisdom. The West is alert, many-featured and ever-changing; its writers and philosophers respond to complexity by continually seeking to alter and extend sensibility; no art or attitude stands still. India possesses only its unexamined past and its pathetic spirituality. The Indian philosopher specializes in exegesis; the holy man wishes to rediscover only what has been discovered ... India is simple; the West grows wiser."

Almost every African and Oriental country, except Japan, shares this pre-occupation with myth and magic. We still glorify yesterday and worship at the strange altar of philistinism while the rest of the world races to the moon and stars. The Chinese, in spite of a world ready to receive them with open arms, behave like mysterious creatures and still call Westerners barbarians. Ethiopians cling religiously to the mythical view that their very mortal emperor is the "King of Kings, Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah and the Elect of God."

According to Time magazine, Vinoba Bhave, the so-called Bihar land reformer, once said of his fellow Indians: "We are a people wedded to faith in God and do not give ourselves to the quibblings of reason. We believe in what our Rishis (sages) have taught us. I have the feeling that the present-day famines and other calamities are all due to our sins."

Naipaul attributes the Indian stagnation to intellectural failure, which is "less a failure of the individual intellect than the deficiency of a closed civilization, ruled by ritual and myth;" a lamentation of an over-anglicized Indian, perhaps (Naipaul is a Trinidad Indian now living as a writer in England). Indeed most of the articles that form this book read like lamentations, albeit lamentations that reveal a perception and power of observation and analysis that is rare among coloured writers.

After my own experiences in Africa and travels in Europe, I have come to accept that there is a lot in Professor Jensen's theory that differences in intelligence and achievement are dictated primarily by the genes of heredity. His conclusion that on average white people are most intelligent and adventurous than blacks I accept without qualification.

Sask. NDP for Potash Takeover

SASKATOON (CP) — Delegates to the Saskatchewan New Democratic party's annual convention at the weekend decided that the province's potash industry should be nationalized.

The 600 delegates, in plenary session, approved a resolution asking the province to seriously consider nationalizing the industry so that the people will receive adequate dividends from potash production.

Sunday, Premier Allan Blakeney received a standing ovation as his leadership of the party went unchallenged.

Blakeney first was elected leader of the party in July, 1970, replacing retiring Woodrow Lloyd. The New Democrats toppled the sseven-year-old Liberal government of Ross Thatcher one year later.

VOTE READINESS

The premier said the provincial party has a responsibility to be ready for another federal election, which problably will be held soon.

The convention was told by Grant Noteley, Alberta NDP leader, that the oil industry is draining funds from his province.

Notley said the Progressive Conservative government's policies on oil and natural gas revenues in Alberta had permitted a hemmorhage of capital to flow to the United Tates.

The delegates also said a Saskatchewan oil corporation should be eftablished.

This corporation, they said, in addition to the co-operatives, should attempt to "repair those abuses that have existed under the influence of privately-owned oil corporations."

The assembly also voted to urge the government to establish province-wide negotiations on teacher salaries under which all teachers would be paid on the same salary grid.

Another resolution asked the government to take action to prevent land ownership from "foreign, corporate or absent landlords for speculation and limit farm size."

BACK BOYCOTT

The provincial NDP re-endorsed its support for the National Farmers' Union boycott of products made by Kraft Foods of Canada but defeated a motion urging the government to require groups receiving government grants to observe the boycott.

Delegates were told Saturday that Saskatchewan's Metis people were not satisfied with becoming involved in "token decision making."

Dr. Howard Adams, a delegate to the meeting and an advisor to the Metis group, said the Metis people felt they were not adequately represented in the government's new Northern Saskatchewan department.

He made the comments following a regular session after 20 Metis people — persons of mixed Indian-white ancestry — picketed the convention alleging they had been barred from taking part.

Thwarted by attempts during a regular plenary session to present their complaints, spokesmen for the Metis group were allowed to speak to the delegates after regular business was disposed of.

Kingston Prison Guards Force End to Protest

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A five-day, sit-down protest by prisoners at Joyceville institution ended today when guards forced the men back into their cells.

Warden C. W. Chitty said the decision was taken to end the protest because security facilities were being tampered with by some prisoners.

He said there was no resistance by prisoners who were back in their cells by 7:30 a.m.

The sit-down began last Tuesday night when prisoners refused to return to their cells or resume work duties. They remained in large, sealed-off range areas.

The demonstration was to protest the cancellation of a six-month experiment to permit visits among prisoners.

Warden Chitty said some prisoners were tampering with the range doors which placed the safety of the public, non-involved prisoners and the institution in jeopardy.

In a news release Sunday, prisoners said the cancellation of the open-door policy "greatly retards an inmate's opportunity for rehabilitation."

Prison officials said the experiment "generally lessened security" at the institution, although no specific regulations were violated.

100% Failure In Air Bag Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Automobile Association asked the government to suspend the regulation that it said would force the installation of air bags in 1976 cars while ousting safety belts.

It said air bags have an "almost 100 per cent failure rate" in public demonstrations.

The AAA cited also the U.S. department of transport, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Ralph Nader and his Centre for Auto Safety for what it termed prematurely "selling" the air bag to the public.

Pact Ratified

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild Sunday ratified a two-year contract with Pacific Press Ltd. The guild is the last of six unions to ratify the agreement, which includes a $1.24-an-hour increase for key personnel.

The contract was reached Nov. 7 following a marathon 54-hour negotiating session after 28 truck drivers, affiliated with the pressmen's union, went on strike against S and P Distributors Ltd., which distributes the Province and the evening Sun newspapers.

Nine Killed

At least nine persons were killed in accidents in British Columbia during the weekend, all on the highways.

In the worst accident, two men from eastern B.C. died in a head-on crash Saturday, 15 miles west of Princeton. Single-car accidents, all but one on the lower mainland, claimed five lives.

Coalition Idea Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Conservative leader Derril Warren said Sunday he has abandoned any hope of a possible Tory-Social Credit coalition as a right-wing force to oppose the New Democratic Party in B.C.

Sharp Did His Bit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harold Steeves, NDP MLA for Richmond, told an anti-war rally Saturday that External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp "did his little bit" to re-elect President Nixon by announcing that Canadians might be used in a Vietnam peacekeeping force.

What counts is what comes with the keys.

Yes, we rent cars. But excellence is our business.

And no businessman can afford to discount excellence. Hertz certainly doesn't . . . for any reason. That's why we became the leader in the car rental business. Our standard of excellence is based on this premise:

"Each Hertz customer is an individual. He is entitled to the car he wants; when and as he wants it; to the best car . . . serviced to provide top performance; and he is entitled to the best service possible."

Renting a car is not just renting a set of keys. What counts is what comes with them. And Hertz offers more than anyone else in the business.

Hertz leads the way.

Bowater Votes No To Trafalgar Offer

LONDON (CP) — Directors of Bowater Corp. Ltd., which has a major paper-making stake in Canada, are due to meet late today in a possible board reorganization as a sequel to rejection by shareholders of the $300-million takeover bid by Trafalgar House Investments Ltd.

In a narrow vote, Bowater shareholders approved a $225-million merger with Ralli International Ltd., a big commodity company which Bowater maintains is making rapid profits.

The outcome of the shareholders' vote became known after a marathon counting procedure which began Friday.

The vote went 16.8 million in favor Bowater chairman J. Martin Ritchie's plan for the company's takeover of Ralli, and 15.7 million aganst.

It climaxed a week which had seen both Bowater, the world's biggest newsprint maker, and Trafalgar House carrying on a battle of newspaper advertisements in an all-out effort to sway shareholder opinion prior to the Friday balloting.

SPOKE OF CHANGES

Chairman Nigel Broackes of Trafalgar House, which took over the Cunard shipping line last year, had earlier spoken of further rationalization of Bowater's holdings in the event his bid was successful.

The company includes part ownership of a pulp and paper mill at Corner Brook, Nfld., among its north American interests.

Bowater recently embarked on a 50-per-cent partnership arrangment with Kruger Pulp and Paper Ltd. of Montreal for the Corner Brook mill.

Ritchie himself, however, came in for considerable criticism from shareholders at the general meeting.

A major factor in the approval of the Ralli merger was the 12-per-cent holding of London financier James Slater in Bowater. He also owned 15 per cent of Ralli.

PROVIDES EXPERIENCE

He will have six per cent of the combined Bowater-Ralli company, conceived as a way of providing more administrative experience for the trading company and extra sales flair for the paper-making group.

Expected to be made members of the Bowater board today were Ralli chairman Malcolm Horsman and two of his directors.

Ritchie said the outcome of the vote resulted from the support given his policy by the small shareholders in Bowater, 70 per cent of whom endorsed the Ralli deal.

Broackes said Trafalgar House has not yet withdrawn its bid for Bowater. But he doubted whether Trafalgar's advisers will discover anything sufficiently tangible in the current situation to upset the Bowater Ralli merger.

Ralli's shareholders also voted on the merger with Bowater, with 60 per cent of them in favor.

Gas Market Share Eyed By Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Resources Minister Gilles Masse, in a policy statement on Quebec's energy needs and resources, placed high priority on reducing the province's dependence on outside energy sources, especially in oil and gas.

The document, titled The Objectives of a Quebec Energy Policy, recommends an expanded role for the Societe Quebecoise d'Initiative Petrolieres (SOQUIP), the government-owned petroleum development corporation in the field of gas and oil.

SOQUIP, the paper says, must operate in production, transport, storage, refining and distribution. Its role up to now has been in oil and gas exploration, carried out with government subsidies in conjunction with private companies.

The policy statement says that with an expanded role, the company should be able to finance future exploration from its own revenues.

It says Quebec's natural gas network, now restricted to the Montreal area, must be expanded to include all principal urban and industrial centres.

The paper, also recommended diversification of gas supply sources, now almost entirely obtained from Western Canada, in order to lower gas rates. It suggested making more use of liquified petroleum gases imported in large quantities.

Big Linerboard Mill Takes in U.S. Firm

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland has signed an agreement with Rand-Whitney Container Corp. of Worcester, Mass., for marketing linerboard from a giant mill at Stephenville.

Premier Frank Moores told a news conference the agreement includes a provision for the company to "participate in the ownership of the mill . . . at the earliest practical time."

The premier said International Forest Products Corp., a Rand-Whitney company, would be exclusive sales agent for Labrador Linerboard Ltd., the Crown corporation that owns the mill

The mill, to cost about $151 million upon completion, will begin production of the smooth exterior facing of corrugated cardboard around mid-December.

Annual production is estimated at 450,000 tons.

"The decision of the government to proceed with International Forest Products Corp. was based on the fact that International . . . has expressed a serious intention to participate in the ownership of the linerboard mill at the earliest practical time," Moores said.

TALKED TO OTHERS

He said the company was chosen after government negotiations with about 60 firms.

A number of Canadian companies were interested in becoming marketing agents but none would agree to eventually consider partial equity or outright purchase of the mill, the premier said.

Robert K. Kraft, Rand-Whitney president, said the company is "anxiously" looking forward to the time when it will be able to make a "realistic" offer for purchase of equity.

The mill and an associated woods operation in Southern Labrador was started by Canadian Javelin Ltd., headed by John C. Doyle.

About 4,500 applications have been received for the 1,400 permanent jobs at the mill.

Finance Minister John C. Crosbie said the annual payroll at the mill will be $5.2 million with another $4.9 million going to Labrador loggers.

Cosmos Meet Set

TORONTO (CP) — Creditors of Cosmos Imperial Mills Ltd. will meet here Dec. 1 to consider a proposal for the company's reorganization under the Bankruptcy Act.

Alan K. Kemp-Gee, trustee under the proposed reorganization, says in a letter to creditors that the company lost $726,000 during the nine months ended Sept. 30 following a loss of $1.4 million in 1971.

The letter says the federal department of regional economic expansion and the governments of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick offered grants and loans totalling more than $1 million earlier this year to assist the company in consolidating its operations in the Maritimes. Plants at Hamilton and Trenton, Ont., will be closed.

But before the documents were signed, company results were falling below expectations on which the grants were allowed and the original program for government assistance was not carried out.

"However, the company believes that upon completion of the plans to restructure the Marysville, N.B., and Yarmouth, N.S., plants, the operation of Cosmos will be profitable," the letter says.

J. L. Biddell, a court-appointed interim receiver and president of Clarkson Co. Ltd. of Toronto, said in an interview that if the reorganization proposal is not accepted by creditors, there would be no payment to unsecured creditors and the investment of shareholders will be wiped out.

It's Wild Blue For Dolphins As Jets Sink

It's Super Bowl or bust, says coach Don Shula.

"We've got to get this football team ready to start the playoffs," said Shula after the Dolphins won the American Football Conference's Eastern Division title with a 28-24 come-from-behind win over New York Jets Sunday.

Shula said he wouldn't take anything less than a return to the NFL's championship game.

The Dolphins were humiliated in the Super Bowl last year by Dallas Cowboys.

"Sure, winning a division championship is important," said Shula, "but now we've got the second season to think about."

In winning the division title, the Dolphins took their 10th straight victory this year. With four games to go, they threaten to become only the third team in NFL history to finish a regular season undefeated.

HE'S NOT EXCITED

That aspect of the season doesn't particularly excite the Dolphins' field boss.

"Certainly, winning is important, foremost," said Shula, "but if anybody's injured we're going to try to get them healthy for the post-season games — even if it means not using our best and losing a few regular-season games."

While Miami won the AFC East, the NFL's remaining division titles were still undecided after Sunday's action.

STEELERS BOUNCED

Cleveland Browns bounced Pittsburgh Steelers 26-24 and threw their AFC Central race into a tie; Oakland crushed Denver 37-20 and moved 1½ games up on Kansas City Chiefs in the AFC West. The Chiefs were beaten 27-17 by San Diego Chargers.

In the National Football Conference, Dallas Cowboys smashed Philadelphia Eagles 28-7 and moved within a half-game of leading Washington in the East. The Redskins play tonight against Atlanta Falcons, who are tied for first in the West.

Los Angeles fell into a tie with Atlanta after dropping a 45-41 decision to Minnesota Vikings. Green Bay held on to first in the Central by one game after beating Houston Oilers 23-10.

COLTS EDGE BENGALS

In the other games, it was: Baltimore 20, Cincinnati 19; Buffalo 27, New England 24; Detroit 27, New Orleans 14; New York 13, St. Louis 7 and San Francisco 34, Chicago 21.

Safety Dick Anderson set up two Miami touchdowns with a pass interception and fumble recovery as the Dolphins beat the Jets in a heart-stopping game decided in the closing quarter.

Major Bowl Games Set

By The Associated Press

Several teams that will occupy berths in the major United States college football bowl games at year end were decided Saturday.

Top-rated Southern California nailed down the host role in the Rose Bowl with a 24-7 triumph over 14th-ranked UCLA. The Trojans will meet the winner of next weekend's showdown between third-ranked Michigan, a late 9-6 winner over Purdue, and No. 9 Ohio State, which turned back Northwestern 27-14.

National runner-up Alabama mauled Virginia Tech 52-13 and accepted a bid to the Cotton Bowl against seventh-ranked Texas, which blanked Texas Christian 27-0.

Oklahoma, ranked fourth, trounced Kansas 31-7 to set up this Thursday's decisive Thanksgiving Day battle against defending national champion Nebraska. Oklahoma immediately approved a return trip to the Sugar Bowl, this time against No. 6 Penn State, which wore down Boston College 45-26.

Nebraska walloped Kansas State 59-7 and will make a third straight trip to the Orange Bowl in Miami. The opponent will be No. 10 Notre Dame, a hard-pressed 20-17 victor over the University of Miami.

Eighth-ranked Louisiana State scored twice in the final quarter to defeat Mississippi State 28-14 a couple of hours after the Tigers accepted a berth in the Astro-luebonnet Bowl . There they will face Southeastern Conference rival and 13th-ranked Tennessee, which beat Mississippi 17-0 and ended the Rebels' string of 15 straight bowl appearances.

The Peach Bowl went for a pair of unranked but explosive teams after North Carolina State trounced Clemson 42-17 and West Virginia saddled Syracuse with its first losing campaign since 1949 by a 43-12 count. Florida State missed out by losing to South Carolina 24-21.

TYPICAL DEFENSIVE play by Ottawa Rough Riders has backs Al Marcelin (31) and Dick Adams (33) blanketing Hamilton flanker Garney Henley as pass play goes incomplete during Eastern Football Conference final in Ottawa. Riders won 19-7 to take 12-point lead into return game in Hamilton Sunday. (CP Wirephoto)

Lead Not Enough To Suit Rider Coach

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa-Rough Riders take a 12-point lead into Hamilton Sunday as a result of Saturday's 19-7 win over the Tiger-Cats, but according to Rider coach Jack Gotta, it doesn't mean a thing.

"I was hoping for 20 to 22 points but the 12 we have really are nothing," said Gotta after Ottawa won the opening game of the Eastern Football Conference two-game, total-point series.

"If we were going down for a sudden-death game, we'd have to give away 10 or 12 points just for being in their home park."

This was Ottawa's first win in four games this season over the Ti-Cats and was due in big part to the way the Riders were able not only to keep Hamilton quarterback Chuck Ealey in his protective pocket most of the day but also to throw him for losses again and again.

If you play Ealey only once a season, "he'll kill you," said Gotta. "But over several games, you get to know a bit about him."

Riders knew enough Saturday to limit Hamilton to a net ground gain of five yards. Ealey completed 13 of 28 passes for another 197 yards.

Ottawa racked up a game offence of 436 yards with Rick Cassata passing for 321 and the ground attack gaining 115.

Rhome Nixon's high leap for a pass in the first quarter and Art Cantrelle's four-yard run in the third were the touchdown plays for Ottawa.

Gerry Organ had a convert and field goals of 10 and 23 yards for the other Ottawa points.

After holding Hamilton off the scoreboard for 58 minutes, Riders lost their shutout on a 12-yard touchdown throw from Ealey to Garney Henley. Ian Sunter converted.

While Riders' fans have become used to standout performances from the defence, they received a rare treat Saturday as Cassata directed his forces to impressive air and ground gains.

Cantrelle rushed nine times for 39 yards and Alan Thompson carried 11 times for 35.

Terry Wellesley grabbed three Cassata passes for 91 yards while Nixon got 86 yards on seven receptions.

Henley's four catches, two of them in the dying moments, accounted for 80 yards; Tony Gabriel caught four passes for 49.

The Hamilton ground game was Dave Buchanan 10 carries for two yards, Dave Fleming one carry for three and Ealey six carries for no gain.

Riders were in a gambling mood Saturday as they tried to pile up enough points to cushion them against Sunday's final in Hamilton.

They gambled twice on third and short situations and lost the ball once as a result. They were successful with their short kick-off attempt but gave up the ball on the next play on one of three Hamilton interceptions.

The Riders also had a touch-down called back. Cassata threw to Hugh Oldham in the end zone but the play was erased on a holding call.

Reporters wanting to talk to coach Jerry Williams after the game had to wait while he administered a tongue-lashing to his players.

Richmond, which enjoyed 6-0, 13-0 and 26-0 quarter leads, now meets South Delta in the final here this coming Sunday.

Kickout Duel Decides West

WINNIPEG (CP) — Jim Thorpe of Winnipeg Blue Bombers suggested last week the rule that gives a team a chance to get a single point on a missed field goal should be thrown out.

He's probably more convinced he's right today. Because of that rule, the season is over for Thorpe and the Bombers, while Saskatchewan Roughriders go on to the Grey Cup by virtue of a 27-24 win over Winnipeg Sunday.

ODDS-ON CHOICE

Sunday, Winnipeg, an odds-on favorite to knock off the Roughriders, was forced to return kicks from the end zone with only seconds remaining on the clock. Following the second kick from the end zone, Winnipeg was called for giving no yards to a punt receiver and Saskatchewan got another chance at a field goal. It was good and Saskatchewan won the Western Football Conference championship.

Place-kicker Jack Abendschan missed a 34-yard field-goal with six seconds left. Winnipeg kicked it out, Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster booted the ball back into the end zone and the Bombers again returned it to the field.

SECOND TRY GOOD

But Winnipeg was assessed the no-yards penalty and, with no time showing on the clock, Abendschan's second try from the 32 was successful. The game can't end on a penalty.

A dejected Winnipeg coach Jim Spavital said the no-yards penalty was a good call, but said the same penalty should have been assessed Saskatchewan when Bombers' Mike Law fielded Abendschen's wide field goal attempt.

It was the running of fullback George Reed and costly roughing penalties against Winnipeg that allowed the Roughriders to move into a 24-24 tie with three minutes left.

Winnipeg led 21-7 at half-time and 24-14 going into the final quarter.

But on the final play of the third quarter Mickey Doyle left the game with a broken leg. That, both clubs agreed, was the vital turning point.

"When Mickey got hurt that was it . . . our outside was hurting, they ran all over us," Spavital said afterwards.

'IT REALLY HURT'

Lancaster said "it really hurt them when Doyle got hurt. They had to put (Phil) Minnick in the middle and (Paul) Robson on the outside. Robson isn't as strong as Minnick. It was the linebackers who stopped our running game in the first half."

Roughriders, third-place finishers in the West this season, managed only 62 yards rushing in the first half but romped for 138 in the second half, mostly by Reed.

The punishing fullback carried 26 times for 156 yards and two touchdowns. Al Ford got the other Saskatchewan major while Abendschan added two field goals and three converts.

Bob Larose caught two touchdown passes for Winnipeg. Defensive end Jim Heighton scored the other when he recovered a blocked punt in the end zone and quarterback Don Jonas added one field goal, two converts and a single.

Winnipeg had opportunities to put the game out of reach. The team penetrated inside the Saskatchewan 30-yard-line three times in the second quarter and came away with one point.

Cougars Take 'One for the Road'

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Victoria coach Mitch Pechet figures his Cougars "made their own breaks" in a 6-3 Western Canada Hockey League victory over Swift Current Broncos.

Swift Current coach Stan Dunn hinted "another time or another place" will bring the Broncos a measure of revenge.

Both had a point.

Pechet could single out goaltender Sam Clegg and captain Dale Cook as two players who manufactured most of Cougars' "breaks."

Clegg came up with one of his best efforts as a Cougar, stopping 43 shots to thwart the fast-shooting and hustling Broncos. He made 20 of his saves in the third period, and at least five at the expense of Kelly Pratt.

Pratt banged in two of the three Bronco goals, but "should've had" four or five.

Cook started a Victoria comeback from an early 2-0 deficit by scoring Cougars' first goal and drawing assists on two of his team's next three goals.

Cook never drew an assist on Victoria's third goal, scored by Don Dziakyk, but it was the Cougar captain who helped set it up.

Cook opened the door on that one by manufacturing a trip as he skated past Swift Current goalie Henry Durking. The netminder was tagged with a tripping penalty and Dzaidyk came around moments later to bang in his power-play goal.

It marked the fourth straight game that the astute Cook had been "tripped" by opposing goalies.

Brad Richardson, making it eight in six games as a Cougar, Terry Ewasiuk and Dave Faulkner, with two, scored Victoria's other goals.

Dunn conceded Clegg was Swift Current's biggest stumbling block, but came to realize "it wasn't going to be our night" because of two penalty calls and the Arena timepiece.

He expressed doubts about the validity of Faulkner's first goal, coming with only one second remaining in the first period. The big centre-ice clock showed time had expired but a more official and exact dial at the timer's bench made it 19:59.

The tripping call on Durkin and a high-sticking major assessed Rick Austin were the penalties that incensed Dunn.

Austin drew his five-minute penalty at 11:50 of the third period for a hit that cut Victoria defenceman Ed Boucha on the face. The Swift Current camp, to a man, claimed referee Malcolm Ashford never saw the incident and allowed one of his two linesmen to make the call.

Broncos, at that point, trailed 5-3 and the five-minute disadvantage killed Swift Current's hopes of a comeback.

Wally Iverson had fired the big salvo and most of the glory belonged to Mainland bowlers when the gunning for strikes and spares ended Sunday evening at Mayfair Lanes.

Keglers from the Vancouver area grabbed all of the titles and the major share of the cash prizes in the annual men's provincial handicap tournament staged by the B.C. Tenpin Association.

Iverson, the veteran Vancouverite who long has made a habit of collecting tenpin titles, chalked up the highest individual series in the four-day tourney that stretched over two weekends.

Competing in the doubles event with Bob Leigh, Iverson blasted the pins for a 708 triple that included a sizzling 268 single. Leigh added a three-game tally of 566 and the partners, working with a skimpy handicap total of 86, nailed down the doubles crown with a net count of 1,360.

Iverson, including singles of 248 and 238, also notched a 617 series in the team event and appears a probable winner of scratch all-events honors in the list that has yet to be compiled by tournament officials.

DUNCAN WINS SINGLES

Mainlanders Norm Rodg- and Jim Olson (1,090-256—1,346) nailed down second place in doubles, with the Victoria combination of Brian Cooper and Scott Davies (1,119-222—1,341) taking third money.

With Jerry Duncan (517-194—711) setting the pace, the Lower Mainland boys snatched all but one of the 10 top places in singles. The only Islander to crack the list of leaders was Victoria's Rudy Riecheneder, who salvaged ninth place.

Snoopy of Vancouver came up with a big effort to snatch the team title away from the Victoria quintet of Ramblers, leaders after the opening weekend. The Snoopy crew racked up a count of 3,258 (2,808-450) to top the Victorians by 23 pins.

Larry Hatch Jr. boomed out a net tally of 1,975 for a narrow triumph in the scramble for the handicap all-events title as Vancouver entrants collected the first five prizes before Victoria's Ken Schulz broke into the money list. Hatch topped Cec Richardson by two pins and Mike Peters by three.

Canucks' Schmautz Hitting Target Now

By The Canadian Press

During the National Hockey League draft meeting in Montreal last June, general manager Bud Poile of Vancouver Canucks let it be known to anyone who would listen he was looking for scoring punch.

"We've got to get some forwards who can score," Poile said when he showed up for the draft meetings.

Coach Vic Stasiuk agreed and said: "... Let's shop around "for some guys who know where the net is."

The Canucks apparently haven't found those "guys" yet although one might have been on their team all along. He is right winger Bobby Schmautz, who scored four goals Sunday night in leading the Canucks to a 9-5 victory over Buffalo Sabres.

The four goals gave Schmautz a total of seven in his last two games. He scored three for the Canucks Friday night against Los Angeles Kings.

Meanwhile, Bobby Orr is back and the Bruins are beginning to roll. Orr returned to the Boston lineup Saturday night after missing most of the season following knee surgery. He helped in leading the defending champion Stanley Cup champions to a 7-3 victory over New York Islanders Saturday night and Sunday night the Bruins held on to defeat Toronto Maple Leafs 6-5.

In other games, Pittsburgh Penguins ended New York Rangers' six-game winning streak by downing them 5-3, Atlanta Flames nipped Philadelphia Flyers 3-2 and Minnesota North Stars trimmed Chicago Black Hawks 5-1.

Saturday night, the Hawks disposed of Montreal Canadiens 5-3, handing the East Division leaders their second defeat in 20 games, Minnesota and Toronto played to a 4-4 tie, Pittsburgh whipped Atlanta 6-1, the Rangers defeated St. Louis Blues 3-1 and Los Angeles trounced Detroit Red Wings 8-3.

Schmautz, a Saskatoon native, played in the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League before having minor league tryouts with teams in the Western and Central hockey leagues.

He played in the NHL with Chicago during the 1967-1969 season before catching on with Vancouver in the 1970-71 season. Last season in 60 games he scored 12 goals but so far this season he has accounted for 13 goals in 19 games, the last seven goals coming in two games.

The Bruins got two-goal performances from Mike Walton and rookie Greg Sheppard in disposing of the Leafs in Boston. Walton scored his seventh goal of the season in the first period and then added his eighth with the help of Johnny Bucyk's 600th NHL assist in the second period.

Orr managed only one assist Sunday but he scored Boston's first goal Saturday against the Islanders and assisted on another by Phil Esposito.

Blues Lose First

CHEMAINUS — University of Victoria Norsemen upset the previously-unbeaten Chemainus Blues 5-3 in a Vancouver Island Hockey League game Saturday at Fuller's Lake Arena.

Jim Gustafson, Jack Carpenter, Ken Haddrel, Dave Burge and Bill Cahoon counted for Norsemen, which only had two ties in seven starts this season.

Don Smith scored two Chemainus goals.

Chemainus Bulldozed

Sue Girton led Bulldozers with two goals while a single was added by Cathy Campbell. Goalie Penny Reading recorded the shutout.

Bobby Hull Scores Pair In Jet Win

By The Canadian Press

Bobby Hull is slowly finding his scoring range after missing the first part of the World Hockey Association season because of a court injunction filed by his former employers, Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

Hull, who did not play his first game in the WHA until Nov. 8, scored two goals Sunday night as his Winnipeg Jets defeated Los Angeles Sharks 4-3 in WHA action.

In other games Sunday, Chicago Cougars rallied to defeat Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-3, ending the Saints' five-game winning streak, New York Raiders shut out Philadelphia Blazers 5-0 and Houston Aeros beat Cleveland Crusaders 4-2.

In games Saturday, New York downed Quebec Les Nordiques 7-1, New England Whalers edged Ottawa Nationals 3-2 and Minnesota topped Philadelphia 5-4 in extra time.

Hull started slowly after returning to action but he has been scoring in recent games and his two goals Sunday night were his fourth and fifth of the season.

Victoria Teams Share Lead

GEORGE HYNE
. . . Gorge marksman

Victoria Gorge-Molsons regained a share of the Pacific Coast Soccer league lead with Victoria West-United following Sunday play in Vancouver.

And it was all due to the results of interlocking matches with squads from the Vancouver Inter-City League.

Gorge defeated Olympics 3-1 but West-United suffered its first loss this season to Simon Fraser University 2-0.

Tony Chruski proved to be the undoing for West-United, which still enjoys a game in-hand over Gorge. The tall, quick and acrobatic Simon Fraser goalie played a fantastic match to record the shutout and also received help through a tight defensive effort by his clubmates.

Simon Fraser, which hasn't allowed a goal this season, currently leads the Vancouver League. Tim Hastie and Kim Blank scored for SFU in the first half with low, hard drives that eluded Ash Valdal and, despite carrying much of the play in the second half, West-United forwards were unable to find the range.

Garnet Moen, Brad Clark and George Hyne scored for Gorge while Jeff Harvey replied for Olympics, which dominated the first half and held the visitors to a scoreless deadlock.

In the only other game Sunday, New Westminster Blues downed Inter-Italia 5-1. Rom MacDonald led the Blues with two goals while singles were supplied by John Connor, Gary Thompson and Gordie Glover. Dan Webster averted a shutout for Inter-Italia.

On Saturday, University of British Columbia Thunderbirds downed Paul's Canadians 4-0 to snap a two-game losing streak. Ed Soltysik scored twice for UBC while Greg Harrup and Morris White fired singles.

Sporting Club edged Khalsa 3-2 in a Vancouver League encounter the same day.

Busy Backs Drop Bays

Running backs Ellis Miyashita and Garnet Crawford spearheaded a strong ground game as Vancouver Blue Bombers defeated Oak Bay Farmer Construction 26-15 Sunday to win the British Columbia juvenile football championship.

Originally billed as a two-game, total-point series, the playoff was revised to a sudden-death affair at Royal Athletic Park because of the unavailability of a park at Vancouver.

Christy Sinclair scored two touchdowns and Jim Tarbuck kicked a single for Farmers, who trailed 13-8 at the half.

B.C. Harriers Perform Well

TORONTO — Harriers from British Columbia recorded strong performances Saturday in the Canadian cross country championships.

B.C. won the senior women's event over a 3,000-metre course with 14 points under the reverse-scoring system. Alberta was runner-up with 28 points.

Glenda Reiser, the 17-year-old sensation from Ottawa who represented Canada at the Munich Olympics, emerged as the individual winner. Claire Morgan of Vancouver was runner-up and Abby Hoffman of Toronto, an international veteran, placed third.

Toronto Olympic Club won the 12,000-metre men's event with 40 points, seven better than B.C.

After the meet, selections of Canada's team for the Pan-American cross-country meet in Victoria Dec. 2, were announced.

Shauna Miller of Alberta, Linda Rosetti of Vancouver and Misses Reiser, Morgan and Hoffman were picked for the women's squad while Bob Moore, of Toronto, Tom Howard of Vancouver and Larry Switzer of Winnipeg joined McLaren, French and Shaughnessy on the men's team.

CHRIS HALL
. . . Vikings' top scorer

It was a perfect weekend for University of Victoria basketball teams with the result that both the Vikings and Vikettes are the early leaders in the Canada West University Athletic Association.

Vikings completed a two-game sweep over Alberta Golden Bears with a 70-62 victory Saturday at UVic Gym while Vikettes did the same, 34-19 over Alberta Pandas.

And to complete the weekend, UVic Jayvees posted their second exhibition win in as many nights, 89-59 over Douglas College of Vancouver.

In other Canada West men's action Saturday, British Columbia Thunderbirds downed Calgary Dinosaurs 58-51 and Lethbridge Pronghorns posted a 94-57 triumph over Saskatchewan Huskies, leaving Vikings the only unbeaten team in the conference.

Saskatchewan Huskiettes completed a two-game sweep over Lethbridge with a 70-51 decision Saturday. Vikettes and Saskatchewan are tied for first place with 2-0 records.

Chris Hall led Vikings Saturday, scoring 18 points, while Tom Holmes added 13 points, 12 of them in the second half as UVic pulled away from a 31-28 halftime lead.

As was the case Friday night, Diana Brozuk and Lorna McHattie led the Vikettes with 10 and nine points respectively.

A Lost Weekend in Hockey

Times News Services

It wasn't what you would call a brilliant weekend for University of Victoria's hockey Vikings. About the only bright spot was the goaltending of Murray Finlay Saturday night, but even he needed help Sunday.

Finlay was sharp Saturday, kicking aside 47 shots, but it wasn't enough to save Vikings from a 3-1 defeat at the hands of Alberta Golden Bears in a Canada West University Athletic Association hockey game in Edmonton.

Finlay and Robin Hay shared netminding chores Sunday in Saskatoon, blocking 42 shots in a 6-2 loss to Saskatchewan Huskies.

The results left Vikings with an 0-4 won-lost record following Friday's 8-0 loss to Alberta and 4-0 opening-game setback to Calgary Dinosaurs last weekend.

In the only other Sunday game, Calgary downed British Columbia Thunderbirds 6-0. Saturday, Saskatchewan beat UBC 6-3.

Alberta leads the five-team league with a 3-0 record followed by UBC at 3-2, Calgary and Saskatchewan, both 2-2, and UViv at 0-4.

Ken Cross scored twice for Saskatchewan against Vikings Sunday while Lorne Frey, Wade Weseen, Ed Slywka and Dave Steingard added singles. UVic marksmen were George Walton and Scott Munro.

Alberta scorers Saturday were Oliver Stewart, Ross Barros and Steve McKnight. Dave Cousins replied for Vikings.

Guests Best

Home sides lost out Saturday as Brentwood College defeated Shawnigan Lake Boys' School 16-3 and St. George's of Vancouver downed St. Michael's University School of Victoria 23-3 in B.C. Independent Schools Rugby League action.

Volleyball, Rowing Teams Score Wins

Women's volleyball and rowing teams from University of Victoria had a successful weekend.

The volleyball Vikettes won their second tournament of the season, topping six schools in the Western Washington invitational at Bellingham by scoring 10 consecutive victories.

Competing for the first time, UVic's female rowers had a first and third placing in the Green Lake fall regatta in Seattle.

The volleyball team defeated Pacific Lutheran 15-1, 15-3; Western Washington 15-5, 16-14; University of Washington 15-13, 15-10; Washington Alumni 15-11, 15-6, and B.C. Institute of Technology 15-2, 15-7. Vikettes, who won the event last year, also captured the Portland State invitational tournament earlier this season.

Burnaby Rules the Soccer Roost

Burnaby North Vikings are back on top, sweeping to their second B.C. high school soccer title in three years by downing North Delta Huskies 5-2 in the final of a three-day tournament Saturday.

Vikings, champions in the 1970 inaugural tourney and runners-up to Victoria Tyees last year, never left the outcome in doubt before 323 fans at Royal Athletic Park.

Mike Shuster scored to make it 2-0 six minutes later and Dan Wilson added a goal at 28 minutes to make it 3-0 at halftime.

Wilson came on again after the intermission and pounded in his second goal of the match only eight minutes into the second half.

Pat Rohta scored North Delta's first tally a minute later but Shuster kept the margin intact for Vikings by scoring again at the 19-minute mark.

Huskies' John Seder scored 12 minutes from the final whistle but it was a case of too little too late.

In an earlier match at Centennial Stadium, Steveston Packers pumped in five second-half goals to defeat Oak Bay Bays 6-2 and collect third spot.

Packers only held a 1-0 lead on a goal by Reynold Meyer at halftime, but the Vancouver High School Soccer League champions went on a scoring rampage in the second half.

Kerr's tally boosted his tournament total to eight, breaking the record of seven set last year by Blair Johanneson of Burnaby North.

Series Cancelled

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey Canada has cancelled its college championship series scheduled Dec. 16-18 for Hamilton after four teams withdrew because the dates conflicted with examinations and other league hockey games.

NEW ZEALANDER ASKS B.C. VISIT

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — A rugby football tour from Canada to New Zealand has been advocated as a result of the showing of the British Columbia team in a recent match against the visiting All Blacks at Vancouver.

The All Blacks, New Zealand's celebrated national team, won, 31-3, but New Zealand press correspondents travelling with the team have reported that the Canadian standard has reached a stage where much benefit would result from a New Zealand tour.

"On the display by British Columbia the time for an invitation from the New Zealand Rugby Union is long overdue," wrote The New Zealand Press Association correspondent.

"New Zealand has had rugby visits from Japanese, Tongan and Californian teams, but not from Canada.

"Canada has may players of genuine ability, most of them from British Columbia, where rugby was started at Brockton Point Oval as long ago as 1864."

The correspondent reported that the Canadian Rugby Union president, Bob Spray, had been trying for years to arrange a tour to New Zealand without success.

He quoted Spray as saying:

Troops Watch Rugby

BELFAST (Reuter) — The New Zealand Rugby Union All Blacks beat Ulster, 19-6, Saturday.

Under the watchful eye of armed troops on a television tower, the tourists put on a powerful display for 20,000 spectators in this troubled Ulster city.

Fullback Joe Kram made one conversion and kicked three penalties for New Zealand. Bob Burgess dived over for a try under the posts in the first half and Duncan Hales did it in the second half.

Secretariat Survives Foul Claim

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Meadow Stable's Secretariat walked out of the gate as usual and trailed the field by as much as 15 lengths in the backstretch, but in his customary style rallied to win going away in the $298,665 Garden State Stakes at Garden State Park Saturday.

Ridden by Jockey Ron Turcotte, Secretariat survived a foul claim before his seventh win in nine starts became official. He won by three and one-half lengths over stablemate Angle Light to earn the $179,199 winner's share of the one and one-sixteenth mile run for two-year-old colts. Hobeau Farm's Step Nicely was third.

Blaze Cripples Queen of Victoria

Crippled by an engine room fire, the B.C. Ferries' Queen of Victoria anchored overnight Saturday in Active Pass, almost at the same spot where she collided two years ago with a Russian freighter.

The fire broke out shortly after she left Swartz Bay at 10 p.m. with 96 passengers and a crew of 40 aboard.

The fire was quickly extinguished with automatic carbon dioxide equipment. There were no injuries to crew or passengers.

Three people lost their lives when she collided with the Sergey Yesenin in the same area in 1970.

Saturday night, Capt. Albert Barry ordered all systems shut down. Auxiliary generators were pressed into action to provide heat and power for the long vigil ahead.

A B.C. Ferries official said today, "We couldn't afford to take any chances of starting another fire. The engines were still hot and pumping oil."

Anchored at Sturdies Bay, the Queen of Victoria remained there until early Sunday morning with the Queen of Sidney standing by in case it was found necessary to evacuate the vessel.

In the early hours, two tugs began towing her across the Strait of Georgia, docking her safely at the Tsawwassen terminal on the mainland where the weary passengers and crew disembarked at 6:30 a.m.

From there she was towed for repairs to Burrard Drydock in North Vancouver.

Details of an inquiry launched today are expected to be available Wednesday but a Burrard official reports that the damage appears to be relatively minor although smoke has made a "sweet mess" of the engine room.

Cause of the fire has been traced to a broken oil centrifuge (lubrication) filter in one of the diesel engines. It shot oil onto a hot manifold, which ignited, filling the engine room with thick smoke.

The ferry is expected to be out of commission for at least 10 days.

The B.C. Ferries' spokesman explained:

"Some of the insulation on cables has been destroyed and these will probably have to be replaced. It will be delivery of materials that will hold us up, not labor."

The Queen of Vancouver is also at Burrard, undergoing a refit. Work on her will be rushed in the hope that she can be put on the Strait of Georgia run next weekend.

Meanwhile, the daily sailings from Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen have been increased from 10 to 12 to compensate for the smaller carrying capacity of the Queen of Sidney.

Sailings from Swartz Bay are scheduled for 7, 8, 9 and 11 a.m., noon, 1, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8 and 9 p.m.

Sailings from the mainland terminal will be 7, 8, 10 and 11 a.m., 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7, 9 and 10 p.m.

An estimate of the damage will not be available until today's inquiry has been completed.

Life's Finer Things Make a Longish List

Item: An amusing interview on the CBC this morning with Howie Meeker, one of the great hockey players of all times, and I was impressed with his direct answer when asked about skates for young players. All skates today are shabby, even dangerous, said Howie, except the Bauer Skate and a parent should buy no other brand.

Got me to thinking of how rarely we hear such positive endorsement of a product for no other reason than loyalty and conviction. Everyone, I suppose, would have his own list of items for which he'd have no substitute, a private testimonial to excellence in a day when so many products seem of poor quality.

Jotting down my own list, under the heading Products I Swear By, I found I'd included Sunlight Soap for shampoos (a tip given to me by a senior nurse at Royal Jubilee), the Coleman camp stove, King Oscar sardines, the Seagull outboard motor, Libby's tinned chile con carne, the new Gillette double-blade razor, Rogers chocolates, the Peetz reel, Heineken ale and LCB Canadian rye whisky, Eddy's changeless kitchen matches and the Titlist golf ball.

From there I went to HP Sauce and Heinz ketchup, Chester Barry suits and the Parker pen, Danish bacon and Saltspring Island lamb chops, Cook's travel service and Hathaway shirts, any Marks and Spencer store in Britain, Campbell's soups, the Tom Mack four-and-a-half spoon, the "K" British-made shoe, Ronson lighters and Wille's French bread, the New Yorker, The Manchester Guardian, anything written by I. F. Stone or drawn by Bob Bierman, Bicycle playing cards, Ella Fitzgerald singing Gershwin, Primo's tamales . . .

But I realized then that the list might be without end and perhaps everybody's would be different.

★ ★ ★

Item: A hushed call from one of our downtown operatives reporting that among those patiently waiting for a noon-hour table at the Old British Fish and Chip Shop in Broad Street was Premier Dave Barrett. "How things have changed," he breathed to which I breathed in reply, "Amen."

Item: An interesting note today from a Victoria woman who has found herself the victim of a truly twentieth century ailment: Excessive noise.

"My hyper-sensitivity to noise was so bad I thought I was going crazy," she writes. Putting the comb through my hair caused a rasping sound that was deafening. The newspaper crackled loudly when I turned a page. The raucous cawing of crows drove me indoors. When a jet flew overhead I felt as though it was coming straight for me. Motorcycles and hot-rods made me leap up off the bus-stop benches. When a door slammed I felt as though it was slamming into my body. When anyone dropped a quarter into the bus fare box it sounded like a ton of raw ore being dropped in."

The search for a cure or for relief led inevitably to Los Angeles, one of the world's noisiest cities, and an outfit called Sigma Engineering. Seems they've developed a silicone filter called a Sonic Ear-Valv which screens out harmful high frequencies, but leaves the ear canal open for normal sounds.

It's a perilous world we live in, Master Jack.

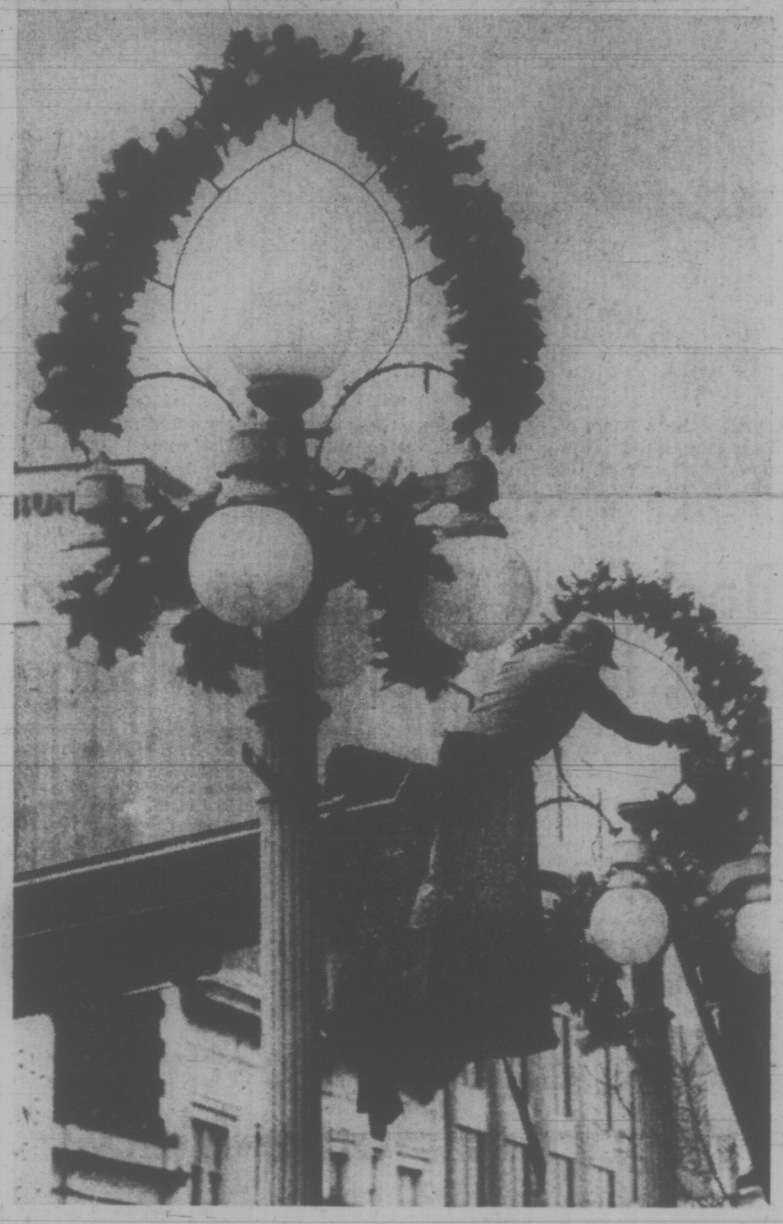
Item: Back today from the Vancouver wedding of Gordon Root and Evelyn Caldwell and what a swell party that was! Evelyn is just a couple of years away from retiring as The Sun's "Penny Wise" but I've never seen a more radiant bride.

One of her longtime, devoted readers at Cobble Hill has sent me a clipping of a piece written some 30 years ago when Evelyn was doing her "Sauce For The Goose" column. One paragraph reads as follows:

"I wouldn't go back to my 'teens again for anything; in fact I wouldn't go back one single year of my life. I find that the older I get, the easier life becomes. As the years creep up, I learn to see that there are very few people and very, very few things in the world that really matter, and that so long as those few people and things remain okay, the rest of the mess can well go by the boards, there to be worried about by those unhappy ones, the younger generation. God help them!"

That was her philosophy then and it's her philosophy now.



DECKING THE STREETS with plastic holly is becoming an annual occurrence in Victoria as the Yuletide season rolls around. In past years the ersatz Christmas decoration didn't sit well with local citizens and holly growers who thought natural holly should be used because Vancouver Island is the only area in Canada where the traditional Christmas sprigs thrive. City maintenance man John Campbell started adding the festive touch to Douglas Street today. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Last Minute Nominees File Papers

Two last-minute candidates filed nomination papers this morning for the Victoria aldermanic election Dec. 9, making a total of 10 aspirants for four vacant seats.

The late-comers were developer Sam Bawlf, making his first attempt for civic office, and realtor Henry Bitterman, one of the unsuccessful candidates in the last year's municipal election.

Bawlf, 28, of 624 Avalon Road, who has been involved in restoration of several old buildings in the city, said the council under Mayor Peter Pollen has had some good ideas but seems "a little slow" in putting these into effect.

Other Victoria candidates are incumbents Tom Christie, Percy Frampton and Alf Hood; investment dealer Malcolm Anderson, Credit Bureau operator Robert Ellis, housewives Joyce Heynsbroek, Margaret Richards and civil servant Joe Richards, who is also seeking a seat on the Victoria schoolboard.

University of Victoria assistant professor Leslie H. Peake, of 2610 Arbutus, was a last-minute nominee for Saanich council elections bringing the list to nine.

Three incumbents are running and the fourth, Ald. Ed Lum, has decided to retire from the council to devote more time to enlarged business interests.

Aldermen Alan Newberry, 1900 Mayfair; Leslie Passmore, 2873 Austin, and Frank Waring, 3761 Waring, are the others, combining many years of council experience.

Four of the others are newcomers to the municipal field and two have made previous tries for election in Saanich.

One is Gregory Cook, 56, of 1091 Laburnum, who served six years on council before retiring in 1965. Vaughn Thompson, 47, of 4961 Georgia Park, was an unsuccessful candidate.

Newcomers are Nora Lindsay, 54, of 5222 Santa Clara; Joseph Bourque, 37, of 3636 Revelstoke; John McDonald, 35, of 3647 Doncaster, and Peake.

A would-be candidate for school district 63 board of trustees was Donald Grafton, who filed nomination papers which returning officer Gordon Hayward rejected because sponsors were resident outside the boundary of the school district.

Terry Prentice, a 38-year-old engineer with the Public Utilities Commission, is running for his second two-year term. He lives at 867 Parklands.

Conrad Lundgren, 29, of 635 Admirals, is running for alderman for the first time. A machinist at HMC Dockyard, Lundren has been a resident of Esquimalt for 25 years.

GALBRAITH
. . . by acclamation

Jim McEvay, 50, of 401 Treebank Rd., owner-manager of Nu-Way Cleaners Ltd., and draftsman Leslie J. Fuller of 1162 Hadfield, are also running.

The third incumbent alderman, John Gourlay, 48, decided not to run again after suffering a heart attack in June.

Seats of Mayor Art Young and Alds. Arthur Mebs, Ken Hill and Arthur Cuthbert are not contested this year.

A recreation centre and how it should be financed is certain to be a 'hot potato' for the eight aldermanic candidates in Oak Bay's election.

Newcomer to municipal politics, Neil Rawlins, 41, of 2090 Carvarvon, is basing his platform on the need for a centre in the municipality.

The B.C. Telephone supervisor says, "I feel that without a change in council we will not get a recreation centre in the foreseeable future. The sale of the Victoria Riding Academy property is the only way that a recreation complex can be financed without a major tax increase."

Retired professional engineer Harry Graham, of 633 Radcliffe Lane, is another candidate. He stresses the need for more consideration to be given people living on fixed incomes in the municipality.

Former unsuccessful candidate Humphrey Golby, of 1418 Newport, has also filed papers. A former hearing aid technician, Golby is now a real estate agent.

Making his first bid in the election will be Frank Butler, of 1187 Victoria. Butler is real estate manager for Brown Brothers Agencies Ltd.

The three incumbents who will be running for a second term on council are Ald. Shirley Dowell, of 3270 Upper Terrace; lawyer Ald. John Goult, of 1605 York Place, and Ald. Douglas Watts, of 2285 Woodlawn, a professional engineer with the provincial government.

★ ★ ★

In Sidney, four persons are seeking the three aldermanic vacancies for two-year terms. They are incumbents Wilkie Gardner and Fred Robinson, and challengers Patricia Merrett and John Molyard.

In the election for the single one-year term where nominations closed today, there are three candidates — John Hamilton, Len Siver and Leslie Nunn.

★ ★ ★

In Central Saanich, Mayor Archibald Galbraith was re-elected by acclamation when no-one came forward to oppose him. School trustee Gordon Ewan was also re-elected by acclamation.

But five candidates are seeking the three aldermanic vacancies — incumbents W. E. Clayards and Tom Michell, and challengers David Hill, David Price and Zachary Hamilton.

In North Saanich, seven persons are seeking the three aldermanic vacancies — George Aylard, J. D. Boon and G. O. Cumpston, already on council, and Eric Sherwood, Richard Kirk, J. K. Martin and R. S. Thuillier.

F. Lois Walsh and Henry J. Lake are vying for the school trustee seat.

Councils Examine Arena Concept

A close-up look at a new privately-owned arena complex in Burnaby will be taken Friday by members of at least two Greater Victoria municipal councils.

The visit planned by Saanich is open to any others interested, said Mayor Hugh Curtis, in view of a shortage of arena ice-time generally in the capital region.

Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford will be one of those from outside the municipality invited to make the trip by private car.

Saanich at present is subject of a municipal study of site, design and cost estimate for a publicly-owned arena facility, to be presented to ratepayers at the earliest opportunity.

At the same time, Columbian 4-Rinks Ltd., of Burnaby, is surveying the capital city's skating rink requirements to determine feasibility of a multiple-rink complex along the lines of its four-rink arena serving the lower mainland.

Columbian and Saanich council have met informally to exchange information on rinks, with commitments on neither side. To get a better appreciation of what the private company could offer, Saanich planned the visit to Burnaby.

Those aldermen on Saanich council who support a referendum for a publicly-owned arena still favor the idea that the public should be permitted to express an opinion, but do not rule out a private facility if public needs are met.

Christie Wants Gov't To Pay Tax Bill in Full

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

City of Victoria taxpayers are subsidizing the provincial government to the tune of $554,755 annually because the government is "too damned stingy" to pay full taxes on its property in the city.

That's the view of Ald. Tom Christie, and a city drive to change the situation is one of several financial moves he is suggesting in his Dec. 9 re-election bid.

Christie told a noon press conference he would like to see pressure applied to the provincial government to pay the full general mill rate on its "vast" holdings of lands and buildings inside city boundaries.

"At the present time they arbitrarily fix their own mill rate of 15 mills only, whereas they should be paying 44 mills," he said.

"The federal government pays in full, so why not the province? Actually, the city of Victoria is subsidizing the provincial government, in providing full municipal services to the tune of $544,755 a year."

Christie said with the recent change in the government and the huge surplus in the provincial treasury he believes "the time is ripe" for the city to make new approaches for its fair share of the total tax dollar in other areas:

—Elimination of municipalities' present 15 per cent share of welfare costs, to make this strictly a federal-provincial responsibility as it is in some other provinces. Saving to the city: close to $800,000 a year;

—An increase in the provincial per capita grant from $30 to $40, giving the city an extra $608,970;

—Bringing the hotel room tax under municipal jurisdiction, to offset annual debt charges on a badly-needed cultural and convention centre.

Christie said the granting of such requests would give the city the equivalent of revenue from 11.6 mills to spend on maintaining its capital works projects and meeting pressing demands for extra services in police and fire protection.

RED TAPE FOULS SEWAGE OUTFALL

The Pollution Control Branch will not be able to get around to an application to extend Clover Point sewage outfall until early next year, the Capital Regional District has been advised.

District engineer Bill Gerry said today the PCB has advised that, because of its workload and the time required for processing the application, it is not expected the district will hear for 120 days from the date of application. This would bring it to February, at the earliest.

The regional board agreed at its Sept. 20 meeting to seek PCB permission to extend Clover Point outfall, which ends just off the shoreline, to 6,400 feet or just over one mile.

This is intended to be a prelude to linking both Clover Point and McMicking Point (Oak Bay) outfalls to the new McCaulay Point outfall in Esquimalt, via a land connection. The extended Clover Point outfall would remain as a storm water bypass during periods of heavy rain and runoff.

SANDPILE DEATH PROBED

An inquest into the sand bunker death of 13-year-old Dean Wade Tickner will continue Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m.

The boy died last Thursday when the Metchosin Road sand bunker in which he and a friend were playing, collapsed on him.

Dr. Garth Walter, chief pathologist at Victoria General Hospital, testified at the inquest's first hearing Friday that the boy died of suffocation as a result of the accident on Ocean Cement's sandpiles on the 3500 block Metchosin Road.

Missing Boy Seen This Morning

ERNIE WHITCOMB

Esquimalt police report that nine-year-old Ernie Whitcomb, missing from home since Sunday afternoon, was seen by school children around 8:45 a.m. Monday morning near Rock Heights school.

"At least he's made it through the night," said a police spokesman.

Acres of woodland in the Gorge-Esquimalt area had been combed throughout the night by approximately 50 men in the search for the retarded boy, who can scarcely talk.

Hector Whitcomb, of 1201 Colville, said his son, Ernie, wandered away after some children were seen "throwing stones at him about a block and a half from home."

At 5 p.m. Sunday, Ernie was seen near the Colville Grocery. Nobody has seen him since.

The Whitcomb's neighbors were working on additions to their house and "Ernie was next door watching the men work," said Whitcomb.

"He didn't come home for lunch, but that's not unusual. He has an area of about four blocks around here where he plays. When he didn't come home for supper about five o'clock, we went out to look for him," he said.

Esquimalt police were notified at 7 p.m. and a search involving neighbors, police and 40 members of the armed services was organized.

The wooded area across the street from the Whitcomb's home was searched until 4 a.m. today without result.

Esquimalt police said the search resumed at dawn. The same area will be covered today and searchers will also comb the Gorge golf course.

The search is complicated by Ernie's inability to speak.

"He can say a few words and understand what you say, but can't really talk," said Whitcomb.

Hysterectomy Refused For Healthy Mother

DEAR ABBY: Do you know a doctor who will perform a hysterectomy on me? I'll go anywhere. I've been to three doctors and they all refused me.

I am 33 years old, married, and have three children, which is all I want. My husband is 44, and he doesn't want any more either.

Birth control pills are out. They gave me all the symptoms of pregnancy and I felt rotten all the time I took them. And the other methods are too much trouble. The only safe way I know of closing down the baby factory is to have a hysterectomy and get it over with.

Rush me the name of a doctor I can go to and say, "Abby sent me." Thank you. —No More Babies.

DEAR NO MORE: Sorry, but I don't know a doctor who will remove healthy organs. Since both you and your husband agree that your family is complete, why doesn't he consider a vasectomy? It's a relatively simple, inexpensive operation which changes a working model into a sports model.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 35-year-old daughter who has been married for 14 years to a man who is the most overbearing, foul-mouthed bully who ever lived.

He yells at her in front of people and he orders her around like she was his servant. Agnes has worked to help support the family (they have four children) and between her job and her home she has her hands full. Her husband has never lifted a hand to help her at home. Every weekend this bum is either playing golf or at some kind of sports event.

Agnes is a gentle person who never stands up for herself. She just lets him push her around.

I contend that as her father, I have the right to demand that he treat her with the respect she deserves.

I would like your opinion.—Son In Law Problems

DEAR PROBLEMS: I realize it hurts you to see your daughter abused, but you have no "right" to demand anything. Agnes is an adult, and if she allows herself to be pushed around and treated like a servant, it's her problem, not yours. And until she makes a few demands and stands up to him, she can expect more of the same.

DEAR ABBY: I baby-sit five days a week for eight preschool children in my own home. I love children and need the money. I am a widow and am helping to get my own children through college.

All the children I baby-sit with are given excellent care and attention, and I charge a nominal fee for the service I render.

Recently, a woman with two children asked me if I would give her a reduced rate. Abby, it's no easier to take care of two children from the same family than from different families. If anything, it's more difficult, because sisters and brothers are more likely to quarrel or gang up together against the other children.

Doctors, dentists, amusement parks don't give discounts for children from the same family. Why should baby sitters? How can I explaine it to this mother?—Conscientious Sitter.

DEAR SITTER: Simple. The same way you explained it to me.

Victorian Awaits Ship Bound for St. Helena

Friends of Vivian Combe, who left here in September with the avowed intention of spending at least a year on the island of St. Helena, will be interested to know she is now in Cape Town, waiting for a ship.

I received a long letter from her the other day and in it she says two ships have gone to St. Helena since she arrived there but both had their 12 berths taken. It looks now as if it will be Dec. 12 before she starts for her dream island.

Much History

"It's a beautiful city. Gorgeous flowers. Blossoming trees of every sort alongside the oaks and pines. And there is history everywhere."

She is living in a small hotel situated near an avenue of trees going through the park to the commercial centre, "a nice 15 minutes walk with birds and squirrels to feed on the way."

There's an archives and a museum near by. Also a library and the art gallery. And she writes that reclaiming of land has done much to enlarge the city.

"From the docks for two miles into the centre, large buildings are going up, including a big new railway station, bus depot, theatre and a huge Woolworth's store."

Attendance at the Nico Nealau with its two stages, to see a ballet led Miss Combe to write "It's losing money. Only white people may go."

Then she added "it is very distressing to see in all libraries, the post office, trains and buses, seats for whites and those for non-whites."

In the "friendly" little hotel where she is staying, "there are people from all over the world."

Among the most intereting in Vivian Combe's eyes "a New Zealand anthropologist named Emery and his wife. He is working in the museum, and is doing research for the zoology department of Christchurch museum on the theory of tooth sharpening while we are asleep."

On a trip with friends by car around the Cape's "most southerly tip, where the Atlantic meets the Indian Ocean . . . we saw zebra, ostrich, springbok and baboons that climbed all over the car . . . big daddy ones and babies."

And naturally, being Vivian Combe, she has been out to Murizenberg to meet Jill and Tony Fletcher.

"They make puppets . . .are professionals in this line though he is a naval architect . . . their marionettes are beautiful and his manipulation really excellent. They have been doing it for eight years."

An American attending university whom Vivian knows, also went out to see the Fletchers.

"She became so enamored that she is now learning and working with them."

As many in Victoria know, Vivian Combe herself is a professional in the art both in the making of puppets and in their presentation.

She worked with John McCall in First United Church basement for a time, then decided to branch out and do original work with Indian legends, reproducing the characters in puppet form and using authentic materials such as cedar bark to make the costumes.

Meeting Place

A big room on the third floor of the D'Allard building on Yates Street became her workshop. It was also a place where anyone interested could meet others with the same urge to create.

A few did go with her however. And you can be sure once she reaches Jamestown, on the island of St. Helena, they will come out of her trunks and she'll be using them to interest the people in bringing their legends to life in puppetry form.

Statistics show that every two minutes a Canadian home suffers fire damage. You can help to reduce this dreadful score by being extra careful.

The 6-page Check List to Prevent Fires contains 25 questions and spaces for your "yes" or "no" answers.

For instance: Is your family aware that ashtrays should never be emptied into waste baskets? Do you call the gas company immediately you smell gas in your home at any point other than the burners? Do you make it a rule never to use gasoline or benzine as cleaning agents in your home?

When you have answered the 25 questions, you should know where to look for the main fire hazards in your home. Take immediate action to eliminate them!

Backyard Compost Heap Best for Weekly Garbage

EDMONTON (CP) — Your backyard can help you dispose of as much as 75 per cent of your weekly garbage, says Lilian Alexander, an Edmonton nutrition expert.

long a tradition among farmers and home gardeners, the compost pile is staging a comeback with many urban dwellers concerned about pollution and overtaxing city garbage disposal systems, she says.

Miss Alexander says she has reduced the garbage created by two persons to two paper shopping bags full a week for collection by the city by using a compost pile in the backyard.

She said the sight of three or four cans of garbage plus two more full of grass cuttings awaiting collection by garbagemen every week made her consider the implications and seek a method of reducing the volume.

The organic waste-such as food-can be used for land fill and organic fertilizers, and much of the inorganic waste can be recycled.

She returns paper bags to stores and wire coat hangers to dry cleaners.

"There is no reason for these items to be thrown out to become pollutants when they can be reused."

"A properly made compost does not have an unpleasant odor," she said.

By MARY MOORE

Yogurt fanciers are wondering in their letters if I can tell them how to make their own at home.

In early May of this year I gave a method using evaporated milk that required a wide-mouthed vacuum bottle.

Yesterday I used a special piece of equipment that consists of an electric hot plate, 9x9", similar to a Salton Hot-ray.

It holds at a steady low temperature. (I could hold my finger on it without much discomfort.) Included in the carton were 4 fireproof dishes (like large 4¼" diameter pyrex custard cups) with snap-on plastic lids.

This yogurt maker costs around $10 and can be ordered from Vitamin Sales, P.O. Box 700, Montreal 403, Que.

HOMEMADE YOGURT

4 cups milk
1 tsp. plain yogurt

The milk is to be brought to the boil. But since it is liable to burn and boil over, my advice to yogurt makers is to heat it in a double boiler until it is very hot.

Then transfer it to a heavy pot and bring it just to a boil while you stand over it and stir it constantly.

Remove from heat at once and cool to lukewarm. Lukewarm is finger tip temperature, Be patient and let it cool down to lukewarm. If it is too hot, the culture will not work. Preheat the hot tray. Now measure one teaspoon plain yogurt into a cup and stir in one tablespoon of the lukewarm milk.

Stir this mixture into the lukewarm milk. Wash and dry the glass cups and pour one cup milk mixture into each.

Cover with snap-on lid.

Stand each cup on the hot tray and leave undisturbed for 8 hours. Chill at once for if allowed to stand at room temperature it gets sourer.

(Incidently, I made my yogurt and had it ready for the tray at 4 p.m. which meant I had to stay up until midnight to unplug it and put it in refrigerator.)

Transfer to refrigerator to store.

When you are ready to serve it you may make several variations: 1. into one cup stir one tablespoon liquid honey or 2. two tablespoons marmalade or 3. two tablespoons pineapple jam or 4. two tablespoons strawberry jam. OR add the sweetener of your choice.

I think I can safely say that if you obey the temperature rules your yogurt will set every time.

You will see that the cost is one quart of milk. If you are regular yogurt users you would soon recover the cost of the yogurt maker.

Sex Is a 'Drag' Says Comic Book

TORONTO (CP) — There's a comic book that says sex is a drag when you "don't care about, much less love, your partner."

The book is part of the material distributed by Toronto Planned Parenthood and aimed at people who may not have thought about contraceptives.

The literature is being sent to schools, social agencies and universities as part of a seven-month publicity campaign that has received $50,000 in support from the federal government.

It has also received some reaction.

One mother complained about a radio advertisement saying there are eight methods of contraception.

She told Patrice Merrin, executive secretary of Planned Parenthood, that her 13-year-old son heard the advertisement and she didn't want him to think about sex; the mother said she didn't know eight methods of contraception, and there was no spiritual quality in the message.

Queen, Philip Mark 25 Years

LONDON (CP) — Tributes to the Queen and Prince Philip on their silver wedding anniversary today are pouring out in Parliament and Fleet Street.

The Queen, 46, and Philip, 51, marked the day with a brisk round of public appearances — attending a thanksgiving service in Westminster Abbey, taking part in a civic banquet and procession in the City of London and inspecting the modernistic Barbican development in the heart of the financial district.

Their first chance to relax with family and friends will come in the evening when they will throw a party for 500 at Buckingham Palace.

Glowing tributes came from the House of Lords, which formally moved "an humble address" of gratitude to the Royal couple for their contribution to the country and their example in public and family life.

The newspaper-reading public has been drenched in nostalgia.

The mass-circulation Daily Mirror, running a one-week royal series, appropriately chose the moment to revamp its masthead in royal purple.

FREEING MOTHER FROM DRIVER ROLE

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Family News Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Transportation advances in the wings may save the mothers of the land from steering wheel fatigue, driver's hunchback, and chauffeuritis.

All those ailments and some not yet diagnosed are connected with the many trips mothers make driving children to school, library, church, stores, music lessons and dozens of other places.

The symptoms include short circuits in the nervous system, a back that occasionally looks as though it were shaped by the driver's seat, and this frustrating feeling that one is driving an awful lot without going very far. The latter is true most days.

The technology that might come to the rescue of the moms of the land is developing something called PRT — Personal Rapid Transit. Little cars that scoot along on their own tracks or guided by a system of magnets are part of the PRT movement shaping up.

An exhibit showing some of these new solutions to the problem of people mobility — getting folks from here to there — was the inspiration for my hope that help for the mom drivers may not be too distant.

People Movers

The people movers exhibit in New York is sponsored by Owens-Corning Fibreglas Corp. in co-operation with the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT).

The federal agency, as well as makers of new personal transportation systems, is interested in getting people out of the slowly moving traffic jams that even as you read this are clogging some of our expressways.

Airports, shopping malls and downtown areas of cities, plus college campuses, are the main targets of the personal rapid transit movement.

A shuttle system at Tampa international airport in Florida is one such system. Another will be installed in the Dallas-Fort Worth regional airport now under construction. At the campus of the University of West Virginia in Morgantown a PRT system has started operation.

On display at the exhibit were people movers small enough for one, two, four or 30. Some had rubber tires; others were designed to move along on a cushion of air. What they had in common: their own guideways. Directed by computers the small people movers get to here from here without drivers.

What suburban town couldn't benefit from such a system? Fast, safe and capable of emancipating the mothers from the steering wheels, the PRT systems even would be fun for the children. The small ones are much more homelike than are big, noisy buses.

Denver, Colo. has been designated by the transportation department as the site of the second PRT demonstration project. The one at Morgantown is the first.

Press Button

Some of the people-mover systems are made by an elevator company — they're just as automatic and convenient as elevators. You summon them by pressing a button, the only difference being they move sideways instead of up and down.

When the little people movers aren't full of people, as they are expected to be during rush-hours into downtown areas, PRT technologists say they can be used to move packages, mail and even debris. If you've ever been stuck behind a garbage truck outside a store you will appreciate the convenience of having the refuse moved on its own track instead of street.

For the traveller who cannot part with his automobile, a small electric car — big enough for two — on display — combines mobility, convenience and pollution-free service. The battery-powered car can go up to 100 miles between recharging.

The car is capable of cruising up to 62 miles per hour. Tests by the Electric Vehicle Council and users of electric delivery trucks show that the lightweight electric-powered vehicles can be run for one-third to one-half the cost of gasoline.

Honeymoon Capital's Supremacy Falls

Is Niagara Falls going to hold still for this?

Yes, at least for the time, says one spokesman for the city that has billed itself "the honeymoon capital of the world."

But not all is lost to Florida, by any means. Although Niagara Falls has had its setbacks, it is "suddenly coming back. It's camp with the kids," says a spokeman for the bridal magazine.

What happened to slow the flow of newlywed traffic to the Falls, of couples drawn by nature's own spectacular spilling millions of tons of water hourly from the Niagara River rapids into Lake Ontario?

Walter G. Downey, a retired army colonel who is executive vice president of the Niagara Falls, N.Y., chamber of commerce, says transportation changes have been a major factor.

"It became the capital when couples came by train, stayed for a week or more," he said in an interview. But there is no longer rail service, he said, and regular commercial airlines service is into nearby Buffalo and not the Falls.

"No," said Downey, "We're certainly no longer the honeymoon capital. But our hotels continue to advertise honeymoon suites. We still give honeymoon certificates. But honeymooners are not our biggest business."

Downey estimates that Niagara Falls gets about $150 million of the annual $3.5 billion that tourists spend yearly in New York State. Families make up the largest percentage of the estimated five million visitors to the U.S. side each year.

It's the family visit more often than the honeymooners on the Canadian side too, which will add up to an estimated 12 million visitors this year, says Keith Milne, general manager of the Niagara Falls, Ont., chamber of commerce.

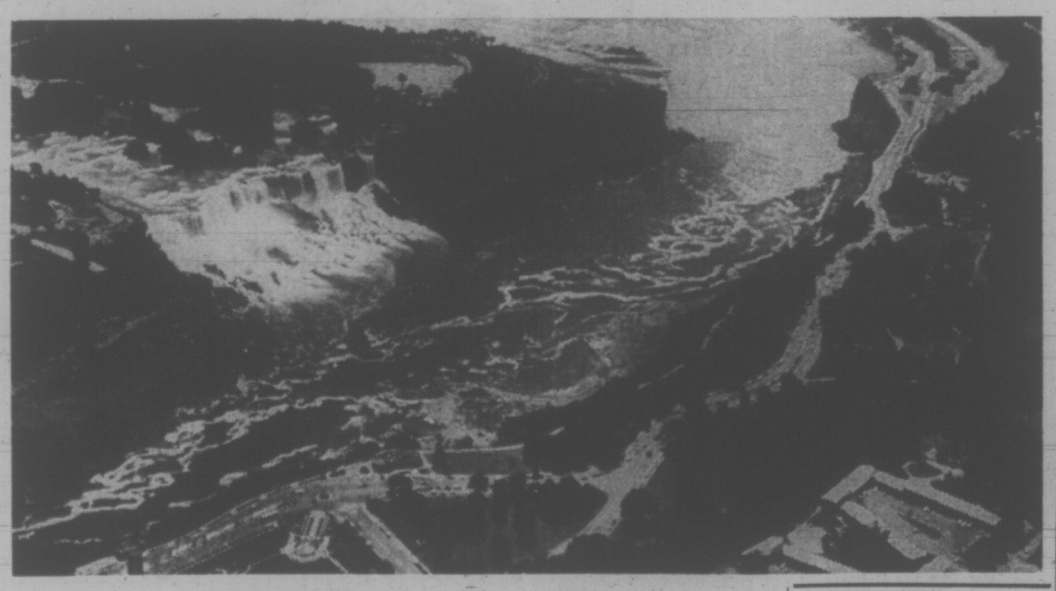
Most visitor come by car or on the hundreds of bus tours, Milne said — "and you're not going to get many newlyweds travelling on a bus."

The Canadian chamber advertises regularly in brides' magazines and offers a honeymoon kit which includes that honeymoon certificate plus some free tickets, tour information and such. You can write for it, or go by the chamber offices and pick it up.

Milne said so far this year, 10,379 couples had stopped in. The figure is only a fraction higher than in '71.

The big hope for a comeback lies in the massive renewal and rebuilding program the city has in the works for completion around 1976.

Razing of many eyesores and honky-tonk structures already is done, the rebuilding is under way to "make us more beautiful," as Downey puts it. The multi-billion dollar program would make the Falls area a major convention and tourist center the year round.



Niagara Falls has become a 'camp' place to visit.

Choosing by Weight Denies Sporting Chance

SASKATOON (CP) — Weight, not age should be the factor in selecting children for minor sports league divisions, according to conclusions found in a study of the strength development in Saskatchewan children.

Strength development was part of a study on children's physical growth by the university of Saskatchewan.

In a report presented recently at the second Canadian symposium on child growth and physical development, Dr. Albert Carron, of the college of physical education, said the study of children aged 10 to 14 examined the difference between early maturing boys and late maturing boys, basing maturity on the development of bones according to set standards. According to these standards, early maturing boys are stronger and usually heavier.

Age does not equate children, said Carron.

"Two 12-year-olds, the same height and weight, can be at different ages developmentally. Physically, one may be older.

"An ideal situation for children's sports, would classify divisions according to maturity assessments."

He said there were many ways of assessing maturity, however, this said nothing about intellectual or emotional development.

The researchers found that in the age group strength increases yearly by 25 per cent.

Carron said weight was found to be the most significant factor in determining strength.

When strength was compared of early and late maturing children, with the height factor removed, there was still a difference in strength.

But when the weight factor was taken away, there was no difference in strength between early and late maturing children.

"This suggests, for one's weight, each has as much strength," Carron said, "assuming both are relatively fit and have the same motivation."

Manitoba Tories Turn Down Coalition to Defeat NDP

BRANDON (CP) — Manitoba Conservatives wrestled this weekend with the issues of leadership and coalition with the provincial Liberals and put both matters to rest, at least for the time being.

After rancorous debate and behind-the-scenes infighting, about 400 delegates to the party's annual meeting gave Sidney Spivak a vote of confidence in his leadership and set about repairing internal rifts in time for the next election.

In an unofficial way, rank-and-file members also expressed coolness to Conservative-Liberal efforts to form an anti-New Democratic Party alliance.

Mr. Spivak, a 44-year-old Winnipeg lawyer who was elected party leader in 1971, came into the three-day meeting faced with the clear possibility he would be forced into a leadership convention by mid-winter.

He emerged with a clear mandate to lead the party into the provincial election campaign expected some time in 1973.

The leadership issue was fought around a section of the party's constitution which required a leadership convention every two years when the Conservatives are out of power.

TEST POSTPONED

A February convention with at least two challengers from the party's 20-member legislative caucus, appeared certain until a last-minute motion from the floor called for postponement of the convention until after the next election.

Fewer than 50 delegates opposed the resolution, but eight of those opposed were mmebers of the caucus of 22.

Mr. Spivak, who ended the meeting by bringing caucus members and prospective candidates onstage with him in a show of solidarity, downplayed the seriousness of the rift to reporters.

"We had our differences, we had an open discussion and now we look forward to a united purpose . . . We want to see the present New Democratic Party government turfed out of Manitoba."

However, some MLAs said privately there is concern among some party members about whether the Conservatives under Mr. Spivak can maintain the rural power base that gave them 13 of the 22 seatsthey won in the last election.

Linked with this is the suspicion among some rural people that Mr. Spivak was responsible for unseating former premier Walter Weir — a popular figure with country voters — from the party leadership two years ago.

DELEGATES COOL

The coalition issue, left off the formal agenda of the meeting, came up only during a "bearpit" session where MLAs answered questions from delegates.

Supporters of a continuation of the talks that have gone on intermittently since the NDP's victory in 1969 received a cool response from delegates at the session while those who called for the Conservatives to go it alone against both Liberals and New Democrats were cheered lustily.

Mr. Spivak, under some pressure before the convention for allegedly holding up coalition talks with I. H. Asper's Liberals, said the party's official position on the subject will remain unchanged. He said individual constituency associations would be allowed to make arrangements with Liberal counterparts in areas where a combined effort might defeat an NDP candidate.

However, full-scale coalition with the Liberals is out, he said, because the Liberals have continued to nominate candidates in seats now held by Conservatives.

TENSION CARE URGED

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Heart specialists say the high toll of death and disability from strokes might be reduced significantly with better treatment of high blood pressure.

A half-million Americans suffer strokes each year, and 200,000 of them die.

As many as 100,000 cases might be prevented with better detection and treatment of high blood pressure, say specialists attending scientific sessions of the American Heart Association.

The problem of hypertension — high blood pressure — emerged as a major concern among physicians attending the meeting which ended Sunday.

Stroke is the third leading cause of death in the United States and among the top three in 39 other countries.

Only about half of these cases have been diagnosed. This is what concerns physicians.

Dr. Jack Whisnant of Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., said not more than 10 to 15 per cent of persons with high blood pressure are being treated to have their blood pressure lowered.

He also noted that about 40 per cent of those who suffer strokes have normal blood pressure.

Leprosy Reported

PROVIDENCE (AP) — A rare case of leprosy has been reported in Rhode Island in a 19-year-old man who came to the United States two years ago from the Virgin Islands. State health officials say the patient— who was not identified—has been treated for the disease in a hospital clinic and is back at home. "We expect this man to be cured," said Dr. James Allen, acting chief of the division of epidemiology in the department of health.

Beating An Old Beef . . .

LONDON (Reuter) — Woman now can apply for jobs as Beefeaters at the Tower of London under changes announced Thursday by the British government.

Out of 100 non-industrial civil service jobs thought unsuitable for women in 1970, the government has released 85 for competition between the sexes.

Apart from the Beefeaters — guardians of the Tower who wear colorful uniforms dating from the 15th century — the jobs now available range from government butler to "calf certifying officers."

Jetty Colapse May Caim 100

LAGOS (UPI) — A jetty collapsed under the weight of spectators watching the Nigerian frigate Nigeria berth at the port of Calabar, 500 miles east of Lagos, Sunday.

Navy, army and police teams recovered 12 bodies, but authorities said they feared at least 100 persons died.

UNITED APPEAL SHORT OF MARK

DUNCAN — The Cowichan United Appeal wound up its third annual drive Nov. 15 with 82.5 per cent of its $44,000 goal collected.

With the active canvass completed, receipts are $36,322.

Appeal board chairman Michael Coleman attributed the campaign's failure to meet its objective to "disappointing response" from the business community.

A review of this year's contributions and discussion on allocation of funds to member agencies will take place when board directors meet Dec. 7.

New IWA President Plans Co-operatives

VIALA

DUNCAN — Fernie Viala, newly elected president of the Duncan local of the International Woodworkers of America, said today his main objective for the next two years is to help make members' pay cheques go further.

Viala, 40, who had been vice-president of the local, defeated Bob McPhee, plant chairman from Youbou, in an election that was being held over the past two weeks. Results were announced Saturday.

Viala decided to run for the president's position when president Weldon Jubenville announced he was running for secretary-treasurer at the IWA regional level.

Of the 4,000 eleibible voters in the union, 65 per cent turned out to vote 1,728 for Viala and 1,072 for McPhee.

Viala feels that with the "overwhelming majority" of the voters turning out he can count on them to support him when he attempts to set up some of the programs he promised during the election.

Viala said that by February he expects to have an income tax expert on staff to assist union members.

He plans to establish co-op stores in various areas in the local as well as look into group coverage for fire insurance for the membership.

"My main goal for the next two years is to look for ways and means to make the pay cheque for members go further and become more meaningful," Viala said.

Teachers Slam Trustee's Stand

Saanich Teachers' Association president Jim Black today criticized statemens made by Jack Armstrong, Saanich Peninsula school board chairman, regarding failure of teachers wage talks.

"It is not surprising that ill feeling develops between teachers in the district and the board when we must endure statements such as those made by Armstrong through the media rather than being able to work out problems over the bargaining table," said Black.

The president said he was puzzled to find Armstrong agreeing with long standing BCTF policy to eliminate compulsory arbitration from the Public Schools Act.

"The board negotiating committee has frequently used compulsory arbitration to avoid taking responsibility for any salary decision," said Black, adding that "teachers have been continually insulted with ridiculous offers."

Blast Injures Fishermen

Two fishermen from the East Ucluelet Indian Reserve are in Vancouver General Hospital after being rushed there by fishboat, police car and plane after their boat exploded early Saturday morning.

Johnson McCarthy, 60, is in poor condition and his son Charles, 20, is reported to be in fair condition.

Both men were badly burned when their boat, the Carl M III exploded about 2:30 a.m. Saturday at Toquart Bay, about 15 miles northeast of Ucluelet.

The McCarthys had gone there Friday night, in company with three other boats, to dig clams. The other boats were the Georgina, owned and operated by Corbett Williams; the Nina II, owned by Butch Patrick and the Judy N II, operated by Vernon Ross. All the men were from the East Ucluelet reserve.

All four boats were anchored not far from shore when an explosion wracked the Carl M II, triggering a fire that destroyed her within minutes.

It is suspected that the fire was started by a gas lamp exploding or a leaking fuel line.

The two men, with burns on more than half their bodies, were taken on the Georgina.

Wrapping the victims in blankes, Williams and another man, Adam Jack, tried to raise help on the boat's radio telephone. There was no response.

Bucking his way through tormented seas and high winds, Williams took almost two hours to steer the Georgina 15 miles down Barkley Sound to Ucluelet.

The McCarthys were so badly burned the police decided there was no time to wait for the Ucluelet volunteer ambulance. They put the men in the back of the police cruiser and administered what first aid they could on the 25-mile run to the hospital to Tofino.

Hospital officials decided the men needed special burn equipment and the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at Esquimalt was alerted.

Tug Sinks In Channel; Crew Saved

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Four persons were rescued Sunday when the tug Plunger sank in Lewis Channel, near Campbell River.

The four radioed at 10:15 a.m. that the Plunger was taking water in the engine room. The vessel No Savvy responded to the distress call and picked up the four persons shortly before the tug went down.

They were taken to Refuge Cove, about 15 miles east of Campbell River.

POVERTY IN NORTH SLAMMED

Hull, Que. (CP) — The National Anti-Poverty Organization NAPO, a newly-formed group representing Canada's poor, ended a three-day meeting here Sunday issuing harsh criticism against government welfare policies in the Canadian North.

In a statement released after the meetings, NAPO called upon the federal government to become responsible for the "deplorable living conditions in the Northwest and Yukon Territories."

It said the organization holds "the minister of Indian and northern affairs, Mr. Chretien, personnally responsible for the poverty in the territories."

The statement further demanded that the minister "personally attend" the next meeting of NAPO which is scheduled for later next year.

The group also demanded that the government raise present welfare payments in the North to a minimum of $40 a month, plus food and fuel allowances, for every person in need of welfare. Welfare is the responsibility of the territorial government.

Truman Didn't Want 'Back Door' Presidency

NEW YORK (AP) — Harry S. Truman fought against his own nomination as vice-president in 1944 because he knew President Franklin D. Roosevelt was a sick man, and Truman didn't want to go into the White House "through the back door," his daughter says.

In her forthcoming biography of the father, Margaret Truman Daniel says that after accepting the Democratic party's nomination at Roosevelt's telephoned insistence, Truman visited the president at the White House Aug. 18, 1944, and was "appalled" at his physical condition.

Margaret, in excerpts of the book in Life magazine, writes: "My father told close friends how the president's hands shook so badly at luncheon that he could not get the cream from the pitcher into his coffee. He spilled most of it into the saucer.

"He talked with difficulty. 'It doesn't seem to be any mental lapse of any kind, but physically he's just going to pieces,' dad said. 'I'm very much concerned about him'."

Roosevelt died of a stroke April 12, 1945, at Warm Springs, Ga. His doctor said later that Roosevelt suffered from congestive heart failure for the final year of his life.

Dr. Howard G. Bruenn, who was Roosevelt's physician in 1944 and 1945, said Roosevelt suffered an attack of angina pectoris Aug. 8, 1944, while speaking to a crowd at Bellingham, Wash.

Bruenn said it was not a "heart attack," but a transient pain which does not damage the heart. The doctor wrote about the incident last year in the Annals of Internal Medicine.

Margaret says that 10 days before the July Democratic convention in Chicago, her father wrote her a letter which indicated he knew Roosevelt was a sick man.

"Yes," Truman wrote, "They are plotting against your dad.

"It is funny how some people would give a fortune to be as close as I am to it, and I don't want it . . .

"Hope I can dodge it. 1600 Pennsylvania is a nice address, but I'd rather not move in through the back door — or any other door at 60."

Roosevelt had decided to dump vice-president Henry A. Wallace after polls showed him leading Republican Thomas E. Dewey only 51 per cent to 49 per cent for a fourth term, Margaret says.

Margaret says Democratic Chairman Bon Hannegan made repeated efforts to convince Truman that he was Roosevelt's choice, although Roosevelt avoided saying so publicly for fear of alienating backers of the other aspirants.

Finally Truman accepted.

Former Moderator Thomson Dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Very Rev. James Sutherland Thomson, 80, former moderator of the United Church of Canada and former dean of divinity at McGill University, died Saturday.

Born in Stirling, Scotland, Dr. Thomson obtained his master of arts degree and diploma theology from Glasgow University. He served in the British Army in the First World War and came to Canada in 1930 as a professor of theology at Pine Hill Divinity College in Halifax.

Dr. Thomson was president of the University of Saskatchewan from 1937 to 1949, when he came to McGill. He retired as dean of divinity in 1957, but remained a professor at the faculty until 1959.

He was named professor emeritus of philosophy of religion by McGill in 1966.

During his term as moderator of the United Church from 1956 to 1958, Dr. Thomson supported union with the Anglican Church of Canada. He said the greatest obstacle to union was a resurgence of denominational pride.

While at McGill, he was a member of both the Protestant school board of Greater Montreal and the Protestant committee of the Quebec Council of Education.

Funeral services will be held today.

He's a Chess Champ, at 7

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — His dark eyes did not show sadness after losing four consecutive games to opponents sometimes 50 years his elder, and chess remains the most important pursuit in the budding life of little Oscar.

Indeed, seven-year-old Oscar Alejandro Mass of Juarez, Mexico, will be back for more chess tournament competition, possibly next month, his sponsor says.

"He's a little innocent in the traps," says Filiberto Terrazas, lawyer and teacher who took an interest in Oscar's career in chess.

Oscar "can calculate very well; he needs experience," said Terrazas during the opening tournament in which Oscar participated here in conjunction with an invitational match held for 16 international chess masters.

Grandmaster Bent Larsen of Denmark, a player in the invitational, called Oscar "brilliant" and predicted a great future for him, Terrazas said. Little Oscar and Larsen sparred for several moves after a lunch the two had together Sunday.

In once game during what was Oscar's first formal tournament he played a man in his 60s, fighting off the opponent for almost 40 moves before being checkmated

Police Win Off Gambling Ring

LOS ANGELES — Six weeks ago a police undercover squad was authorized to use $100,000 in public funds to infiltrate a bookie ring with the reputation of covering any wager no matter how big.

The officers began placing bets, ranging up to $50,000 on a single weekend, on everything from football to the World Series, horse races to pro basketball games.

But to the surprise and gratification of the Los Angeles police department, their amateur gamblers hit a winning streak and managed to "stay ahead," according to Sgt. Donald Tutor who headed the investigation.

Saturday afternoon the vice squad, armed with search warrants raided four locations and arrested eight alleged ringleaders including three women. At the time of the crackdown the police had netted $1,290 from its $100,000 in wagers.

The take would have been even bigger except for the timing.

One of the officers bet $5,000 on USC to beat UCLA in their game Saturday and gave the 14-point spread. USC won 24-7 but the raids took place before the game started so the winnings could not be collected.

MOSCOW — Shirali Mislimov, said by the Soviets to be at 167 the oldest man in the world, recently contracted pneumonia but has now fully recovered, the Tass News Agency reported.

Recounting Mislimov's personal history, Tass said he has 23 children, 50 grandchildren — the oldest of whom is 90 — and his immediate family consists of 215 persons.

GREENVILLE, Me. — Chief Henry Red Eagle Perley, an 87-year-old Algonquin Indian who played in more than 50 silent films, has died in this town of his birth.

D. W. Griffith and other directors generally cast Red Eagle in the role of the bad man facing either the United States cavalry on the Great Plains or the colonial settlers in the East.

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Bobbie Pruitt, who now lives in Myrtle Beach, S.C., is trying to sell his ranch-style house in Greensboro, but without much luck.

He recently dropped the price to $32,500 from $36,500.

He thinks the three-year-old patio is the problem. Pruitt used 62 gravestones to make the patio.

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Organist Carlo Annibale says he's always wanted to play with a symphony orchestra and he will — at a cost of $4,000.

Annibale, 41, and blind since early childhood, has hired the Buffalo Symphony Orchestra for a concert with himself and a fellow artist Nov. 27 in Kleinhan's Music Hall.

"I've had a lifelong desire to appear with a symphony orchestra, in my own arrangements of pop and popular classics. And I figure, if not now, when?"

LECCE, Italy — Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor were presented Saturday night with Italy's Rudolph Valentino international cinema award, given annually to stars "likely to become legendary."

The award, called the Golden Valentino, is made by a jury of Italian journalists and film critics.

'Family' Rates Top With NAACP

Other winners in the television category were Billy Dee Williams and Cicely Tyson for performances in Brian's Song and Neighbors, and Redd Foxx for Sanford and Son. NBC's Guilty by Reason of Race was named best documentary.

In recording, Aretha Franklin and Bill Withers were chosen best singers; the Jackson Five, the Staple Singers and the Supremes best singing groups, and best gospel album was Amazing Grace.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Leukemia

A reader writes me much distressed because he has been told that he has leukemia. He wants to know what chance he has of living, and how long he will live. Naturally, not knowing the man or having seen him, I cannot tell him specifically about his case. But even if he were my patient, I would not want to put a time limit on his life.

I learned long ago that it is unwise ever to tell a patient how long he has to live, because I have seen so many surprising things. Some people who were given six months to live have outlived their doctors by many years. Even when a person has cancer, it is difficult to say that he has only a few months to live People differ so much in their resistance to the disease. Also, there are at least four different grades of cancer Some grow very fast, and others grow very slowly.

Actually, there are several types of leukemia, somewhat different from one another. I always think of leukemia as a cancer of the blood, because it behaves in that way. Into the blood there come, instead of thousands, perhaps millions of white blood cells, and this suggests that the bone marrow (where much of the blood is formed) has been strongly stimulated, perhaps by a virus.

The acute form of leukemia, which often attacks children, used to be rather quickly fatal. Today, with drugs and powerful radiations available, many of the patients areliving longer than they used to live. Some even appear to be cured.

There is also a chronic form of leukemia, in which the person, more likely an adult, can live long.

My correspondent also wondered what could have caused him to get leukemia. He wonders if it is hereditary or due to a poison. He says that his father has been a plumber all his life, with frequent exposure to sewer gas. Also, he wonders if his disease is contagious.

As I have said, there is some evidence that leukemia is caused by a virus, and much research is being done in this area. But until we know more about the cause, we cannot say for sure that it was or wasn't due to a specific agent. Also, we cannot say for sure that it is or is not slightly hereditary.

Extra-Terrestrial Life Pondered

BOSTON (AP) — Will contacting life on other worlds change man's image of himself for the better? Or will it destroy his initiative by allowing him to depend on a superior intelligence, and possibly change his very image of God?

These and other questions were considered by experts in the sciences, social sciences, theology and communications who met here during the weekend to consider the effects upon man of possibly contacting extraterrestial life.

The symposium, sponsored by the U.S. national space agency and Boston University department of astronomy, focused on the social and philosophical implications of contacting other beings in space.

All of the experts agreed it is almost certain that human beings are not alone in the galaxy and certainly not in the universe. But there were varying views on when, if ever, contact might be made and what its implications may be.

Professor Carl E. Sagan, director of Cornell University's Laboratory for Planetary Studies, said that human technology has reached a stage where man could detect another civilization as advanced as himself, although the search may be prolonged.

"The most optimistic estimate of civilizations in our galaxie s one million, which means one per many hundred thousand stars," Sagan said. He noted that a 10-year search of radio signals from space has produced no contact and added that searching the thousands of stars one by one could go on for hundreds of years, before it is fruitful.

Sagan said man is at a unique evolutionary period "in which the old, secure sense of where we are in the universe has eroded." He said contact with extraterrestial life could help man re-establish his relation to other human beings and give mankind a new sense of where it fits into the universe.

Anthropologist Ashley Montagu said man has done a bad job of dealing with his fellow man and suggested that some housecleaning is needed on earth before we contact another civilization or it contacts us.

Dr. Krister Stendahl, dean of the Harvard divinity school, said discovery of life elsewhere would teach man that God's domain is larger and would bive him a better idea of his place in it.

Contacting other beings, Stendahl said, may help man to stop viewing God in his own image, with all its limitations.

Dr. George Wald, professor of biology at Harvard University and a winner of the Nobel Prize in medicine, said he is convinced there is life elsewhere in the galaxy, but doubts the possibility of man ever contacting it.

HERE'S TO SUCCESS of the new building, Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes and E. S. Cassels toast at the opening of the Esquimalt-Dockyard Branch 172 Royal Canadian Legion's new building. The branch, which started in 1944 with 55 members and now has more than 800 on its rolls, has its new building on Admiral's Road. Cassels is the president of the branch.

B.C. Labor Outlines CS Rights

Civil servants should have the right to bargain collectively and the right to strike, the British Columbia Federation of Labor said today.

In a brief to the commission inquiring into civil service bargaining in B.C., the federation said "the right of an employee to withdraw his services is a fundamental right and as such must be maintained for all employees."

The federation pointed out that "the legislature always retains the power to take any necessary action to protect public health and safety."

B.C. civil servants do not have bargaining rights and were forbidden to strike by the old Mediation Commission Act. However, this prohibition was deleted by the new government when the legislature revamped the act in the special session this fall.

"Opposition to strikes in the public sector would appear to result mainly from the notion that such strikes are in conflict with the 'public interest.' But of course the public interest issue in the question we have just raised concerns the matter of unacceptable injury or damage to the public when work stoppages occur in essential services," said the federation.

NOT IN ADVANCE

The federation said the damage to the public interest from a work stoppage is "not something that can be accurately ascertained until the realities surrounding a particular dispute are fully known" and should not be regulated in advance.

"Any such formula could be built into both labor and management's bargaining strategy and actually hinder the settlement of disputed contracts," it said.

"Instead, we suggest that without restrictions against strike action it is entirely possible that the parties might very often reach settlements well short of the strike arising as an imminent possibility.

"The parties themselves would be free to develop provision at the bargaining table for means of settlement other than the strike or provisions to ensure, partially or wholly, the continuation of essential services."

The federation pointed to examples—such as one-day walkous by B.C. highways department crews last summer—to show that "merely legislating against strikes will not stop them."

On the other hand, Saskatchewan civil servants have had the strike right for 28 years and there has not been a single strike.

The federation said it opposes binding arbitration because it negates the right to strike and because it "rarely solves any major issue." Because both sides must accept a settlement they didn't negotiate, "neither side, as a rule, is satisfied. Consequently the issue is left to fester and oft times reappears in subsequent negotiations."

SPECIAL ACT URGED

The federation said it favors creation of a special act to govern civil service bargaining, a Public Service Labor Relations Act. A Public Service Staff Relations Board would administer and regulate labor relations within the civil service.

The board should consist of three members—one to represent the employees, one to represent the employer and a neutral chairman.

The federation said determining the appropriate unit for collective bargaining "will be one of the most difficult questions facing the provincial government in devising this new legislation."

"Of nine provinces now bargaining with their employees, six allow for only one bargaining unit while three allow for more than one union in their civil service," said the federation.

It opposed government designation of single-union recognition saying this should be in the hands of the employees. But, whenever possible, "we encourage the establishment of large, effective bargaining units."

The federation also supported a union shop among civil servants, upon request from a majority of employees.

Women Catch Up to Men In Rate of Heart Attacks

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Women are catching up to men in the incidence of unexpected death from heart attack, an increase that seems to be related primarily to a higher rate of cigarette smoking, a New York researcher said Saturday.

"Women are becoming liberated now and have all the advantages and disadvantages of men," said Dr. David Spain of Brookdale Hospital.

Addressing scientific sessions of the American Heart Association, Spain described a study of such unexpected deaths in collaboration with Drs. Henry Siegel and Victoria Bradess of New York's Westchester County medical examiner's office.

An earlier study from the same office found that in the 1949-59 decade the ratio of men to women dying unexpectedly of coronary heart disease was 12 to 1, but in the later study, 1967-71, it had dropped to 4 to 1.

Autopsies were performed on the women and they were seen to have more atherosclerosis—the thickening of the arteries—than non-smokers who died of other causes.

The researchers obtained smoking and medical histories of the dead women from their relatives. Women with other conditions which might contribute to heart attacks were not included.

The new study included 29 women who died unexpectedly of heart disease and 153 from other causes. More than half of those autopsied were nonsmokers, but only three of the heart cases had not smoked. Eighteen — 62 per cent — of the heart cases were heavy smokers.

The study indicated also that women who smoke heavily died younger. Among nonsmokers who died unexpectedly of heart disease the average was 67, while it was 48 for heavy smokers those who smoked more than 20 cigarettes a day.

Service Stations Suing Oil Firms

TORONTO (CP) — An association representing 1,500 of Ontario's 9,500 service station operators filed a writ of summons in Supreme Court charging seven major oil companies with misrepresentation, breach of contract and promotion of price wars.

The writ, filed by the Ontario Retail Gasoline and Automotive Service Association is against Imperial Oil, Sun Oil, Petrofina Canada, Texaco Canada, Gulf Oil Canada, Shell Canada and BP Oil.

George Coates, manager of the association, said the organization is seeking a confrontation with oil companies in an effort to obtan lower gas prices.

He said 70 per cent of the motoring public use brand-name gas stations while the other 30 per cent prefer less service and cheaper prices at the less-advertised brand stations.

He said most of the association's members lease stations from oil companies who then become both supplier and landiord.

The writ alleges misrepresentation of "exclusive" franchise agreements and asks for damages and an injunction.

Breach of contract is alleged where oil companies open "off-brand" stations near franchise service stations. The association charges that the off-brand stations sell at prices lower than the wholesale prices charged to the franchise dealers.

In the past, the oil companies have argued that harsh competition forces them to sell at one price to the service station customer who requires credit-cards service and windshield washing and another price to the bargain hunter.

In its writ, the association also criticizes the non-disclosure of fees or profits received by oil companies from firms which supply automotive products to the service stations. Service-station lessees are required to buy these accessories only from designated dealers.

Promotional gimmicks and giveaways were criticized as a financial burden to operators and the writ alleged that oil companies "demanded" co-operation and participation under threat of non-renewal of leases.

The association wants an injunction to stop oil companies from creating subsidiary stations in direct competition with franchised dealers.

Association lawyer Barry Percival said he plans to serve the writ on the oil companies within four weeks.

Cheques Promised Fire-Victim Family

Cash donations to the fund for Esquimalt fire victim Gordon Scott, still in critical condition in Victora General Hospital, total $51 to date, said one of the fund's organizers today.

"There have been anonymous calls over the weekend offering to send us cheques," said neighbor Mrs. Helen Jeffries of 1221 Lyall, who has opened an account for the Scott family.

Mrs. Jeffries said however, that no cheques have yet appeared.

Donations to the fund should be sent to the Bank of Montreal 1251 Esquimalt Road, and marked to account T10-757.

Shoppers Lack Faith in Freeze

By RODNEY PINDER

LONDON (AP) — "Freezes come and incomes go, and prices rise forever."

The comment came from a young printer escorting his wife around a big shopping centre almost two weeks after the British government imposed a wages-and-prices freeze in an effort to beat inflation.

"You either put up some of your prices, or you close shutters and go out of business," said one storekeeper.

"We are taking follow-up action to find out why some prices have gone up," said a government official. "But it still hasn't got through to people that there are certain things exempt from the freeze."

The comments summed up a three-dimensional view of Prime Minister Heath's 90-day freeze imposed this month.

Shoppers and small storekeepers agreed something must be done to conserve the value of their incomes, some welcomed the government's move because it represented action, few believed it would have any real effect.

They will have to be convinced that Britain's inflation rate of nearly 10 per cent a year — the highest in Western Europe — can be harnessed."

But the freeze seems to have had some initial success.

For the first time in five years not a single price increase was reported by the weekly foodstuffs journal, The Grocer.

The government is encouraged, but the shoppers are skeptical.

"My cost are still going up by the day," said Shirley Bezodis, 33-year-old working wife of printer John, 34. She had about $65 a week to spend on rent, utilities and food.

Newspapers have been carrying full-page government advertisements telling the public that, if they have a quarrel about a price, they should complain to the storekeeper and ultimately to a ministerial task force. A phone number was provided for complaints.

Polly Two's Broadside Nets VIP Treatment

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) Polly Two arrived here Saturday afternoon, riding in the passenger compartment of a jetliner and escorted by, among others, Erik Neilsen, Conservative MP for The Yukon.

Polly Two's cross-country trip ended Sunday when she arrived in Carcross to attend the funeral and assume ownership of the perch of her predecessor Polly, the pioneer parrot who died last week, aged about 125 at the Caribou Hotel.

Polly Two started her journey Saturday in the baggage compartment of a CP Air jet bound for Vancouver from Montreal. The bird, donated by Montreal radio station CFCF, put up such a squawk in Vancouver that she earned herself a seat in the passenger section for the flight to Whitehorse.

The six-month-old Colombian parrot met Nielsen in Vancouver International Airport while CBC-TV crews were filming her transfer from one plane to the next.

Feathers were ruffled when a CP Air worker arrived with a cage, Polly Two let loose with a broadside at everyone present.

To soothe ruffled feelings, CP Air ordered a new cage, bent regulations and granted Polly Two a seat in the passenger section.

On Sunday, Polly Two travelled by rail to Carcross with her new owner, Dorothy Hopcott. She attended funeral rites there for Polly near a pioneer cemetery, and then was taken to her perch in the Cariboo Hotel to assume duty as the newest, meanest, orneriest bird in the territory.

Nightmarish Task Faces Peacekeepers

By MARK MEREDITH

SAIGON (Reuter) — Confronting the peacemakers in Indochina is the nightmarish task of turning off the Vietnam war with a ceasefire.

How do you stop a war which permeates the 600 miles of jungles, highways, rivers and villages of South Vietnam and whose front lines are inextricably interwoven? How do you keep it stopped?

There, 40 Viet Cong storm into a hamlet and overcome local militia guards. Next, 100 government troops arrive and surround the hamlet to drive out the Communists. But then the treaty is signed and a ceasefire goes into effect.

Who will ensure than an enterprising soldier from the People's Liberation Army (Viet Cong) or from the Saigon forces does not move a stake marking his area of control a few paces to take in a rice paddy or a pig pen or cut off a roadway?

Despite the apparent nearness of a peace agreement, the technicalities of observing a ceasefire are far from ready. Diplomatic sources in Washington say one of the snags about reaching a final agreement lies in organizing effective international supervision.

Members of a proposed four-nation control commission — Canada, Hungary, Poland and Indonesia — have been approached, and the U.S. state department reported it was encouraged by the preliminary soundings. But a working body is still far from moving into operation.

A few hundred observers can hardly cover all four military zones in South Vietnam. There are an estimated 150,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in South Vietnam attacking a government force of one million men.

The International Control Commission (ICC), of Canada, India and Poland set up by the Geneva Conference in 1954 was instructed to control, observe, inspect and investigate conditions relating the the ceasefire.

But the ICC was soon crippled by ideological differences among its members and the requirement for unanimity on reports concerning violations which threatened an outbreak of hostilities.

The commission was unable, because of its own built-in handicaps and frequent lack of co-operation by North and South Vietnamese liaison committees, to observe shipments of arms being sent to the North and South by their allies. Soon the ICC became totally overwhelmed by the new Indochina war.

RERUN CUT URGED

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Screen Actors Guild will demand that actors be paid their full salary each time a television show is rerun unless networks drastically cut the number of reruns in prime time, the guild's president says.

"The guild served notice to the networks that, unless their rerun policy was modified, primary goals for the next negotiations will be a strict and effective limitation on the number of reruns permitted and/or 100 per cent of original salary every time an actor's performance is shown," John Gavin said.

The guild want reruns limited to no more than 25 per cent of prime television time. Reruns now take up as much as 60 per cent of prime time, the guild says.

Children Rob Nests

Manchester Guardian

LONDON — London Zoo was robbed this season of over three dozen birds' eggs — many of them rare species — by children who raided nests in daylight while visitors watched.

The losses, announced in the zoo's newsletter, were the worst recorded. A spokesman said that zoo officials had gone to enormous lengths the past eight months to trace the children's schools and parents. They had succeeded in over 20 cases. Some children had apologized personally to zoo keepers.

The eggs belonged to the sacred ibis, sarus cranes, storks, egrets, ducks and geese. Children had also been caught firing ball bearings at humming birds.

Visitors wached as children broke into the Snowdon Aviary and scaled a tree to rob a cattle egret's nest 12 feet above the ground. One child jumped a four-foot moat to rob a heron's nest. Stork eggs were also taken when a keeper was called away for five minutes.

The average thief was a truant aged 12, who broke into the zoo. Ages ranged from eight to 16. Some were unsupervised members of school parties released in the zoo by their teachers for three or four hours.

Good Shady Garden Calls for Sharp Eye

While good weather lasts (and this includes even a rainy day or two) gardeners will continue planting. This is quite according to our normal gardening schedule here on the coast, especially with deciduous (leaf-losing) shrubs and trees, and the herbaceous perennials which more or less die back to soil each fall.

Perennials to flower in shaded or partially shaded parts in the garden are required, for most gardeners soon learn that annuals are never successful in shade.

The degree of shade, and its duration in the various months of the year are important since plants may need a few hours of sun at some stage of their life cycle,

Shade from deciduous trees is only a limiting factor to plants after the new leaves are fully grown, an dthen it varies according to the shape and size of the tree leaves.

Cut-leaf Japanese maple leaves are not only smaller in dimensions than the native large leafed maple, but because of the finely cut edges the shade from the cut-leaf kinds is decidedly dappled.

In the same way, white birch leaves cast a pattern of shade, not forming a dense canopy such as found beneath a beech or chestnut.

A border or bed facing north in this latitude receives about four hours of early morning sunlight and the same amount before sunset at the height of summer. Overhead summer sun at noon will almost take in a complete north border against a house. All this depends on there not being tall trees nearby or higher buildings to obstruct the sunlight.

So the matter or planting a shady garden successfully comes back to the old point of whether the gardener is indeed an observant gardener.

Primulas of several species will bloom in a shaded garden for many weeks, intermittently from a first mild spell in February right through until their greatest splash in late spring. The Polyanthus species is well known for producing flower buds in late fall, while the Acaulis and Veris frequently show a few bright flowers in March.

The candelabra primulas love shade by the time they come into bloom during May, and will continue well into summer if given the moist dappled tree shelter suiting them. The Auricula primulas are more accommodating. More hours of sunlight encourage more blooms, always providing the soil is rich in humus to hold moisture without frequent watering in warm weather.

Give all these primulas a deep soil of leafmould, old cow manure and well rotted compost. Surface dressing each spring keeps it replenished, and your shady spot will be a beauty spot even though you never find any other genus than the Primula to give you color. With a filling-in of ferns for late summr, fall and winter you need make no apologies for your flowers in the shade.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

A slogan that has persisted through the ages is "always cover an honor with an honor" (or, in present-day usage, cover a picture card with a picture card). As a general slogan, it is a winning one, provided the word "always" is deleted. But, unfortunately, many players adhere to the slogan in toto, and thereby lose contracts that should have been fulfilled.

In today's deal, our South declarer's unthinking adherence to the principle of covering an honor with an honor cost him his game contract. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

West made an excellent decision when he elected to open the jack of spades instead of his fourth-highest diamond. As West viewed it, if he led diamonds, even if this suit became established in time, he had no outside entry to cash it. So he tried to hit partner's best suit.

Dummy's queen was played on the opening lead, East put up the spade king, and South allowed the king to win. East returned the six of spades, South's ace winning. West now made another good play when he "unblocked" by tossing the spade ten.

South next led the club nine, and took the finesse when West played low. After East had won this trick with his king, he cashed three spade tricks, thus handing declarer a one-trick set.

Declarer made a very poor play when he put up dummy's spade queen on the opening lead. Admittedly, West might have been leading the jack from some K-J-10 combination, in which case the queen would have won the trick. But by playing low instead, declarer could have guaranteed his contract.

South should have perceived that he was going to finesse in clubs in such a manner that if West had the club king, the club suit would be brought home without the loss of a trick; and that if the finesse lost, it would lose only to East. Hence, a low spade should have been played from dummy at trick one, South capturing West's jack with his ace. The dummy would now possess the doubleton Q-7 of spades.

The club finesse would be taken next, losing to East's king. No matter what the set-up was in spades — whether East or West possessed the spade king — the board's guarded queen of spades would effectively prevent the defenders from cashing more than the spade king.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Aunt Amelia smiled. "You know it's very rude to ask, but I will tell you," she said, replying to Tim's question. "A year ago I was twice as old as I was when the figures of my age were the same as they'll be one year from now but in reverse order."

It was too much for the boy. What about you?

TOKYO (AP) — Two Indonesians who had been adrift 38 days in the Pacific on a small wooden plank arrived at Yaizu, central Japan, Saturday aboard a Japanese fishing boat that picked them up Nov. 8. Port officials identified them as Moniko Pusirumamg, 42, and Belemon Kanalung, 20, mango sellers who left their home island of Siau Oct. 2. Their small boat capsized in a heavy squall and two other persons aboard were lost.

Studies Before Dams B.C. Gov't Pledges

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Future major hydro power projects in British Columbia will need environmental impact studies before the provincial government will consider them, Resources Minister Bob Williams pledged here Sunday.

He said in an interview that this will also apply to other forms of power-generating systems. He said that a number of existing projects are "an environmental mess" and accused the former Social Credit government of irresponsibility in not conducting such studies previously.

"Studies will be mandatory for future projects," he said. "At the moment, while there are no major power developments waiting approval, the government will determine the cost, staging and timetabling of the impact surveys."

He said eventually power rates may have to be raised to finance the studies, but this would not happen for a long time.

A masssive clean-up project at the Mica and Bennett dam sites on the Columbia and Peace rivers, respectively, may have to be expanded to clear snags, trees and floating debris from other locations, including the Duncan dam north of Kootenay Lake, he said.

TOO LATE

He said it is too late to do anything about the $140 million Kootenay Canal project on the Kootenay River between Nelson and Castlegar, "because power development has been going on so long there we don't even know what the river is like in its natural state.

"There are many instances when we don't know what a project does to the fish and wildlife in an area, nor do we know the site's recreation potential.

"Rather than looking at only one thing—producing power—we are attempting to look at the numerous benefits which can result from hydro developments."

B.C. Hydro chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum, who retires at the end of the year, said Sunday action has been taken in the last few years to minimize environmental damage from power projects.

PLAN CHANGED

"The excavation disposal site at the Kootenay Canal project was changed to avoid a small pool which contained steelhead fish, and a salmon spawning channel was constructed at the Duncan dam," he said.

He said extensive clearing was not done on the Duncan River because it would have been too expensive.

Williams also said Sunday the B.C. government is prepared to refund Seattle City Light the $207,398 the utility spent on land rentals while the flooding of B.C.'s Skagit Valley as part of the Ross dam power project was being considered.

But, the minister added, the government is prepared to take the issue to court if Seattle Light does not accept his decision to cancel the flooding.

"We are hoping for amicable discussions with our American friends, since this decision should come as no surprise. We are a new government with new attitudes and this is not a surprise," Williams said in an interview.

"We are prepared to refund the money Seattle has given the province in land rentals—there is no question about

GOLDA WILL ACCEPT HENRY'S HELP

WASHINGTON (WP) — Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said in an interview broadcast Sunday she would welcome assistance from Henry Kissinger in getting peace talks started in the Middle East, but made it clear Israel would resist any attempt by the U.S. to "press or provide" a settlement from outside.

"If (Kissinger) thinks he can help in negotiations between the parties, all of that kind of help is more than welcome, providing it is helping to get the parties to negotiate, and not somebody from the outside providing a solution or suggesting a solution or pressing a solution," Mrs. Meir said.

Brandt Sweeps To Easy Victory

By DAVID HUMPHREYS
Times Correspondent

BONN — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt won a decisive mandate from the German electorate Sunday for another four years of coalition government.

Despite snow, cold and fog in much of the country 91 per cent of voters went to the polls — a record in the republic's 23-year history and maybe in the Western World — to give the coalition an over-all majority of more than 40 seats in parliament.

Brandt's Social Democratic Party will have the largest block of seats for the first time in history when the new Bundestag meets Dec. 14. Their coalition partners also contributed solidly to the victory. The Free Democrats, a small free-enterprise party acting as a brake on Mr. Brandt's socialists, increased their share of the vote from 5.8 per cent in the 1969 election to about eight per cent Sunday.

Brandt and Foreign Minister Walter Scheel, Free Democrat leader, shook hands at a press conference when the extent of the victory became certain. Brandt announced he would go to East Berlin before Christmas — first West German chancellor to do so — to sign the treaty initialled 10 days ago aimed at improving relations between the two Germanys.

Brandt pledged to continue his policy of good neighborliness at home and abroad. Scheel said there was a wide-enough area of agreement between the Social Democrats and the Free Democrats to keep the parties busy in government for a full four years.

Brandt made the treaty, latest of a series of moves to improve relations with West Germany's Communist neighbors, the basic election issue. Opposition Leader Rainer Barzel of the Christian Democratic Union chose inflation, running at a rate of 6.4 per cent now, as his main theme.

The voters cast their ballots about 3 to 2 in favor of the coalition with its Ostpolitik theme. The Brandt foreign policy will now fit neatly into the timetable for full-scale talks between East and West intended to improve East-West relations as Brandt has sought to do between the Germanys.

Scheel even announced the opening in January of talks for mutual and balanced force reductions in Europe a few days before the election. Canada will take part by virtue of NATO forces stationed in

Ottawa, Cities Push For Tri-Level Talks

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government offered Sunday, at the start of the first tri-level conference of federal, provincial and municipal officials, to enter into a continuing consultation process involving all three groups.

Municipalities, constitutionally, are wards of the provinces and beyond the jurisdiction of the federal government but "no one level of government" can any longer respond to the challenges posed by modern-day cities, Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford said in a news release from the closed-door conference.

"We will establish new ways of attacking the urban challenge together, or our problems will drift from being manageable, as they are now, to being unmanageable almost overnight."

Basford said it is urgent that the three levels of government set up "some means of continuing consultation" to come to grips with the problems facing cities in the country.

The main problems from the federal viewpoint, were listed as housing, poverty, transportation, environment public finance, social instability and urban form, or the appearance of cities.

The news releases said Ottawa recognizes "the primary role of the provinces in municipal institutions and in shaping urban form" but noted that federal legislative and budgetary powers are used in the pursuit of national objectives and could also be used to further comprehensive planning "in which provinces have the lead role."

As well as establishing a continuing consultation process, Basford said, the three levels of government should attempt to consolidate their respective policies and "take coherent action together."

The release said federal activities already have a heavy impact on cities which it estimated will become the homes of 94.4 per cent of all Canadians by 2001.

The importance of participation by municiaplities in the federal and provincial decision-making process was stressed in a position paper presented by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

"The roles and responsibilities of all levels of governments are interdependent," the federation said in a position paper outlining its views at the start of the two-day conference. "All levels are governed by the same over-all goals."

PAKISTAN'S EX-GOVERNOR GIVEN LIFE

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — A Dacca court today convicted Dr. A. M. Malik, the last governor of East Pakistan, of waging war against Bangladesh and sentenced him to prison for life. He could have been sentenced to death.

Malik had pleaded not guilty to charges, which included causing contempt and hatred against the Bangladesh government and collaborating with the Pakistani army during the civil war last year. Malik was governor of East Pakistan from September until Dacca fell to Indian troops Dec. 16, 1971.

Peron Seizes Initiative

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Juan D. Peron, in Argentina only four days after 17 years of exile, has seized the political initiative from the ruling military junta in determining the course of the elections scheduled for March 11.

Bolstered by thousands of cheering, chanting supporters, the 77-year-old former dictator met Sunday night with leaders of the other major political parties. They accepted insults and catcalls from the crowd to attend a meeting called by Peron at the three-storey suburban home purchased for him by his supporters.

Peron was to continue his meetings with political leaders today to strengthen his position in any future negotiations with the military government.

There has been no major reaction so far from the government except for a warning that it would take any measures necessary to maintain order around Peron's house.

About 1,000 militant Peronists camped overnight around bonfires in a vacant lot across from the villa and on neighborhood lawns. More than 10,000 had gathered there after Sunday afternoon soccer games, but this was far less than the 50,000 who packed the narrow, tree-lined street the night before.

Also at the meeting were other represenatives of the Hour of the People, a loose organization of political parties formed in 1970 to put pressure on the military government to call elections and hand power over to a civilian government.

Peron had carefully avoided any public criticism of the ruling junta headed by President Alejandro Lanusse.

It is believed that if Peron does not succeed in forming a sufficiently strong political alliance, he might try to negotiate with Lanusse to choose a presidential candidate acceptable to both the Peronists and the armed forces.

Servants Can Strike

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

In every session of the provincial legislature, there seems to be one or two bits and pieces of legislation which escape public attention until sometime after the MLAs have gone home.

OVERLOOK

The overlooked move is contained in the amendments to the old Mediation Commission Act and its effect is to remove the illegality from civil servants taking part in a strike.

Civil servants have not been given a legal right to strike but the legal prohibition on striking has been removed. This was the situation prior to 1968 when the Social Credit government introduced the Mediation Commission Act.

Labor minister Bill King today described the overlooked section of the legislation as "a housekeeping measure" and said the five-man committee which is presently conducting hearings into the issue of collective bargaining rights for civil servants will be dealing with the problem of strike rights when it brings in its recommendations.

AN OFFENCE

The former section 50 of the mediation commission act had a subsection (2) which read: "Every person employed by the Crown in right

Kissinger Back in Paris, Hopes for Quick Peace

PARIS (CP) — Henry Kissinger resumed his secret peace negotiations with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho in Paris today amid indications that their governments are determined to seek a quick settlement. (See also Page 34).

The U.S. presidential envoy who flew here Sunday night said on arrival that if the North Vietnamese negotiators showed the same spirit of understanding and flexibility which resulted in last month's nine-point draft agreement, "a rapid settlement of the war is probable."

U.S. officials hope that North Vietnam will agree to modify Vietnam peace terms to make them more acceptable to the Saigon government.

Tho's negotiating team, however, is expected to insist that there be no major modification of the nine-point agreement announced by Hanoi on Oct. 26.

Meanwhile, waves of U.S. B-52 bombers dropped 1,200 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese positions just below the demilitarized zone, military spokesmen reported today.

Forty of the Stratofortresses struck in support of South Vietnamese marines in Quang Tri province who were hit by 3,500-round artillery and mortar barrage over the weekend.

Hughes: Now Undersea Mines?

The mystery billionaire's project, shrouded in secrecy and centred in a compound on the shore of San Francisco Bay, rivals a science fiction tale in its imaginary approach.

A source, who did not want to be identified, said the project calls for sinking a barge to the ocean bottom. An undersea tractor, presumably automated, will ply the ocean bottom from the barge and bring back copper, nickel, manganese and cobalt from the ocean floor.

Once the mineral wealth is brought aboard, plans call for the barge to be refloated by air pumped from a surface ship.

So far, both the huge barge and a 618-foot-long ship, the "Hughes Glomar Explorer," have been built for the multi-million dollar venture. The barge sits in a secret guarded compound in Redwood City where it is being outfitted.

A spokesman for Hughes Tool Co. in Houston, confirmed the company is embarking on an undersea mining venture, but declined to discuss details.

Global Marine, Inc., of Los Angeles acknowledged building the ship in Chester, Pa., and Lockheed Corp. confirmed it is doing work on the project for Hughes. But neither firm would discuss any details.

Security at the bayside work site here is tight and even city inspectors must phone first for permission to enter.

Government scientists have queried Hughes' officials regarding the mystery barge but have never received an answer.

"Hughes must be going after something very big," said Oleg Terichow, a mining engineer at the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration's experimental marine mining facility at nearby Tiburon.

"We've written several letters but never even got them acknowledged," he said.

Two sheds have been built next to the almost 400-foot-long barge, located near the busy San Francisco Bayshore Freeway.

A redwood City building inspector said the sheds are "conventional, steel-framed structures. Something was being fabricated inside and taken into the barge."

He said his men were not allowed inside the barge, which was built in San Diego under strict security.

Globa Marine will run the ship for Hughes, the spokesman said, but he would not reveal the nature of the operation.

Global Marine is a leder in undersea exploration. It currently operates the Global Challenger, a vessel taking undersea core samples for the Scribbs Institute of Oceanography. The company also runs at least 10 oil-drilling ships.

DUBLIN ARRESTS IRA 'MASTERMIND'

DUBLIN (CP) — The provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army is calling for "a wave of protest" in the United States, Britain and Ireland against the arrest by the Irish government of the Provos' chief of staff, Sean MacStiofain.

The Provisionals' political arm, Sinn Fein, said MacStiofain's arrest in Dublin Sunday was an "act of collaboration" with the British Army, "calculated to give aid and comfort to the forces of British imperialism in Ireland."

MacStiofain is believed to be the mastermind of the IRA's campaign of violence in Northern Ireland, which is aimed at uniting the province with the Irish Republic.

The Dublin government has been reluctant to crack down on IRA leaders because of their grass-roots support in the republic. But in recent months the government pushed a Special Powers Act through Parliament to bring IRA men to trial without jury and several other terrorist leaders have been arrested.

Business Zoning Top Issue

Opposition to a proposed commercial zone in the heart of Gordon Head residential suburb is expected to be a main issue at a Saanich all-candidates meeting Nov. 29.

Up to 10 candidates vying for four council vacancies are expected to attend the meeting organized jointly by Cadboro Bay and Gordon Head ratepayer associations.

Gordon Head ratepayers' president Barrie Goult said that although the current council's proposed declaration of Gordon Head district as a community plan under terms of the Municipal Act is a good concept, the provision for commercial development at its core is disturbing to homeowners. A petition opposing the idea is being circulating.

Council's purpose in bringing the proposal forward at this time is to make provision for future orderly development in the district, primarily to safeguard the amenities now enjoyed and to ensure that whatever commercial, service and multiple density construction evolves is confined to a specified location.

This would forestall any trend toward spot zoning for commercial areas in Gordon Head, council has been told by its planners.

Focus of the commercial zone would be at San Juan and Tyndall, at present consisting of mixed single family residential and agricultural land. It is the geographic centre of Gordon Head district.

The meeting will be held in the lower hall of St. Dunstan's Church at San Juan and Tyndall, at 8 p.m. Chairmen will be Goult and John Cox, president of Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? Seven vowels and a lot of agile tongue work when you try to pronounce the name of the 41-foot ketch owned by Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Cobb, tied up at the Oak Bay Marina. The boat is named after the couple's tiny daughter, seen here with her mother. Ooglebagoogers is the Cobbs' nickname for the midget 'salt', whose official title is Sunshine. She will be along when the family heads south for cruising in warmer climes.

Boys Age 10 to 12 Rape, Kill Girl, 9

NEW YORK (AP) — Three boys aged 10, 11 and 12 were arrested Sunday and charged with raping a seven-year-old girl and hurling her from the roof of a south Bronx tenement six stories to her death.

The victim's nine-year-old sister also was lured or forced to the roof but managed to escape, police said. A hospital examination determined she had not been sexually molested.

The girls had gone out to buy some pizza Saturday afternoon when they were accosted by the boys, two of whom were brothers, police said.

As the younger girl was being tossed from the roof, her sister fled down the stairway. The boys escaped over adjoining roofs to another building, but were picked up eight hours later by police.

They were charged with juvenile delinquency — specifically murder, rape and robbery. Police said they had taken 60 cents from the girl who died.

TORIES PAY LEAST

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Progressive Conservative government caucus has been presented with a petition signed by 20 of its 50 secretaries claiming their salaries "have been sadly neglected."

The secretaries demanded in their petition and an accompanying letter to the Conservative backbenchers to know by Wednesday, the day after the legislature reopens, "whether this is a dead-end job so that we can come to some conclusions as to our futures."

Secretaries for the New Democratic Party, the Liberal party and the civil service all earn more than their counterparts in the Conservative ranks.

The Conservative caucus secretaries start at $110 a week and make the maximum of $122 a week within a year. They get three weeks paid vacation plus 1¼ days a month accumulative sick leave credits. There are no other fringe benefits.

DRUG FACTORY RAIDED

SQUAMISH (CP) — RCMP said Sunday they have broken up an illegal drug ring which operated a "speed" factory in a small log cabin in the bush near here, 40 miles north of Vancouver.

Three persons were arrested and 20 pounds of chemicals used to produce methamphetamine — "speed" — were seized in a raid during the weekend.

Gary Alexander Madryga, 30, of Burnaby, Andre Bechard, 34, and Barbara O'Grady, 24, are to appear in provincial court charged with conspiring to traffic in the drug. Two others were sought.

A member of the police team, which investigated the drug ring for nine months before making arrests, said the chemicals taken would have produced about $60,000 worth of methamphetamine.

Secret Inquiry Begins Into University Deaths

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The state attorney-general's office begins a full-scale inquiry today into last Thursday's clash at Southern University in which two students were shot to death.

Attorney-General William Guste assigned two assistants, one black, one white to conduct the inquiry requested by Gov. Edwin Edwards.

Guste said the investigation would be conducted in secret.

University administrators, meanwhile, fired two faculty members they said had encouraged student protests, and Edwards termed "totally inaccurate" a newspaper story that he had blamed a deputy sheriff for the deaths.

The students, Denver Smith of New Roads, La., and Leonard Douglas Brown of Gilbert, La., both 20, were struck in the head and shoulders by buckshot as state police and sheriff's deputies scattered a crowd in front of the university's administration building.

The violence climaxed three weeks of student protests at the largest predominantly black college in the United States, and led to the closing of the school.

Authorities have said their men used nothing but tear gas to disperse students. But Edwars, talking with reporters, acknowledged a deputy sheriff might have mistakenly fired live ammunition at the crowd.

University president Dr. G. Leon Netterville, 65, sent notices of dismissal Friday to two faculty members, including the head of the school's physics department, Dr. Joseph Johnson.

Reliable sources said the president also had fired three or four other instructors.

Netterville declined comment.

The other instructor known to have been fired was George Baker, an assistant professor of engineering.

Symphony Concerts Mix Old, New Compositions

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

The current pair of Victoria Symphony concerts provides an easily accessible bridge between old and contemporary modes of musical writing.

The other three works on the program belong to the 20th century. For those who have ever thought otherwise, all three prove that bewitching melodic invention did not end with the romantic school. Moreover, texturally and in terms of color, this is music that is fresh and constantly offers the enchantment of the unexpected.

Lazlo Gati gives us Shostakovich's Ninth Symphony to crown a program in which we hear Yepes' superb solo guitar poised with miraculous resonance against the full orchestration of Rodrigo's Fantasia. This, together with an opener of distinct melodic and rhythmic charm — Eugene Zador's Aria and Allegro — written for brass and strings, clearly reveals the competence of the orchestra's brass choir.

In the Vivaldi and Rodrigo numbers, Yepes looms as an artist of rare stature. The 10-string guitar, his own creation, speaks under his hands in a limpid, bravura style, singing its lyric passages with a rare sweet resonance. Yepes commands a remarkable legato on his non-sustaining instrument, and this lends an exquisite purity and flow to the largo movement of the Vivaldi and to some of the more reflective moods of the Rodrigo.

The strings accompanied the Vivaldi with vitality, fine definition and a pleasing lightness and smoothness of tone, Gati setting and maintaining an excellent tempo throughout.

In melodic line, in mood and in the beauty of its instrumentation the Rodrigo Fantasia Para un Gentilhombre is a gem from both solo and accompaniment point of view and on Sunday it was performed with artistry and skill.

With the Shostakovish Ninth the orchestra was lead by Gati to provide its finest and most exciting performance so far this season.

Life's Finer Things Make a Longish List

Item: An amusing interview on the CBC this morning with Howie Meeker, one of the great hockey players of all times, and I was impressed with his direct answer when asked about skates for young players. All skates today are shabby, even dangerous, said Howie, except the Bauer Skate and a parent should buy no other brand.

Got me to thinking of how rarely we hear such positive endorsement of a product for no other reason than loyalty and conviction. Everyone, I suppose, would have his own list of items for which he'd have no substitute, a private testimonial to excellence in a day when so many products seem of poor quality.

Jotting down my own list, under the heading Products I Swear By, I found I'd included Sunlight Soap for shampoos (a tip given to me by a senior nurse at Royal Jubilee), the Coleman camp stove, King Oscar sardines, the Seagull outboard motor, Libby's tinned chile con carne, the new Gillette double-blade razor, Rogers chocolates, the Peetz reel, Heineken ale and LCB Canadian rye whisky, Eddy's changeless kitchen matches and the Titlist golf ball.

From there I went to HP Sauce and Heinz ketchup, Chester Barry suits and the Parker pen, Danish bacon and Saltspring Island lamb chops, Cook's travel service and Hathaway shirts, any Marks and Spencer store in Britain, Campbell's soups, the Tom Mack four-and-a-half spoon, the "K" British-made shoe, Ronson lighters and Wille's French bread, the New Yorker, The Manchester Guardian, anything written by I. P. Stone or drawn by Bob Bierman, Bicycle playing guards, Ella Fitzgerald singing Gershwin, Primo's tamales . . .

But I realized then that the list might be without end and perhaps everybody's would be different.

★ ★ ★

Item: A hushed call from one of our downtown operatives reporting that among those patiently waiting for a noon-hour table at the Old British Fish and Chip Shop in Broad Street was Premier Dave Barrett. "How things have changed," he breathed to which I breathed in reply, "Amen."

Item: An interesting note today from a Victoria woman who has found herself the victim of a truly twentieth century ailment: Excessive noise.

"My hyper-sensitivity to noise was so bad I thought I was going crazy," she writes. Putting the comb through my hair caused a rasping sound that was deafening. The newspaper crackled loudly when I turned a page. The raucous cawing of crows drove me indoors. When a jet flew overhead I felt as though it was coming straight for me. Motorcycles and hot-rods made me leap up off the bus-stop benches. When a door slammed I felt as though it was slamming into my body. When anyone dropped a quarter into the bus fare box it sounded like a ton of raw ore being dropped in."

The search for a cure or for relief led inevitably to Los Angeles, one of the world's noisiest cities, and an outfit called Sigma Engineering. Seems they've developed a silicone filter called a Sonic Ear-Valv which screens out harmful high frequencies, but leaves the ear canal open for normal sounds.

It's a perilous world we live in, Master Jack.

Item: Back today from the Vancouver wedding of Gordon Root and Evelyn Caldwell and what a swell party that was! Evelyn is just a couple of years away from retiring as The Sun's "Penny Wise" but I've never seen a more radiant bride.

One of her longtime, devoted readers at Cobble Hill has sent me a clipping of a piece written some 30 years ago when Evelyn was doing her "Sauce For The Goose" column. One paragraph reads as follows:

"I wouldn't go back to my 'teens again for anything; in fact I wouldn't go back one single year of my life. I find that the older I get, the easier life becomes. As the years creep up, I learn to see that there are very few people and very, very few things in the world that really matter, and that so long as those few people and things remain okay, the rest of the mess can well go by the boards, there to be worried about by those unhappy ones, the younger generation. God help them!"

That was her philosophy then and it's her philosophy now.

Blaze Cripples Queen of Victoria

Crippled by an engine room fire, the B.C. Ferries' Queen of Victoria anchored overnight Saturday in Active Pass, almost at the same spot where she collided two years ago with a Russian freighter.

The fire was quickly extinguished with automatic carbon dioxide equipment. There were no injuries to crew or passengers.

Three people lost their lives when she collided with the Sergey Yesenin in the same area in 1970.

Saturday night, Capt. Albert Barry ordered all systems shut down. Auxiliary generators were pressed into action to provide heat and power for the long vigil ahead.

A B.C. Ferries official said today, "We couldn't afford to take any chances of starting another fire. The engines were still hot and pumping oil."

Anchored at Sturdies Bay, the Queen of Victoria remained there until early Sunday morning with the Queen of Sidney standing by in case it was found necessary to evacuate the vessel.

In the early hours, two tugs began towing her across the Strait of Georgia, docking her safely at the Tsawwassen terminal on the mainland where the weary passengers and crew disembarked at 6:30 a.m.

From there she was towed for repairs to Burrard Drydock in North Vancouver.

Details of an inquiry launched today are expected to be available Wednesday but a Burrard official reports that the damage appears to be relatively minor although smoke has made a "sweet mess" of the engine room.

Cause of the fire has been traced to a broken oil centrifuge (lubrication) filter in one of the diesel engines. It shot oil onto a hot manifold, which ignited, filling the engine room with thick smoke.

The ferry is expected to be out of commission for at least 10 days.

The B.C. Ferries' spokesman explained:

"Some of the insulation on cables has been destroyed and these will probably have to be replaced. It will be delivery of materials that will hold us up, not labor."

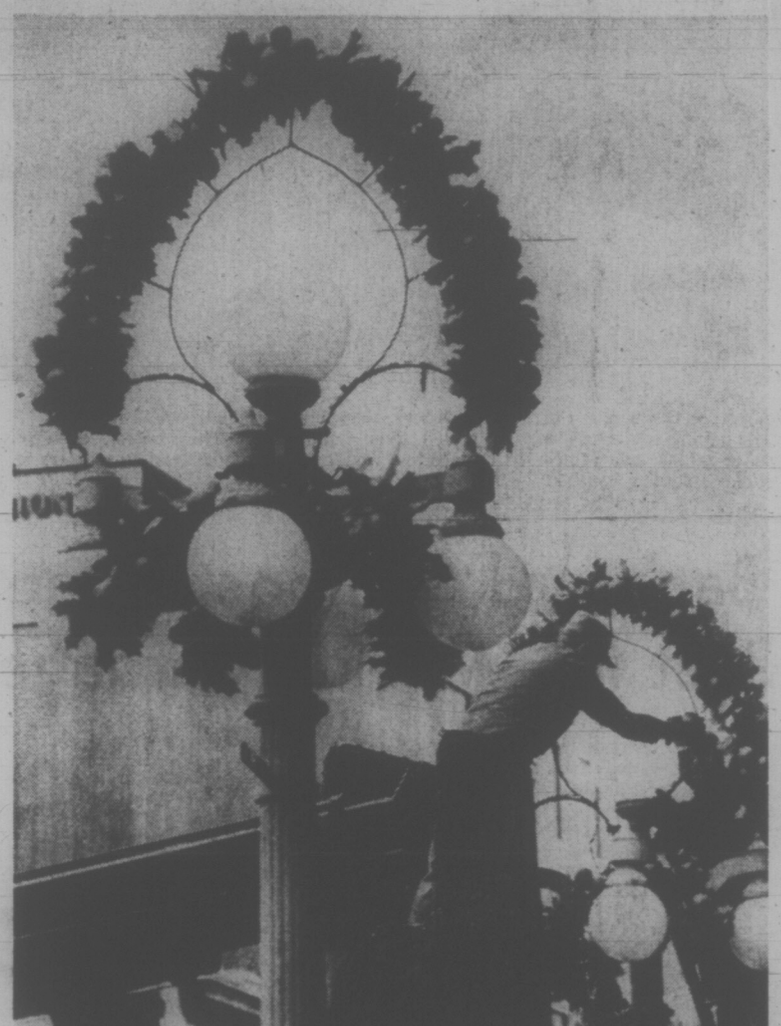
The Queen of Vancouver is also at Burrard, undergoing a refit. Work on her will be rushed in the hope that she can be put on the Strait of Georgia run next weekend.

Meanwhile, the daily sailings from Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen have been increased from 10 to 12 to compensate for the smaller carrying capacity of the Queen of Sidney.

Sailings from Swartz Bay are scheduled for 7, 8, 9 and 11 a.m., noon, 1, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8 and 9 p.m.

Sailings from the mainland terminal will be 7, 8, 10 and 11 a.m., 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7, 9 and 10 p.m.

An estimate of the damage will not be available until today's inquiry has been completed.



DECKING THE STREETS with plastic holly is becoming an annual occurrence in Victoria as the Yuletide season rolls around. In past years the ersatz Christmas decoration didn't sit well with local citizens and holly growers who thought natural holly should be used because Vancouver Island is the only area in Canada where the traditional Christmas sprigs thrive. City maintenance men John Campbell and Roy Jargo started adding the festive touch to Douglas Street today. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Last Minute Nominees File Papers

Two last-minute candidates filed nomination papers for the Victoria aldermanic election this morning, making a total of 10 aspirants for four vacant seats.

The late-comers were developer Sam Bawlf, making his first attempt for civic office, and realtor Henry Bitterman, one of the unsuccessful candidates in the last year's municipal election.

Bawlf, 28, of 624 Avalon Road, who has been involved in restoration of several old buildings in the city, said the council under Mayor Peter Pollen has had some good ides but seems "a little slow" in putting these into effect.

Other Victoria candidates are incumbents Tom Christie, Percy Frampton and Alf Hood; investment dealer Malcolm Anderson, Credit Bureau operator Robert Ellis, housewives Joyce Heynsbroek, Margaret Richards and civil servant Joe Richards, who is also seeking a seat on the Victoria schoolboard.

University of Victoria assistant professor Leslie H. Peake, of 2610 Arbutus, was a last-minute nominee for Saanich council elections today.

Three incumbents are running and the fourth, Ald. Ed Lum, has decided to retire from the council to devote bringing the list to nine for interests.

Aldermen Alan Newberry, 1900 Mayfair; Leslie Passmore, 2873 Austin, and Frank Waring, 3761 Waring, are the others, combining many years of council experience.

Four of the others are newcomers to the municipal field and two have made previous tries for election in Saanich.

One is Gregory Cook, 56, of 1091 Laburnum, who served six years on council before retiring in 1965. Vaughn Thompson, 47, of 4961 Georgia Park, was an unsuccessful candidate.

Newcomers are Nora Lindsay, 54, of 5222 Santa Clara; Joseph Bourque, 37, of 3636 Revelstoke; John McDonald, 35, of 3647 Doncaster, and Peake.

A would-be candidate for school district 63 board of trustees was Donald Grafton, who filed nomination papers which returning officer Gordon Hayward rejected because sponsors were resident outside the boundary of the school district.

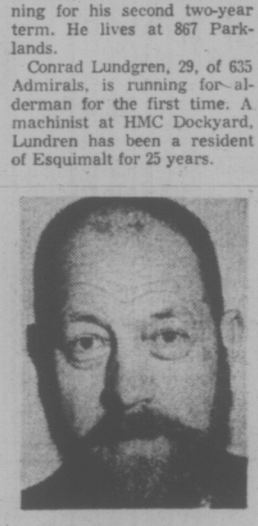
Terry Prentice, a 38-year-old engineer with the Public Utilities Commission, is running for his second two-year term. He lives at 867 Parklands.

Conrad Lundgren, 29, of 635 Admirals, is running for alderman for the first time. A machinist at HMC Dockyard, Lundren has been a resident of Esquimalt for 25 years.



GALBRAITH
. . . by acclamation

Jim McEvay, 50, of 401 Treebank Rd., owner-manager of Nu-Way Cleaners Ltd., and veteran organizer Leslie J. Fuller of 1162 Hadfield, are also running.

The third incumbent alderman, John Gourlay, 48, decided not to run again after suffering a heart attack in June.

★ ★ ★

A recreation centre and how it should be financed is certain to be a 'hot potato' for the eight aldermanic candidates in Oak Bay's election.

Newcomer to municipal politics, Neil Rawlins, 41, of 2090 Carvarvon, is basing his platform on the need for a centre in the municipality.

The B.C. Telephone supervisor says, "I feel that without a change in council we will not get a recreation centre in the foreseeable future. The sale of the Victoria Riding Academy property is the only way that a recreation complex can be financed without a major tax increase."

Retired professional engineer Harry Graham, of 633 Radcliffe Lane, is another candidate. He stresses the need for more consideration to be given people living on fixed incomes in the municipality.

Former unsuccessful candidate Humphrey Golby, of 1418 Newport, has also filed papers for the Dec. 9 election. A former hearing aid technician, Golby is now a real estate agent.

Making his first bid in the election will be Frank Butler, of 1187 Victoria. Butler is real estate manager for Brown Brothers Agencies Ltd.

The three incumbents who will be running for a second term on council are Ald. Shirley Dowell, of 3270 Upper Terrace; lawyer Ald. John Goult, of 1605 York Place, and Ald. Douglas Watts, of 2285 Woodlawn, a professional engineer with the provincial government.

★ ★ ★

In Sidney, four persons are seeking the three aldermanic vacancies for two-year terms. They are incumbents Wilkie Gardner and Fred Robinson, and challengers Patricia Merrett and John Molyard.

In the election for the single one-year term where nominations closed today, there are three candidates — John Hamilton, Len Siver and Leslie Nunn.

★ ★ ★

In Central Saanich, Mayor Archibald Galbraith was re-elected by acclamation when no-one came forward to oppose him. School trustee Gordon Ewan was also re-elected by acclamation.

But five candidates are seeking the three aldermanic vacancies — incumbents W. E. Clayards and Tom Michell, and challengers David Hill, David Price and Zachary Hamilton.

In North Saanich, seven persons are seeking the three aldermanic vacancies — George Aylard, J. D. Boon and G. O. Cumpston, already on council, and Eric Sherwood, Richard Kirk, J. K. Martin and R. S. Thuillier.

F. Lois Walsh and Henry J. Lake are vying for the school trustee seat.

Councils Examine Arena Concept

A close-up look at a new privately-owned arena complex in Burnaby will be taken Friday by members of at least two Greater Victoria municipal councils.

The visit planned by Saanich is open to any others interested, said Mayor Hugh Curtis, in view of a shortage of arena ice-time generally in the capital region.

Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford will be one of those from outside the municipality invited to make the trip by private car.

Saanich at present is subject of a municipal study of site, design and cost estimate for a publicly-owned arena facility, to be presented to ratepayers at the earliest opportunity.

At the same time, Columbian 4-Rinks Ltd., of Burnaby, is surveying the capital city's skating rink requirements to determine feasibility of a multiple-rink complex along the lines of its four-rink arena serving the lower mainland.

Columbian and Saanich council have met informally to exchange information on rinks, with commitments on neither side. To get a better appreciation of what the private company could offer, Saanich planned the visit to Burnaby.

Those aldermen on Saanich council who support a referendum for a publicly-owned arena still favor the idea that the public should be permitted to express an opinion, but do not rule out a private facility if public needs are met.

Christie Wants Gov't To Pay Tax Bill in Full

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

City of Victoria taxpayers are subsidizing the provincial government to the tune of $554,755 annually because the government is "too damned stingy" to pay full taxes on its property in the city.

That's the view of Ald. Tom Christie, and a city drive to change the situation is one of several financial moves he is suggesting in his Dec. 9 re-election bid.

Christie told a noon press conference he would like to see pressure applied to the provincial government to pay the full general mill rate on its "vast" holdings of lands and buildings inside city boundaries.

"At the present time they arbitrarily fix their own mill rate of 15 mills only, whereas they should be paying 44 mills," he said.

"The federal government pays in full, so why not the province? Actually, the city of Victoria is subsidizing the provincial government, in providing full municipal services to the tune of $544,755 a year."

Christie said with the recent change in the government and the huge surplus in the provincial treasury he believes "the time is ripe" for the city to make new approaches for its fair share of the total tax dollar in other areas:

—Elimination of municipalities' present 15 per cent share of welfare costs, to make this strictly a federal-provincial responsibility as it is in some other provinces. Saving to the city: close to $800,000 a year;

—An increase in the provincial per capita grant from $30 to $40, giving the city an extra $608,970;

—Bringing the hotel room tax under municipal jurisdiction, to offset annual debt charges on a badly-needed cultural and convention centre.

Christie said the granting of such requests would give the city the equivalent of revenue from 11.6 mills to spend on maintaining its capital works projects and meeting pressing demands for extra services in police and fire protection.

RED TAPE FOULS SEWAGE OUTFALL

The Pollution Control Branch will not be able to get around to an application to extend Clover Point sewage outfall until early next year, the Capital Regional District has been advised.

District engineer Bill Gerry said today the PCB has advised that, because of its workload and the time required for processing the application, it is not expected the district will hear for 120 days from the date of application. This would bring it to February, at the earliest.

The regional board agreed at its Sept. 20 meeting to seek PCB permission to extend Clover Point outfall, which ends just off the shoreline, to 6,400 feet or just over one mile.

This is intended to be a prelude to linking both Clover Point and McMicking Point (Oak Bay) outfalls to the new McCaulay Point outfall in Esquimalt, via a land connection. The extended Clover Point outfall would remain as a storm water bypass during periods of heavy rain and runoff.

SANDPILE DEATH PROBED

An inquest into the sand bunker death of 13-year-old Dean Wade Tickner will continue Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m.

The boy died last Thursday when the Metchosin Road sand bunker in which he and a friend were playing, collapsed on him.

Dr. Garth Walter, chief pathologist at Victoria General Hospital, testified at the inquest's first hearing Friday that the boy died of suffocation as a result of the accident on Ocean Cement's sandpiles on the 3500 block Metchosin Road.

Missing Boy Seen This Morning

ERNIE WHITCOMB

Esquimalt police report that nine-year-old Ernie Whitcomb, missing from home since Sunday afternoon, was seen by school children around 8:45 a.m. Monday morning near Rock Heights school.

"At least he's made it through the night," said a police spokesman.

Acres of woodland in the Gorge Esquimalt area had been combed throughout the night by approximately 50 men in the search for the retarded boy, who can scarcely talk.

Hector Whitcomb, of 1201 Colville, said his son, Ernie, wandered away after some children were seen "throwing stones at him about a block and a half from home."

At 5 p.m. Sunday, Ernie was seen near the Colville Grocery. Nobody has seen him since.

The Whitcomb's neighbors were working on additions to their house and "Ernie was next door watching the men work," said Whitcomb.

"He didn't come home for lunch, but that's not unusual. He has an area of about four blocks around here where he plays. When he didn't come home for supper about five o'clock, we went out to look for him," he said.

Esquimalt police were notified at 7 p.m. and a search involving neighbors, police and 40 members of the armed services was organized.

The wooded area across the street from the Whitcomb's home was searched until 4 a.m. today without result.

Esquimalt police said the search resumed at dawn. The same area will be covered today and searchers will also comb the Gorge golf course.

The search is complicated by Ernie's inability to speak.

"He can say a few words and understand what you say, but can't really talk," said Whitcomb.

POVERTY IN NORTH SLAMMED

Hull, Que. (CP) — The National Anti-Poverty Organization NAPO, a newly-formed group representing Canada's poor, ended a three-day meeting here Sunday issuing harsh criticism against government welfare policies in the Canadian North.

In a statement released after the meetings, NAPO called upon the federal government to become responsible for the "deplorable living conditions in the Northwest and Yukon Territories."

It said the organization holds "the minister of Indian and northern affairs, Mr. Chretien, personnally responsible for the poverty in the territories."

The statement further demanded that the minister "personally attend" the next meeting of NAPO which is scheduled for later next year.

The group also demanded that the government raise present welfare payments in the North to a minimum of $40 a month, plus food and fuel allowances, for every person in need of welfare. Welfare is the responsibility of the territorial government.

Although the group plans to hold further national meetings, NAPO president Marg Hartling said the group is "broke."

Truman Didn't Want 'Back Door' Presidency

NEW YORK (AP) — Harry S. Truman fought against his own nomination as vice-president in 1944 because he knew President Franklin D. Roosevelt was a sick man, and Truman didn't want to go into the White House "through the back door," his daughter says.

In her forthcoming biography of the father, Margaret Truman Daniel says that after accepting the Democratic party's nomination at Roosevelt's telephoned insistence, Truman visited the president at the White House Aug. 18, 1944, and was "appalled" at his physical condition.

Margaret, in excerpts of the book in Life magazine, writes: "My father told close friends how the president's hands shook so badly at luncheon that he could not get the cream from the pitcher into his coffee. He spilled most of it into the saucer.

"He talked with difficulty. 'It doesn't seem to be any mental lapse of any kind, but physically he's just going to pieces,' dad said. 'I'm very much concerned about him'."

Roosevelt died of a stroke April 12, 1945, at Warm Springs, Ga. His doctor said later that Roosevelt suffered from congestive heart failure for the final year of his life.

Dr. Howard G. Bruenn, who was Roosevelt's physician in 1944 and 1945, said Roosevelt suffered an attack of angina pectoris Aug. 8, 1944, while speaking to a crowd at Bellingham, Wash.

Bruenn said it was not a "heart attack," but a transient pain which does not damage the heart. The doctor wrote about the incident last year in the Annals of Internal Medicine.

Margaret says that 10 days before the July Democratic convention in Chicago, her father wrote her a letter which indicated he knew Roosevelt was a sick man.

"Yes," Truman wrote, "They are plotting against your dad.

"It is funny how some people would give a fortune to be as close as I am to it, and I don't want it . . .

"Hope I can dodge it. 1600 Pennsylvania is a nice address, but I'd rather not move in through the back door — or any other door at 60."

Roosevelt had decided to dump vice-president Henry A. Wallace after polls showed him leading Republican Thomas E. Dewey only 51 per cent to 49 per cent for a fourth term, Margaret says.

Margaret says Democratic Chairman Bon Hannegan made repeated efforts to convince Truman that he was Roosevelt's choice, although Roosevelt avoided saying so publicly for fear of alienating backers of the other aspirants.

Finally Truman accepted.

Thomson Dies Former Moderator

MONTREAL (CP) — Very Rev. James Sutherland Thomson, 80, former moderator of the United Church of Canada and former dean of divinity at McGill University, died Saturday.

Born in Stirling, Scotland, Dr. Thomson obtained his master of arts degree and diploma theology from Glasgow University. He served in the British Army in the First World War and came to Canada in 1930 as a professor of theology at Pine Hill Divinity College in Halifax.

Dr. Thomson was president of the University of Saskatchewan from 1937 to 1949, when he came to McGill. He retired as dean of divinity in 1957, but remained a professor at the faculty until 1959.

He was named professor emeritus of philosophy of religion by McGill in 1966.

During his term as moderator of the United Church from 1956 to 1958, Dr. Thomson supported union with the Anglican Church of Canada. He said the greatest obstacle to union was a resurgence of denominational pride.

While at McGill, he was a member of both the Protestant school board of Greater Montreal and the Protestant committee of the Quebec Council of Education.

Funeral services will be held today.

Studies Before Dams B.C. Gov't Pledges

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Future major hydro power projects in British Columbia will need environmental impact studies before the provincial government will consider them, Resources Minister Bob Williams pledged here Sunday.

He said in an interview that this will also apply to other forms of power-generating systems. He said that a number of existing projects are "an environmental mess" and accused the former Social Credit government of irresponsibility in not conducting such studies previously.

"Studies will be mandatory for future projects," he said. "At the moment, while there are no major power developments waiting approval, the government will determine the cost, staging and timetabling of the impact surveys."

He said eventually power rates may have to be raised to finance the studies, but this would not happen for a long time.

A masssive clean-up project at the Mica and Bennett dam sites on the Columbia and Peace rivers, respectively, may have to be expanded to clear snags, trees and floating debris from other locations, including the Duncan dam north of Kootenay Lake, he said.

TOO LATE

He said it is too late to do anything about the $140 million Kootenay Canal project on the Kootenay River between Nelson and Castlegar, "because power development has been going on so long there we don't even know what the river is like in its natural state.

"There are many instances when we don't know what a project does to the fish and wildlife in an area, nor do we know the site's recreation potential.

"Rather than looking at only one thing—producing power—we are attempting to look at the numerous benefits which can result from hydro developments."

B.C. Hydro chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum, who retires at the end of the year, said Sunday action has been taken in the last few years to minimize environmental damage from power projects.

PLAN CHANGED

"The excavation disposal site at the Kootenay Canal project was changed to avoid a small pool which contained steelhead fish, and a salmon spawning channel was constructed at the Duncan dam," he said.

He said extensive clearing was not done on the Duncan River because it would have been too expensive.

Williams also said Sunday the B.C. government is prepared to refund Seattle City Light the $207,398 the utility spent on land rentals while the flooding of B.C.'s Skagit Valley as part of the Ross dam power project was being considered.

But, the minister added, the government is prepared to take the issue to court if Seattle Light does not accept his decision to cancel the flooding.

"We are hoping for amicable discussions with our American friends, since this decision should come as no surprise. We are a new government with new attitudes and this is not a surprise," Williams said in an interview.

"We are prepared to refund the money Seattle has given the province in land rentals—there is no question about

GOLDA WILL ACCEPT HENRY'S HELP

WASHINGTON (WP) — Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said in an interview broadcast Sunday she would welcome assistance from Henry Kissinger in getting peace talks started in the Middle East, but made it clear Israel would resist any attempt by the U.S. to "press or provide" a settlement from outside.

"If he (Kissinger) thinks he can help in negotiations between the parties, all of that kind of help is more than welcome, providing it is helping to get the parties to negotiate, and not somebody from the outside providing a solution or suggesting a solution or pressing a solution," Mrs. Meir said.

Servants Can Strike

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

In every session of the provincial legislature, there seems to be one or two bits and pieces of legislation which escape public attention until sometime after the MLAs have gone home.

OVERLOOK

The overlooked move is contained in the amendments to the old Mediation Commission Act and its effect is to remove the illegality from civil servants taking part in a strike.

Civil servants have not been given a legal right to strike but the legal prohibition on striking has been removed. This was the situation prior to 1968 when the Social Credit government introduced the Mediation Commission Act.

Labor minister Bill King today described the overlooked section of the legislation as "a housekeeping measure" and said the five-man committee which is presently conducting hearings into the issue of collective bargaining rights for civil servants will be dealing with the problem of strike rights when it brings in its recommendations.

AN OFFENCE

The former section 50 of the mediation commission act had a subsection (2), which read: "Every person employed by the Crown in right

Brandt Sweeps To Easy Victory

By DAVID HUMPHREYS
Times Correspondent

BONN — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt won a decisive mandate from the German electorate Sunday for another four years of coalition government.

Despite snow, cold and fog in much of the country 91 per cent of voters went to the polls — a record in the republic's 23-year history and maybe in the Western World — to give the coalition an over-all majority of more than 40 seats in parliament.

Brandt's Social Democratic Party will have the largest block of seats for the first time in history when the new Bundestag meets Dec. 14. Their coalition partners also contributed solidly to the victory. The Free Democrats, a small free-enterprise party acting as a brake on Mr. Brandt's socialists, increased their share of the vote from 5.8 per cent in the 1969 election to about eight per cent Sunday.

Brandt and Foreign Minister Walter Scheel, Free Democrat leader, shook hands at a press conference when the extent of the victory became certain. Brandt announced he would go to East Berlin before Christmas — first West German chancellor to do so — to sign the treaty initialled 10 days ago aimed at improving relations between the two Germanys.

Brandt pledged to continue his policy of good neighborliness at home and abroad. Scheel said there was a wide-enough area of agreement between the Social Democrats and the Free Democrats to keep the parties busy in government for a full four years.

Brandt made the treaty, latest of a series of moves to improve relations with West Germany's Communist neighbors, the basic election issue. Opposition Leader Rainer Barzel of the Christian Democratic Union chose inflation, running at a rate of 6.4 per cent now, as his main theme.

The voters cast their ballots about 3 to 2 in favor of the coalition with its Ostpolitik theme. The Brandt foreign policy will now fit neatly into the timetable for full-scale talks between East and West intended to improve East-West relations as Brandt has sought to do between the Germanys.

Scheel even announced the opening in January of talks for mutual and balanced force reductions in Europe a few days before the election. Canada will take part by virtue of NATO forces stationed in

Ottawa, Cities Push For Tri-Level Talks

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government offered Sunday, at the start of the first tri-level conference of federal, provincial and municipal officials, to enter into a continuing consultation process involving all three groups.

Municipalities, constitutionally, are wards of the provinces and beyond the jurisdiction of the federal government but "no one level of government" can any longer respond to the challenges posed by modern-day cities, Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford said in a news release from the closed-door conference.

"We will establish new ways of attacking the urban challenge together, or our problems will drift from being manageable, as they are now, to being unmanageable almost overnight."

Basford said it is urgent that the three levels of government set up "some means of continuing consultation" to come to grips with the problems facing cities in the country.

The main problems from the federal viewpoint, were listed as housing, poverty, transportation, environment public finance, social instability and urban form, or the appearance of cities.

The news releases said Ottawa recognizes "the primary role of the provinces in municipal institutions and in shaping urban form" but noted that federal legislative and budgetary powers are used in the pursuit of national objectives and could also be used to further comprehensive planning "in which provinces have the lead role."

As well as establishing a continuing consultation process, Basford said, the three levels of government should attempt to consolidate their respective policies and "take coherent action together."

The release said federal activities already have a heavy impact on cities which it estimated will become the homes of 94.4 per cent of all Canadians by 2001.

The importance of participation by municipalities in the federal and provincial decision-making process was stressed in a position paper presented by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

"The roles and responsibilities of all levels of governments are interdependent," the federation said in a position paper outlining its views at the start of the two-day conference. "All levels are governed by the same over-all goals."

However, the paper said, structural forms as well as financial arrangements are instruments of more effective government and not ends in themselves.

"The proper solutions to

PAKISTAN'S EX-GOVERNOR GIVEN LIFE

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — A Dacca court today convicted Dr. A. M. Malik, the last governor of East Pakistan, of waging war against Bangladesh and sentenced him to prison for life. He could have been sentenced to death.

Malik had pleaded not guilty to charges, which included causing contempt and hatred against the Bangladesh government and collaborating with the Pakistani army during the civil war last year. Malik was governor of East Pakistan from September until Dacca fell to Indian troops Dec. 16, 1971.

Peron Seizes Initiative

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Juan D. Peron, in Argentina only four days after 17 years of exile, has seized the political initiative from the ruling military junta in determining the course of the elections scheduled for March 11.

Bolstered by thousands of cheering, chanting supporters, the 77-year-old former dictator met Sunday night with leaders of the other major politcal parties. They accepted insults and catcalls from the crowd to attend a meeting called by Peron at the three-storey suburban home purchased for him by his supporters.

Peron was to continue his meetings with political leaders today to strengthen his position in any future negotiations with the military government.

There has been no major reaction so far from the government except for a warning that it would take any measures necessary to maintain order around Peron's house.

About 1,000 militant Peronists camped overnight around bonfires in a vacant lot across from the villa and on neighborhood lawns. More than 10,000 had gathered there after Sunday afternoon soccer games, but this was far less than the 50,000 who packed the narrow, tree-lined street the night before.

Kissinger Back in Paris, Hopes for Quick Peace

PARIS (CP) — Henry Kissinger resumed his secret peace negotiations with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho in Paris today amid indications that their governments are determined to seek a quick settlement. (See also Page 34).

The U.S. presidential envoy who flew here Sunday night said on arrival that if the North Vietnamese negotiators showed the same spirit of understanding and flexibility which resulted in last month's nine-point draft agreement, "a rapid settlement of the war is probable."

U.S. officials hope that North Vietnam will agree to modify Vietnam peace terms to make them more acceptable to the Saigon government.

Tho's negotiating team, however, is expected to insist that there be no major modification of the nine-point agreement announced by Hanoi on Oct. 26.

Meanwhile, waves of U.S. B-52 bombers dropped 1,200 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese positions just below the demilitarized zone, military spokesmen reported today.

Forty of the Stratofortresses struck in support of South Vietnamese marines in Quang Tri province who were hit by 3,500-round artillery and mortar barrage over the weekend.

Hughes: Now Undersea Mines?

The mystery billionaire's project, shrouded in secrecy and centred in a compound on the shore of San Francisco Bay, rivals a science fiction tale in its imaginary approach.

A source, who did not want to be identified, said the project calls for sinking a barge to the ocean bottom. An undersea tractor, presumably automated, will ply the ocean bottom from the barge and bring back copper, nickel, manganese and cobalt from the ocean floor.

Once the mineral wealth is brought aboard, plans call for the barge to be refloated by air pumped from a surface ship.

So far, both the huge barge and a 618-foot-long ship, the "Hughes Glomar Explorer," have been built for the multi-million dollar venture. The barge sits in a secret guarded compound in Redwood City where it is being outfitted.

A spokesman for Hughes Tool Co. in Houston, confirmed the company is embarking on an undersea mining venture, but declined to discuss details.

Global Marine, Inc., of Los Angeles acknowledged building the ship in Chester, Pa., and Lockheed Corp. confirmed it is doing work on the project for Hughes. But neither firm would discuss any details.

Government scientists have queried Hughes' officials regarding the mystery barge but have never received an answer.

"Hughes must be going after something very big," said Oleg Terichow, a mining engineer at the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration's experimental marine mining facility at nearby Tiburon.

"We've written several letters but never even got them acknowledged," he said.

Two sheds have been built next to the almost 400-foot-long barge, located near the busy San Francisco Bayshore Freeway.

A redwood City building inspector said the sheds are "conventional, steel-framed structures. Something was being fabricated inside and taken into the barge."

He said his men were not allowed inside the barge, which was built in San Diego under strict security.

Globa Marine will run the ship for Hughes, the spokesman said, but he would not reveal the nature of the operation.

Global Marine is a leader in undersea exploration. It currently operates the Global Challenger, a vessel taking undersea core samples for the Scripps Institute of Oceanography. The company also runs at least 10 oil-drilling ships.

DUBLIN ARRESTS IRA 'MASTERMIND'

DUBLIN (CP) — The provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army is calling for "a wave of protest" in the United States, Britain and Ireland against the arrest by the Irish government of the Provos' chief of staff, Sean MacStiofain.

The Provisionals' political arm, Sinn Fein, said MacStiofain's arrest in Dublin Sunday was an "act of collaboration" with the British Army, "calculated to give aid and comfort to the forces of British imperialism in Ireland."

MacStiofain is believed to be the mastermind of the IRA's campaign of violence in Northern Ireland, which is aimed at uniting the province with the Irish Republic.

The Dublin government has been reluctant to crack down on IRA leaders because of their grass-roots support in the republic. But in recent months the government pushed a Special Powers Act through Parliament to bring IRA men to trial without jury and several other terrorist leaders have been arrested.
